The Second Sectio

Joe and Hazel Blom, residents of Valley Home in Thief River Falls, sang a Norwegian song for Linda Smersk, Miss Marshall County, prior to Linda's entertainment program for Valley Home residents Thursday afternoon. A graduate of Grygla high school and a student at Northland Community college in Thief River Falls, Linda will compete at the Miss Minnesota pageant in Austin in June. This was her second visit to entertain at Valley Home this year.

Ag Department advises residents "buy good trees"

Beware of illegal operators offering poor quality, uncertified stock when purchasing trees and shrubs for spring planting. That "great deal" you bought from the person cruising your neighborhood is probably not worth the effort to plant it.

Each spring the Minnesota Department of Agriculture receives distress calls from across the state and as far away as Omaha and Chicago. Homeowners are calling to find out if they can recover the money they spent to purchase poor quality trees from the back of a truck. Despite the warranty and assurances they were given when they purchased those illegal trees, they find the phone has been disconnected and the address does not exist.

Many of the trees sold by these so-called "woodies" have been dug from the woods in central Minnesota without the permission of the landowner. Unlike nursery-grown trees which are regularly cared for and develop a dense root system, wild trees have a very spreading root system, most of which is left in the ground when they are removed. With very few roots, the survival rate of these collected plants is very poor. Wild trees and shrubs are also more likely to harbor harmful insect and disease pests that could spread to other plants.

To avoid wasting time and money planting poor quality stock that is unlikely to survive, insist on certified plant material purchased from a certified nursery, garden center or landscape contractor. Nursery grown stock is officially inspected by the Minnesota Department of Agriculture and certified to be apparently free of harmful plant pests. Only trees, shrubs and perennials that are inspected and certified can be legally sold, offered for sale, or distributed in Minnesota. This law is designed to limit the spread of harmful plant pests and prevent the sale of diseased or infested stock.

Ask to see the Nursery Stock Dealer or Nursery Stock Grower Certificate which should be prominently displayed at the sales location. Questions on the certification status of a nursery dealer, landscaper or grower can be directed to the inspection activity at (612) 296-8507.

The Minnesota Department of Agriculture Plant Industry Division's inspection staff strives to serve consumers and the nursery industry by allowing only healthy plant material to be offered for sale. This program facilitates the movement of healthy, pest-free stock from the nursery to your backyard. Certification also serves the nursery industry by allowing this stock to move freely within the state, between states and to foreign countries.

The Minnesota Department of Agriculture urges Minnesotans urges Minnesotans to buy only certified trees, shrubs and perennials from certified nursery stock dealers, nursery stock growers or landscapers. Purchasing poor quality stock from unscrupulous operators will likely cost more in terms of time, effort and money than purchasing certified plants from your local garden center. Door-to-door sales are illegal and should be reported to the local authorities. Nursery stock value is not measured by cost alone, but rather by your success in adding healthy, beautiful plants to your landscape.

Fisher's Landing has two state tourism offices

Fisher's Landing Travel Information center will become the first such center in the nation to represent the office of tourism from two neighboring states when an agreement is signed May 7 at the center.

At the "Great Grand Opening" May 7 at 2 p.m., the agreement will be signed by Hank Todd, director of the Minnesota Office of Tourism and Jim Fuglie, director of the North Dakota Office of Tourism.

The public is invited to the open house from 1 to 4 p.m. Theme for tourism week is "Improve Your View in '92—Explore Minnesota and North Dakota." Car windshields will be washed by the Ox Cart Committee from Crookston to emphasize the theme.

Fisher's Landing will carry the official state map for both Minnesota and North Dakota as well as a comprehensive inventory of informational brochures from both offices of tourism.

The center's experienced staff of travel guides is prepared to respond to informational requests about both states as well as local inquiries. Approximately 70,000 travelers visited the center during the summer of 1991 to obtain literature and trip planning ideas for vacations throughout Minnesota.

Fisher's Landing will now be a year-around center, open seven days a week from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., extended to 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. from Memorial day to Labor day.

Beekeepers permitted to use amitraz

Environmental Protection agency has provided a special use permit for beekeepers in Minnesota to use BeeMite Strips containing the chemical amitraz to treat colonies infested with tracheal mites.

Some beekeepers have had winterkill as high as 60 per cent compared with the normal five to 10 per cent range. Before amitraz was developed, the only treatment available was menthol which needs warmer temperatures to vaporize.

Under the Section 18 special use permit, only one treatment per colony may be used. Because it must be applied for six weeks and removed when supers are put on, beekeepers may not have enough time to treat with amitraz this spring. It may be used effectively in the fall, however, whereas menthol can not.

In 1991 Minnesota ranked fifth in honey production with an estimated 16 million pounds of production valued at $8.8 million. More valuable than the honey production, however, is the pollination of crops, a service the honeybee performs as it collects nectar from flowers such as sunflowers and apple blossoms.

Food collected for food shelf

Employees at the Bridgeman-Land O'Lakes Dakota division plant in Thief River Falls recently collected 174 pounds of food for the local food shelf. Steve Edwards was coordinator for the drive.

Contribution of Land O'Lakes products will be made to Minnesota FoodShare to match the amount donated by employees. Minnesota FoodShare will coordinate delivery of the corporate food donations to the Thief River Falls area food shelf.

WE SHOULD REMEMBER - SORROW SHARED IS SORROW DIMINISHED...
"If a friend of mine gave a feast, and did not invite me to it, I should not mind a bit, But if a friend of mine had a sorrow and refused to allow me to share it, I should feel it most bitterly. If he shut the doors of his house of mourning against me, I would move back again and again and beg to be admitted, so that I might share in what I was entitled to share. If he thought me unworthy, unfit to weep with him, I should feel it as the most poignant humiliation, as the most terrible mode by which disgrace could be inflicted upon me—he who can look on the loveliness of the world and share its sorrow, and realize something of the wonder of both, is in immediate contact with divine things, and has got as near to God's secret as anyone can get."
Oscar Wilde

FAITH SHOWS YOUR MOTHER WAS RIGHT ABOUT MANY THINGS

Your mother had to be alert
To help you through each childhood hurt;
And times when you were sick in bed,
No matter what the doctor said,
You loved the stories that she'd tell,
That always seemed to make you well.
Then, with your childhood left behind,
Your mother always was inclined
To worry when you had a date,
And frequently came home too late.
But later on, you saw the light,
And realized that she was right.
As lessons of your faith attest,
Your mother did her very best;
So if she's here, or gone away,
Let's honor her on Mother's Day.

New World Order.... Is It "Globaloney?"

Following comments were written by Philip C. Clarke for America's Future:

To patriotic Americans, the question is vital: Should we continue to entrust our individual rights to the U.S. Constitution or risk weakening them under a U.N. treaty?

At issue is the so-called International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, adopted by the United Nations in 1966 and signed by President Carter in 1978. The Senate Foreign Relations committee held three days of hearings on the treaty in November, 1979, but took no further action. Not until this March, 12 1/2 years later, did the committee send the U.N. covenant to the full Senate with a recommendation for enactment into law by two-thirds consent.

Although it also has the backing of the Bush Administration, the treaty is strongly opposed by conservatives and others wary of "globalism" and the movement for a New World Order. Their opposition is based not on the promotion of civil and political rights as such—certainly a worthy goal—but on terms of the treaty itself. Examining the "fine print," we find numerous highly suspect provisions that, taken literally, could dilute our First Amendment rights.

For example, Article 19 of the U.N. covenant asserts the right to freedom of expression, but then adds that such free speech may be subject to "necessary" restrictions to respect reputations and protect public morals. Can you imagine the endless haggling over such woolly-worded rules?

Article 14 commands that the news media may be excluded from otherwise public trials "for reasons of morals and public order....or when the interest of the private lives of the parties so requires." But who decides such things and under what circumstances? Obviously, those who drafted this provision have no idea at all of our system of justice and the public's right to know. Or the difference between a fair trial and a kangaroo court.

Then there's Article 17 that states: "No one shall be subjected to arbitrary or unlawful interference with his privacy, family, home or correspondence, nor to unlawful attacks on his honor and reputation." Honor and reputation?

Article 20 holds that "any advocacy of national, racial or religious hatred that constitutes incitement to discrimination, hostility or violence shall be prohibited by law." But whose law? What penalties, if any? And who decides what constitutes "hatred?" Strictly interpreted, it might condemn most of the 99 U.N. member nations that already have signed the International covenant on Civil and Political Rights.

Americans who support the treaty argue that the U.S. has a moral responsibility to join in providing a "common standard" of international behavior. They also insist it would give the U.S. an opportunity to push our own interpretation of human rights. And to allay the misgivings of skeptics, the State Department has introduced a package of "reservations" and "understandings" that would, in effect, nullify some of the treaty's most controversial provisions.

But whatever the "feel-good" provisions of the U.N. rights covenant, U.S. ratification could well be seen as a willingness on our part to subordinate our constitutional sovereignty to the "higher order" of a supranational authority. The U.N.'s 53-member Human Rights Commission in its annual session in Geneva, Switzerland, in March cites 22 nations for alleged rights abuses. Most of those cited were well-known offenders like ~~Cuba~~, Burma and Equatorial Guinea. But Communist China, one of the worst violators of all, escaped censure. And with hostile Third World countries now comprising most of the commission, might it one day cite the United States itself for allegedly violating provisions of the Covenant on Civil and Political Rights?

Our Founding Fathers never envisioned such "globaloney." And we certainly don't need it now!

U.S. Households Are Smaller And Younger

Households are smaller than they were a decade ago, although the historical decline in household size has halted, at least temporarily, according to the U.S. Bureau of the Census. Mainly due to the presence of the large "baby boom" of persons born between 1946 and 1964, the median age of householders has fallen from 48.1 years in 1970 to 45.4 years in 1991.

The number of householders under age 25 has dropped by 1.7 million since 1980, however, from 6.6 million in 1980 to 4.9 million in 1991.

American households averaged 2.63 persons in size in 1991 versus 2.76 persons in 1980. The last year the average household size was three persons or more was 1973 when it was 3.01 persons.

Number of householders in the age categories of 65 and older rose by four million from 1980 to 1991—from 16.5 million to 20.5 million.

Household size fell more substantially during the 1970s than in the last decade. Reasons for the overall decline were fewer children per household, more one-parent families and the emergence of many nonfamily households. In 1970, for instance, 81 per cent of the 63.4 million households consisted of families and 19 per cent were non-family households. In March of 1991 70 per cent of the 94.3 million households consisted of families and 30 per cent were persons living alone or with nonrelatives.

Some other interesting statistics included in the report were the following:

- Only 34 per cent of households included one or more of the householder's children under age 18 in 1991, compared with 45 per cent in 1970.
- Married couples (with and without children) maintained 83 per cent of white family households in 1991 and 48 per cent of black family households.
- The number of married couple families who have not had children or whose children have left the home (27.8 million) is larger than the number with children present in the home (24.4 million).
- The 23.6 million one-person households account for one-quarter of all households, but make up 84 per cent of all nonfamily households. Most of the people who live alone are women, but their share of the total has declined from 67 per cent in 1970 to 60 per cent in 1991.
- The rates of increase in the number of female householder families have slowed dramatically since 1980.
- While most single parents are householders who own or rent their living quarters, about 21 per cent live in a household belonging to someone else.

To The Editor:

The city water smells bad and people have a hard time coping with it. I went to Thief Lake last week and the water in the river by the dam stunk so bad I had to close the windows on my car. This is where our water comes from, plus it goes through the Mud Lake slough before it comes here.

Upper and Lower Red Lake are fed by the Tamarack river, and that is also a big slough, so a big source of our water is slough water.

A lady came up to me and said, "Doyle, what are we going to do with the water?" I asked what was wrong with the water and she said it tastes like slough water. I laughed and said it should taste like that, because it comes from the sloughs.

I looked at the plans for the new water plant and it is not going to do any good, for your water comes from the same place—the sloughs. So does it make sense to put six million dollars into remodeling the plant, plus $80,000 a year in chemicals?

The plant was supposed to cost about three million dollars, like most of the other small towns are getting by with, but all of a sudden the price went to six million. What took place here? The plant is a beautification plant, not a purification plant.

Sincerely,
Doyle Thompson
Thief River Falls

To The Editor:

The check kiting in Washington that just won't go away wasn't explained to the American people at the start by the liberal press, but because of Rush Limbaugh's consistent denunciations of sloppy House banking practices.

One attempted cover-up by Congressional leaders was that it was not the taxpayers' money. However, the taxpayers paid the salaries of the director and five tellers of the bank.

After the various reports are pieced together we find members of the House of Representatives bounced more than 8,000 personal checks in just one year. Some 296 current House members kited checks. About 100 current members wrote 45 or more bad checks in three years. House members bounced 20,000 checks in a three-year period. The 55 most flagrant violators wrote close to $10 million in bad checks in three years.

What is more outrageous is that our Representatives consistently vote for more spending of the taxpayers' money, resulting in higher taxes and government waste.

Our Seventh District Congressman has had no bounced checks reported, but according to the spring TRIM (Tax Reform IMmediately) Bulletin, Rep. Peterson voted for high taxes and more spending on seven out of the eight items scored.

Parts of this letter were taken from the New American magazine and the National TRIM Bulletin. TRIM reports final votes (voting records are taken from the Congressional Record) on money bills that involve a billion dollars or more of your taxes, contain significant unconstitutional spending and/or include increased spending instead of cuts needed. All members of the House are scored on the same bills; no favorites are played.

Sincerely,
Arnold Honl,
Roseau, MN

Railroad News

"Work was commenced last week at Red Lake Falls on the Great Northern grade. The village has settled with the company in the right-of-way matter (prices of the land were too high) and the work is being pushed by a large crew of men. We understand that the company intends to finish the line as soon as possible from here to the Fosston line and they may conclude to connect at Park Rapids this year giving us a direct line south."

Weather Report

"The weather the past week has been simply villianous. It has rained every day with one exception during the week. Farmers have been unable to do any work and the prospects for a harvest never looked worse. Not over five per cent of the seeding has been done and it is safe to say that not over twenty-five per cent of last year's acreage will be sown to wheat this spring. There is no disguising the fact that farmers will have the poorest season in the last ten years."

by Sen. Roger Moe
Minnesota Senate Dist. 1

During the eighties, health care costs increased three times faster than all other consumer products. Incomes are growing only 2-4 percent annually and the cost of health care is rising at about 15 per cent per year. To gain control of these skyrocketing costs and provide health care coverage for Minnesota's 370,000 uninsured or under insured, the Legislature crafted and passed the HealthRight plan.

HealthRight is an important step for Minnesota. Designed to control health care spending so that the uninsured can afford insurance, it also protects those currently insured by slowing inflation so they can continue to afford coverage.

This pioneering and comprehensive health care initiative includes a state-monitored health care plan, industry-wide cost containment mechanisms, and substantive insurance reform.

Some of HealthRight's cost containment provisions include: uniform billing forms and procedures to reduce spending on administrative costs, medical malpractice reforms to eliminate unnecessary and costly litigation, creation of state and regional boards to make recommendations on how to control spending growth; and medical practice guidelines/parameters to minimize unnecessary and ineffective care.

Low-income Minnesotans who earn too much to qualify for state and federal medical assistance programs but not enough to pay for their own insurance, will be eligible for state subsidized health care with premium rates based according to their income levels. This is not a welfare program and those choosing to participate are required to pay for a portion of their insurance. Only people who have been uninsured for at least four months, lived in Minnesota for at least six months and meet income guidelines are eligible for the program.

Two new small business plans will be available for employers with 2-29 employees. These plans will be less expensive than those currently on the market. Benefits would emphasize preventive care, and some prescription, mental health [illegible] and [illegible] coverage.

A third new option for private business will be to join a pool with counties, cities and schools. This new underwriting option allows employers to spread the burden or risks of their employees among a larger population, thereby reducing the cost of insurance. This plan will offer employers a broader benefit package than what is included in the other plans.

Farmers and other self employed people will also be allowed to deduct the entire cost of their personal health insurance premiums from their state income taxes.

A Rural Health Advisory Council will be established to develop a systematic and cohesive approach toward rural health issues and planning.

The shortage of rural health care providers is addressed by establishing several new loan forgiveness programs to doctors, nurses and mid-level practitioners who agree to serve in rural Minnesota. Emphasis is also placed on expanding graduation rates for pediatricians and family practice doctors to better serve rural areas.

Rural hospitals facing financial difficulty will be eligible for new state financing. This change, along with increases in payments for Medical Assistance and GAMC should help stabilize our rural hospitals.

While HealthRight will undoubtedly require a number of revisions in the months and years ahead, it is a significant step to ensure that access to health care is not a privilege, but a right for all Minnesotans.

The bill, signed into law last week, was supported by DFL'ers, Republicans, the Governor and more than 27 organizations including—Minnesota Council of HMO's, Blue Cross Blue Shield, Minnesota Nurses Association, AFSCME, National Federation of Independent Business, Minnesota Board on Aging, MN. AFL-CIO, MEA, League of Women Voters, Minnesota AARP, MN-Physicians for a National Health Plan and many other groups.

New wetland act sees its first success

About 8.5 acres of wetlands were recently saved in the first test of the Wetland Conservation Act of 1991.

The incident occurred in a wetland area in Sibley county in south central Minnesota, when a farmer began work to drain a previously unfarmed area. A report on the activity to a law enforcement official led to a visit from local and state personnel, and eventually, an order that the farmer restore portions of the wetland area to their previous state.

"I'm actually a bit surprised at how smoothly the whole thing went," said John Jaschke, administrator of the program for the Minnesota Board of Water and Soil Resources (BWSR). "I hope that the law works as well in other parts of the state," he added.

Sibley Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD) manager Loren Evenson said that the law enforcement official got a report in early March about the drainage and visited the site. The enforcement official then issued a cease and desist order stopping the work and contacted the SWCD, which is administering the act locally.

Using a variety of wetland maps, inventories, photographs, and human expertise, the SWCD determined that the wetland area was made up of a number of different types of wetlands, some of which were covered under the law.

The enforcement authorities issued an order requiring the farmer to restore the wetlands; under the law, a landowner can comply with the order or develop a plan to replace the wetlands elsewhere. The farmer opted to comply with the order.

Department of Natural Resources Conservation Officer Tim Knellwolf, the enforcement official who got the original report on the violation, said that he was pleased at how simple the whole process was.

"Frankly, I think the law isn't as complicated as it seems at first," Knellwolf said. "From an administrative standpoint, it's just not that cumbersome," he said.

Evenson agreed with his assessment, but added that he thought landowners ought to be compensated for the taxes they pay on wetlands that can't be drained.

The law does contain three new compensation programs for landowners who wish to maintain or restore wetlands. One of the programs begins this summer; the remaining two probably will begin in the summer of 1993.

The law was approved last year as a result of a growing awareness of the benefits of wetlands, such as flood control, fish and wildlife habitat, and water purification. About 60 per cent of Minnesota's wetlands have been drained — mostly for agricultural and development purposes — leaving an estimated 7.5 million acres.

Search is on for Century farms

Century farm program, honoring Minnesota families who have owned their farms for at least 100 years, will be conducted for the 17th consecutive year by the Minnesota State Fair in 1992.

Since inception of the program in 1976, a total of 5,143 Minnesota farms have been designated Century Farms. Families who qualify this year will receive a commemorative certificate signed by the president of the State Fair and Gov. Arne Carlson, along with an outdoor sign signifying Century Farm recognition.

To qualify farms must be at least 100 years old, at least 50 acres in size and have been in continuous family ownership for at least 100 years. Names of all Century Farms will be on display at The Farmer/USA Agriculture magazine's Machinery Hill information center during the 1992 Minnesota state fair Aug. 27-Labor Day, September 7.

Applications are available from Century Farms, Minnesota State Fair, St. Paul, MN 55108 or by calling (612) 642-2253. They may also be obtained at the Pennington county extension office.

Jingle dancers were among youngsters from the Seven Feathers dance group in Grand Forks, ND, who entertained a large audience at the Northland Community college theatre Thursday afternoon. The group of more than a dozen dancers, accompanied by the Northern Star drum group including four drummers and singers, made the appearance here as the concluding event of Indian Images month at Northland.

Experiment Station has top DHIA cow

University of Minnesota's Northwest Agricultural Experiment station had the top cow in value of product produced during March in the Red Lake County Dairy Herd Improvement association, according to information provided by the Red Lake county extension office.

With production of 28,073 pounds of milk, 959 pounds of butterfat and 835 pounds of protein, the cow led a list of 23 animals in the association which had records of at least 22,000 pounds of milk, 750 pounds of butterfat or 700 pounds of protein.

Second place cow was from the Roger Odegaard herd and produced 27,777 pounds of milk, 891 pounds of butterfat and 833 pounds of protein.

Third place cow was from the Conrad Zak and Sons herd with 29,998 pounds of milk, 723 pounds of butterfat and 877 pounds of protein.

Others in the top 10 came from the following herds with pounds of milk, butterfat and protein listed respectively:

Johnston Farms, 26,076, 872 and 794; Wayne Vettleson, 25,624, 840 and 720; Conrad Zak and Sons, 25,732, 768 and 745; Wayne Nelson, 24,629, 801 and 746; Kevin and Beth Roppe, 22,828, 860 and 720 and 23,705, 778 and 705; and South Ridge Dairy, 23,568, 760 and 698.

Laparascopic surgery to be shown

One of the most exciting breakthroughs in modern medicine is laparoscopic surgery, and the procedure will be demonstrated live during a seminar for primary care givers Thursday, May 14, at Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls.

Intended for physicians and nurses, the seminar will begin with registration at 5:30 p.m. Dinner discussion by Dr. Jerome Bray, Dr. James Hively and Dr. Juho Krepp will center on current and developing applications of laparoscopic surgery and/or laser surgical techniques including clinical indications and contraindications.

At 7 p.m. Dr. Bray will perform a laparoscopic cholecystectomy which seminar participants will have an opportunity to view via closed circuit television and interactive video.

At 7:30 p.m. physicians will be provided with the opportunity to present questions to Dr. Bray, Dr. Hively and Dr. Krepp. Nurse participants will move to the C&NC chapel for a panel discussion regarding pre- and post-operative needs and concerns of the laparoscopic surgical patient. At 8:30 p.m. all participants will be brought together for a summary of the evening's presentation.

Persons requiring additional information may contact Sharon Russell, inservice director at Northwest Medical Center, by calling 681-4240, extension 408.

A review of laparoscopic surgery has been provided by Dr. Bray as follows:

by Dr. Jerome Bray

One of the most significant advances in modern surgery as it relates to patient comfort and recovery in Laparoscopic or minimal access surgery. These techniques allow major surgical procedures to be accomplished through small incisions without the usual pain and disability associated with larger incisions which cut through muscle, nerves and other tissues.

These techniques were pioneered several years ago for diagnosis and treatment of pelvic diseases and used extensively in the "BandAid Surgery" form of sterilization. It utilized a small telescope to view the abdominal contents and then small instruments on 16-inch handles to move or biopsy the organs or tissues. Carbon dioxide was used to keep the abdomen inflated at a low pressure to help see in the cavities.

The first applications of the present techniques were made possible by the addition of a small television camera attached to the telescope which enables the entire team to view the operation and the surgeon to use both hands to perform the surgery. New developments in instruments to move, cut, clamp, staple or clip tissues has also hastened progress. Electrocautery and lasers are also necessary tools adapted to this surgery.

The least difficult operation to do with these methods was the simple gallbladder removal. With good training a qualified surgeon can now quite routinely do nearly all cholecystectomies in this manner. The patient usually leaves the hospital in eight to 24 hours after the surgery is completed with a minimum of discomfort. More difficult gallbladder surgery is now being done for complications of gallstone disease with this method as well.

Many other applications of laparoscopy are being developed and used in the treatment of disease. Appendectomies may now be performed in this manner with smaller incisions and less pain and work loss. Laparoscopic use of plastic mesh and staples to repair many hernias can decrease the pain and work loss although it is still more expensive because of the increased technical costs. It is being evaluated and used in certain circumstances.

Laparoscopic surgeries to cut adhesions and even to remove or repair bowel abnormalities are some of the newer applications. Repair of hiatal hernias, closure of perforated ulcers and even some ulcer surgery are included. This technique is "gentler" with the organs and causes less postoperative paralysis and patients are able to eat much sooner after surgery as well as have less pain. Fewer adhesions form after this surgery as well.

Surgery of the female organs, hysterectomies, ovary surgery and some bladder surgery are now possible by this method. Again, marked decrease in pain, disability and hospital stay are the benefit. Many times the organs are freed up by the laparoscope and then removed through the vagina to avoid a larger, more painful abdominal incision.

These methods are now being applied to diseases of the lungs and chest cavity. More accurate diagnosis of lung tumors

Reading labels can cut sodium and fat in diet

Sure, you can read a label on a food item—but can you really understand the information that label is giving you? Help in reading labels will be given at a presentation Friday, May 15, at 2 p.m. in the C&NC chapel at Northwest Medical Center. Bring your nutrition questions for discussion.

by Tammy Vatthauer, R.D.
Northwest Medical Center

Everyone can use a few tips in reading labels to help lower the amount of fat and sodium in the diet. Here are some "rules of thumb" to keep in mind:

Rule Number 1—When buying TV dinners or convenience main entrees beware of fat. It helps to remember that less than 30 per cent of our calories should come from fat. Basically, this refers to a whole day's intake or a complete meal. It does not work to use the recommendation on individual foods because it would eliminate most meats and cheeses among other foods.

Following is the basic information for two TV dinners and a method to determine which is the better choice:

Dinner A has a serving size of 8.87 ounces, 360 calories, 18 grams of fat and 900 milligrams of sodium. Dinner B has a serving size of 11.5 ounces, 280 calories, two grams of fat and 260 milligrams of sodium. One gram of fat equals nine calories. Dividing fat calories by total calories equals the percentage of calories from fat.

For TV dinner A, multiplying the 18 grams of fat by nine equals 162 fat calories. Dividing the 162 fat calories by 360 total calories equals .45 or 45 per cent total calories from fat.

For dinner B, multiplying the two grams of fat by nine equals 18 fat calories. Dividing the 18 fat calories by 280 total calories equals .06 or six per cent total calories from fat.

The conclusion is that dinner B is the better nutritional choice. In addition, it is nearly three ounces larger than dinner A.

To avoid or reduce fat: (a) choose less processed foods; (b) avoid adding fat to foods; (c) recognize fat; and (d) buy lean cuts of meat and when you see fat on meat, trim it off.

One small baked potato has only 0.1 gram of fat while a half-cup of escalloped potato mix has 5.9 grams of fat. Omit adding fat to boxes mixes if the purpose is only for added flavor. Do not add fat to homemade foods like mashed potatoes or vegetables.

Obvious fat sources are butter, margarine, salad dressings, gravy, oils, mayonnaise, sour cream, cream cheese and fried foods. Not so obvious sources are cream soups, nuts, peanut butter, baked goods, boxed mixes, most cheeses, Rick Contos, R. Ph., is director of pharmacy at Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls. He points out that many common foods and over-the-counter non-prescription drugs contain significant amounts of caffeine. Read his article in this special Hospital Week supplement.

Suggestions for decaffeinting your medicine cabinet

by Rick Contos, R. Ph.
Director of Pharmacy
Northwest Medical Center

Finding caffeine in our morning coffee as well as America's most popular sodas is pretty much par for the course. But caffeine in the family medicine cabinet is not expected by many people.

Those who are concerned about limiting their intake of caffeine may want to cut back on some non-prescription medications—especially over-the-counter (OTC) medications that contain more caffeine per dose than an average cup of coffee.

Concerned individuals should inquire from their pharmacists about the caffeine content in some of the more commonly used OTC medications. You should always read the label and/or package insert for the product's ingredients—especially if purchased when or where no counseling is available—to determine the presence or absence of caffeine.

The public should be informed that OTC medications containing caffeine include common pain relievers such as Anacin and Excedrin; diet pills and suppressants such as Dexatrim and Dietac; cold/allergy medications such as Dristan; and stimulants such as NoDoz and Vivarin.

Most common health professionals recommend limiting your caffeine intake to 200 mg. per day. By checking the contents as suggested above, individuals can be aware of the ease with which non-prescription drugs can push them over their recommended daily limit.

As of April , 1991, the following is the listed caffeine content by milligrams in a normal serving of a number of common foods and beverages:

Chocolate cake (5 oz.), 20-30 mg.; chocolate candy bar (1 oz.), 1-15; baking chocolate (5 oz.), 35; iced tea (12 oz.), 22-36; hot tea (5 oz.), 35-46; Dr. Pepper (12 oz.), 50; Mountain Dew (12 oz.), 56; Diet Coke (12 oz.) 46; Pepsi (12 oz.), 36; coffee, drip (5 oz.), 110-150; and coffee, instant (5 oz.), 50-75 mg.

In over-the-counter non-prescription drugs, caffeine content per tablet or capsule is listed as follows: Anacin, 32 mg.; Excedrin, 65; Aspirin free Excedrin, 65; Midol, 32; Vanquish, 32; NoDoz, 100; Vivarin, 200; Dristan, 16; Dexatrim, 200; and Dietac, 200 mg.

Body fat analysis is Hospital Week offering

Persons interested in finding out their body fat percentage will have an opportunity to do so free of charge on Tuesday, May 12, from 9 a.m. to noon in the convalescent and nursing care unit chapel of Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls. The service is being offered as part of the National Hospital Week observance.

Tracy Bronken, athletic trainer for a number of local sports teams including those at Lincoln high school and Northland Community college, has provided the following information on body fat testing and what the indications mean:

by Tracy Bronken
Athletic Trainer

Most of us at some point in our lives have had some sort of conflict with the bathroom scale. Well, I would like to shed a new light on the matter with something called body composition.

A person's body weight, which is the figure the scale reads, is made up of bones, muscles, organs, water, connective tissues and so on.....and fat. People go on what is typically called a weight loss program but should probably called a fat loss program.

Besides a good balanced diet, most people should incorporate an exercise program to accomplish this task. What happens when you exercise? One of the many benefits of exercise is building muscle tissue. Since muscle tissue is more dense than fat tissue and takes up less space, people get discouraged when that trusty scale either doesn't change or even goes up.

The percentage of your body weight that is made up of fat can be measured in a number of ways. Probably the most practical and convenient is the skin fold method. An instrument called a skin fold caliper is used to measure a few different skin folds on the body. These figures are then calculated by a specific computer program and the results are available in a matter of seconds. The average range for women ages 18-60 is approximately 20 to 25 per cent and for males ages 18-60 is approximately 12 to 18 per cent.

A good weight (fat) loss program should involve aerobic exercise (walking, jogging, biking, swimming) and cutting back on fat in the diet. Research indicates that 20 to 40 minutes of aerobic activity of moderate intensity three to five times a week is what is needed to burn fat. Exercise increases lean (muscle) tissue and decreases body fat, which is what our body needs to function effectively. A significant decrease in overall weight may or may not happen.

Body composition testing gives you a much more accurate indication of the

by Deb Ernst, MSW
Director of Social Services
Northwest Medical Center

One of the most difficult decisions a family may have to make comes when a change in living arrangements must be made for a frail elderly relative no longer capable of living alone. This could involve a move to the home of a son or daughter, another close relative, an apartment, a board and care facility or a nursing home.

For the elderly parent feelings of anger and/or grief may be experienced. The adult child or children involved in making the decision may experience guilt over not being able to provide enough care for his or her parent.

It is anticipated that the number of people over 80 will double in the next 14 years. While most people over 65 are not disabled, approximately 17 per cent do need help with activities of daily living, such as bathing, dressing, grooming and cooking.

It is estimated, however, that more than 20 per cent of those people over 65 will need to spend some time in a nursing home. With the increasing age of the population, the number requiring long term care will also dramatically increase—as will the financial crisis faced by the aging family.

One of the myths about today's families is family abandonment of older people. Families do not "dump" older people into nursing homes. Most often, it is after a strenuous effort to keep the aging parent at home that the nursing home option is finally adopted.

Adult children provide more care and more difficult care over longer periods of time than they once did. It is not unusual to find children in their 60's trying to maintain a chronically ill aged parent at home.

A 1982 study indicated that caregivers as a group are largely female (29 per cent daughters and 23 per cent wives). The average age is 57, one quarter are age 65 to 74 and another 10 per cent are over 75 years of age. More recent studies indicate similar trends.

The majority of helping services to the aged are provided by family, not by community agencies. In fact, less than 15 per cent of "helper days of care" are provided by agencies.

There are certain clues or signs that can be used as a guideline before any final decision on relocating an aging family member is made. While the presence of one or two clues may not be significant, several changes may indicate the time has come to make a change in living arrangements, especially if the person's circumstances or condition are life-endangering.

Some of the clues, contained in a publication entitled "Aging Parents: Whose Responsibility?" and written by Jane Gos Goodman, are as follows:

(1) Sudden weight loss as a result of not eating or not preparing food. (Any weight loss must be investigated medically.)

(2) Failure to take medication or overtaking medication.

(3) Injury marks or bruises.

(4) Deterioration of personal habits, including not bathing or changing clothing for days or weeks.

(5) Increase in car accidents.

(6) General forgetfulness (not the occasional forgetfulness we all experience, but the consistent forgetfulness such as forgetting to pay bills or keep appointments or remember familiar addresses.)

(7) Extreme suspicion or intense ungrounded fears, especially about people with whom they come in frequent contact.

(8) Series of small fires in kitchen or bedroom.

(9) Bizarre behavior of any kind.

(10) Consistent disorientation.

If a nursing home seems indicated, many families will face financial ruin because of lack of funds to pay for long term care. A major misassumption is that the elderly are covered for long term disability. One survey indicated that nearly 80 per cent of people over 65 believe that Medicare and supplemental private health insurance includes coverage for long-term care.

Under Part A, Medicare will cover up to 100 days of skilled post-hospital care which includes total coverage for the first 20 days. From the 21st to the 100 day the individuals is required to make a co-payment of $81.50 per day, with Medicare covering the balance. However, under the current Medicare guidelines only two per cent of all nursing home costs are reimbursed.

Medicare will pay only for a limited

Are you worried about worrying?

by Dr. Steve Levinson
Director, Mental Health Division
Northwest Medical Center

When you worry, you're actually trying to reduce stress by mentally preparing yourself to handle the worst. Mental preparation is a basically sound and effective way of reducing the overwhelming stress that a catastrophe might otherwise cause you. It's like insurance that protects you in the event of disaster.

However, just as with insurance, the protection you get from being mentally prepared "costs" you something. You see, you can't mentally prepare yourself for the worst without suffering a portion of the stress you'd suffer if the worst were to really happen.

While it obviously pays to be prepared for things that will go wrong, it obviously doesn't pay to be prepared for things that won't. If only you had a crystal ball, you'd know when to "buy" insurance and when not to.

With no crystal ball to rely on, many of us play it "safe" by making a practice of staying mentally prepared for everything to go wrong!

Adopting such a practice will probably render you a very well-protected nervous wreck! It's like buying so much insurance protection that your well-secured life becomes unbearable because of the huge premiums you have to pay.

The biggest problem with excessive worrying is that it runs you through the stress-mill twice. Not only do you manufacture some stress whenever you mentally prepare, "expert worriers" usually end up producing a whole lot of extra stress by also worrying about worrying! Worrying about worrying often leads to a powerfully stressful feeling of being out of control.

Unfortunately, common sense solutions to the problem of worrying just don't seem to work. You can't just stop because you realize you should or because someone who cares tells you you'd be much better off if you didn't worry so much.

The best remedy is a strange one: Worry on purpose!

That's right. If you're already worrying too much, worry on purpose at a time and place most convenient for you. Set aside some time each day to devote to concentrated worry about the subject or subjects that have been eating away at you anyway. If you'd like, you can actually make a list—a "worry agenda"—and then go to it with a vengeance.

You'll probably find that you can get your worrying done more quickly and less stressfully when you do it on purpose than you can when it just happens. With practice, you may find that worrying on purpose also helps you feel generally more like "the captain of your own ship."

time in cases where skilled nursing care and/or rehabilitative services are needed to speed recovery after a recent hospitalization (within 30 days of hospital discharge). This generally is defined as treatment or therapy which can only be administered by a skilled practitioner, i.e. a doctor, nurse or therapist.

Medicare will not cover nursing home care if it is needed primarily for custodial /maintenance care (another way of describing help with personal needs such as eating, dressing and walking). Most private supplemental insurance policies are as restrictive as Medicare.

With people living longer, will there be enough family caregivers or will more community services need to be implemented to provide for the growing need? With the aging of the population, what are the cost implications for providing long term care?

There are no simple solutions to a complex problem but it is important to be aware of the limitations of the current system. The availability of caregivers is decreasing as more women—the traditional caregivers—are working. Changes in living arrangements can be traumatic to the aging family, but planning ahead can make the move easier.

Breast self-exam gives warning

by Eve Tangquist, RN
Patient Education, Northwest Medical Center

As Northwest Medical Center observed National Hospital Week May 10-16, two presentations on breast self-examination will be given for the public on Wednesday, May 13, at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. in the Convalescent and Nursing Care (C&NC) chapel at Northwest Medical Center.

At these presentations we will show a video and present information on breast self examination and its relationship to women's health.

Why should a woman examine her breasts monthly? Most breast cancers are first discovered by women themselves. Since breast cancers found early and treated promptly have excellent chances for cure, learning how to examine your breasts properly can help save your life.

The best time to examine your breasts is monthly, about a week after your period. After menopause, check your breasts on the first day of each month. After hysterectomy, check with your doctor or clinic for an appropriate time of the month. Doing breast self examination (BSE) will give you monthly peace of mind and seeing your doctor once a year will reassure you there is nothing wrong.

If you should find a lump or dimple or if discharge is discovered during BSE, it is important to see your doctor as soon as possible. Don't be frightened. Most breast lumps or changes are not cancer, but only your doctor can make the diagnosis.

Risk factors for breast cancers are:

- Age;
- History of breast cancer in a close family relative (mother, sister, grandmother, aunt);
- Late age at menopause;
- Onset of menstruation before age 12;
- Older than 30 years at birth of first child;
- Never giving birth;
- Obesity—40 per cent above weight normal for you.

Mammography is another important way to help protect you against breast cancer. Mammography, a low-dose breast x-ray, can find cancers too small to be felt by hand. It is recommended to have one baseline x-ray between ages 35 and 40. From 40 to 49 you should have one every one to two years, depending on the findings and what your physician recommends. After age 50 you should have one every year.

and infections are possible and treatment of blebs, collapsed lungs and even some heart conditions are possible. Urologic surgery is utilizing this method for treatment of varicocele, lymph node biopsy and even kidney removal.

In summary, laparoscopic surgery is rapidly advancing in the care of many diseases with the primary goal of effectively treating the problem as before but reducing the postoperative pain and disability. Great care must be used by the laparoscopic surgeon to accomplish these goals and yet avoid complications which would negate the benefits. Questions about the applications, benefits and dangers of laparoscopic surgery should be directed to surgeons knowledgeable or skilled in its use.

amount of excess fat you may be carrying. It also monitors progress of an exercise program more accurately than the old bathroom scale.

For example: A female starts an exercise program at a weight of 152 pounds with 27 per cent body fat. After six weeks she weights 149 pounds but has 23 per cent body fat. Without knowing the decrease in body fat percentage, these numbers could be a bit discouraging. The difference in pounds of fat being carried by this female went from 41 pounds to 34 pounds—a difference of seven pounds—but the overall weight change was only three pounds. This shows how much actual fat loss can take place.

Learn to read food labels

olives, snack crackers, whole or 2% milk and TV dinners.

Rule Number Two—It is recommended that we limit our intake of sodium to 3,000 to 5,000 milligrams each day. Most foods, like milk products or vegetables, contain a natural amount of sodium that cannot be avoided. Our goal should be to avoid excess salt in the diet.

One way to reduce sodium is to read labels so you are aware of the sodium content in the foods you eat. The rule of thumb for this is to consume less than 400 to 500 milligrams of sodium per main entree or soup.

Review the sodium levels of the TV dinners mentioned earlier in this article. Dinner A has 900 milligrams of sodium versus 260 milligrams of sodium in dinner B, therefore dinner B is a better choice because it has less than 400 milligrams of sodium in a serving.

Do this sodium comparison with canned soups. You will be quite surprised how excessive the sodium in some foods can be.

Testicular cancer to be reviewed

During the May 10-16 observance of National Hospital Week, a public information series of programs will be held on several types of cancer in the C&NC chapel at Northwest Medical Center. At 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. the program including a video and other information on testicular cancer will be presented by Tim Panek, RN.

Testicular Cancer

The following information was taken from the American Cancer Society publication "Facts on Testicular Cancer," published in 1988:

Testicular cancer is a relatively rare form of cancer accounting for about one per cent of the cancers in American men. The majority of these cancers occur between the ages of 20 and 44. An estimated 5,500 cases and 400 deaths occur from this cancer each year.

White males have a four times greater risk of occurrence than black males. The rate for Native Americans, Hispanics and Asians is less than for whites but higher than for blacks.

If detected early before the cancer has spread to other parts of the body, testicular cancer is nearly 100 per cent curable. Recent advances in medicine have accounted for a nearly 80 per cent cure for even some advanced types of testicular cancer.

The major risk factor for testicular cancer is undescended testes; that is, the testes which are formed up in the body near the kidneys fail to descent to the scrotum. This conditions increases the risk of developing testicular cancer by five times. It can be easily corrected by surgery and if done before a boy is six years old the risk is reduced to normal.

The most common finding leading to a diagnosis of testicular cancer is a hard lump, about the size of a pea. Other signs include painless swelling and a feeling of heaviness in groin or scrotum. Most of the time there is no pain. These symptoms can also be caused by other conditions, but even the mildest symptom should be checked by a physician.

Early detection is the key to a man's best defense against testicular cancer. Practicing monthly testicular self-examination during a warm bath or shower is ideal for early detection.

A booklet with more detailed instructions is available from the American Cancer Society or can be obtained by attending the presentations at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. May 13 at Northwest Medical center.

Prostate Cancer

The following information was taken from the 1991 publication "For Men Only," published by the American Cancer Society:

The prostate, a gland just below the bladder in the male genital tract, has the second highest incidence of cancer in men, ranking behind skin cancer. Prostate cancer struck 122,000 men in 1991, most of them over the age of 55. An estimated 32,0000 American men died of the disease in 1991.

Who gets prostate cancer? Most men who get prostate cancer are 55 years of age or older. Incidence is higher among blacks and men with family history of cancer.

Cancer of the prostate usually involves enlargement of the gland, however, some enlargement occurs in about 50 per cent of U.S. males. While enlargements need to be investigated, it does not in itself mean cancer.

The American Cancer Society recommends an annual health check-up aver age 40 which would include a digital rectal exam. If a suspicious area is found, more extensive tests will need to be done. The physician makes a final diagnosis from a biopsy—the removal of a small piece of tissue from the area for examination under a microscope.

Anxiety group formed

Everyone experiences anxiety from time to time, but for some people it becomes a major roadblock to everyday functioning.

One such roadblock is known as "panic attacks." These attacks appear very suddenly and are accompanied by feelings of fear and imminent danger. Most common symptoms are shortness of breath, feelings of unreality, shaking or feelings of dying or "going crazy." Often these attacks last just minutes. The disorder is diagnosed more commonly in women than in men and is not unusual.

Another type of constant anxiety is known as "generalized anxiety disorder" which includes persistent anxiety, symptoms of muscle tension, sweating, dry mouth, upset stomach and apprehension. Oftentimes depressed mood accompanies both of these anxiety disorders.

This group provides an opportunity for members to share experiences and to obtain support and assistance in dealing with problems in living. Members indicate that they benefit from the opportunity to talk with others who have similar complaints, which helps them to feel they are not alone with their difficulties.

The group meets on a weekly basis and is co-facilitated by Dr. Karen Pietras and Val Bakken, M.S., therapists at the mental health division of Northwest Medical Center. If you are interested in finding out more about this group, please contact the mental health division at 681-4240.

Pioneer Village offered new machinery building

Ralph Engelstad offers $180,000 for 20,000 square foot building

Pennington county commissioners at their regular meeting this morning considered an offer from Ralph Engelstad of Las Vegas, NV, to provide the funds for a 20,000 square foot metal storage building to house antique machinery at the Pennington Pioneer Village. Preliminary estimates have placed the building cost at $180,000.

Local members of the Engelstad family brought a proposal for the project with them to Las Vegas recently when attending a family reunion at Ralph Engelstad's Imperial Palace hotel and casino.

In a letter presented to the county board at its meeting this morning, Engelstad states that "Inasmuch as summer is drawing upon us I though I should address the building that is needed at Pioneer Village for the housing of the machinery, etc., that is presently displayed outside. Most of the machinery is presently located in that area of the old sewage treatment (reservoir) with the concrete walls surrounding the same."

The letter states that, after necessary site preparation, "I would then either give to the city the necessary funds to construct an approximately 20,000 square foot metal building to house this machinery or I would contract myself to have a 20,000 square foot building erected and give the building to Pioneer Village with the entire costs being paid by myself.

"As per the previous bid that we received this building could be constructed for approximately $180,000, exclusive of the (site preparation) work."

Engelstad's offer also contained a request: "Inasmuch as my grandfather was one of the outstanding pioneers in the Thief River Falls area, I would ask that the Pioneer Village be called 'The Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village.'"

At this morning's meeting the county commissioners approved a resolution urging the Pennington County Historical Society, owner of the Pennington Pioneer Village, to rename the village the Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village.

The resolution also requests participation by the City of Thief River Falls to work jointly with the county in site preparation work and expresses thanks to Engelstad "for his very generous donation."

Pennington County Historical society board has a regular meeting scheduled for Thursday afternoon at the Pioneer Village and is expected to consider the building offer and request for name change at that time.

The city council is also expected to discuss the county's request for participation in site preparation at its next meeting to be held this evening in the council chambers at the city auditorium.

TRF schools benefit from debt equalization

Residents of School District 564 will receive some property tax relief from debt service equalization funding recently approved by the state legislature and signed by Gov. Arne Carlson, according to the Minnesota Rural Education association (MREA).

The funding makes both the state and the local school district responsible for providing adequate, uniform facilities for Minnesota students.

The legislature approved $6 million in debt service equalization funding in 1993, $14 million in 1994 and $21 million in 1995 and each year thereafter. The funding is thus phased in over a three-year period with districts receiving one-third of their allotment in 1993, two-thirds in 1994 and full payment in 1995 and thereafter. The state will prorate the 1993 amounts at 92.6 per cent but proration is not expected in 1994.

With debt service equalization, School District 564 is expected to receive $62,310 in debt service aid from the state in 1993 and $123,446 in 1994.

"Local taxpayers will receive some well-earned property tax relief," stated Vernae Hasbargen, executive director of the MREA. "With just two-thirds of the equalization implemented, tax rates in the Thief River Falls district will fall by 2.77 per cent."

"This legislation certainly is a step in the right direction," stated Dr. Robert Duncan, superintendent of School District 564. "It will provide some relief for local taxpayers on the existing debt and, because it also applies to future building projects, should have a strong positive impact on the proposed elementary

Speaking Of...

...I Can Still Hear the Toodles

I was really crabby one day last week and it wasn't even my fault. It was all the fault of one, single, solitary bird. Let me explain...

I love the cheery sound of birds chirping just as much as the next person. It means spring is really here and I do enjoy listening to the birds in the morning—most of the time.

Last week I happened to find it necessary to be up at 3:45 one morning. Never mind why I was up. Suffice it to say that two large glasses of water before bedtime is not a good idea, even after a hot, windy day.

Anyway, I found it necessary to be up at 3:45 one morning last week. After I crawled back into bed, ready to snooze a few hours more before the alarm went off, I had quite an experience—perhaps a once-in-a-lifetime experience—I hope. I heard the birds wake.

One bird woke first. I would have thought that any bird would be a bit sleepy at that hour of the morning, but this bird didn't sound sleepy at all as he started his song.

"Oh, how nice, a little birdie serenade to lull me back to sleep," I thought as I listened to the warbling notes and snuggled under the covers. Somewhere in the back of my mind, I noticed that the little fellow's song was really quite loud and seemed to be pretty complicated.

"Toodle, TOODLE, TOODLE, toodle, toodle, TOODLE," he went. Then paused a moment, and did the same thing over again. "Toodle, TOODLE, TOODLE, Toodle, toodle, TOODLE," (pause). "Toodle, TOODLE, TOODLE, Toodle, toodle, TOODLE," over and over and over. I rolled over in bed and pulled the covers over my ears.

Other birds began to waken. They sounded a bit disgruntled, making little sour-sounding peeps, and crabby chirps. None of them sounded as cheerful as that first bird, who, despite the abundance of birdie protests he was generating, continued on with his song.

"Toodle, TOODLE, TOODLE, toodle, toodle, TOODLE," (pause) "Toodle, TOODLE, TOODLE, toodle, toodle, TOODLE," (pause) "Toodle, TOODLE, TOODLE, toodle, toodle, TOODLE." He seemed to be getting louder and louder as I listened, despite the fact that my head was now completely buried under the covers.

By now a bit disgruntled myself, I decided to try to drown out the cheerful chirps with another tactic. I tucked my pillow into my shoulder and pressed my ear into it, and pressed my arm over the other ear, hoping to muffle the "toodle, TOODLE, TOODLE, toodle, toodle, TOODLE" somewhat. It didn't help. I could still hear him.

Worse yet, all of the other birds had fully awakened and decided to toodle along with him. It was beginning to sound like a full-fledged birdie party out there, and, as I popped open one bleary eye, I could see that IT WAS STILL DARK OUTSIDE.

I pulled the pillow over both ears and held it tight with both arms. I could still hear the toodles. My arms began to hurt from the strange position I had them in, and my head began to ache.

By this time, I am sure every bird in a ten-block radius was wide awake and toodling at the top of its lungs. I now had a complete chorus of cacophony outside of my bedroom window. There was no way I could go back to sleep.

I lay awake until the alarm went off and then got up. All day, the whole, long, tedious day, I heard the toodles ringing in my aching head, "Toodle, TOODLE, TOODLE, toodle, toodle, TOODLE." And that is why I was crabby last week. It was because of that bird.

Dear Readers,

Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, or "crib death", occurs very quickly. Parents have found their child dead while sleeping in the same room, even holding the baby in their arms. The grief after a SIDS death is one of the longest and hardest types of loss to endure. Grieving parents, often young and inexperienced, almost always blame themselves. These parents need immediate support and accurate information about SIDS. They must be convinced that this tragedy could not be predicted or prevented.

Respectfully,

Belmont Funeral Home

Larry Belmont

Eldercare will support senior citizen needs

"Eldercare...Independence for Older Minnesotans" is the 1992 theme for May which is Older Americans month. According to Helen Johnstron who chairs the Minnesota Board on Aging, "The theme emphasizes the need to address the unmet service needs of older Minnesotans by establishing state and local coalition efforts to provide expanded home and community-based care."

One in six Americans is 60 years of age or older and Minnesota has more than 700,000 older citizens.

"1990 census data indicates that 20,106 of the state's seniors reside in the seven northwestern counties of Minnesota", said Faith Rud, director of the Northwest Area Agency on Aging in Thief River Falls. "In other words, 22.3 per cent of northwest Minnesota's population is 60 years of age or older, with 85 and older being the fastest growing group. This raises some serious issues regarding quality of life for the seniors in their communities."

To respond to the increase in frail at-risk elderly, the federal Administration on Aging has initiated the Eldercare campaign supported by State Units on Aging and Area Agencies on Aging nationwide.

Purpose of the campaign is to involve a wide variety of organizations including government, business and labor, religious and charitable, educational and community service groups in developing "senior friendly communities" which support independent living for older citizens.

Northwest Area Agency on Aging, a program of the Northwest Regional Development commission, has formed an Eldercare Futures Task Force to expand discussion on needs of seniors and strategies to develop community based systems to respond to those needs so options to nursing homes exist for older persons.

"Just a little help at the right times can significantly delay nursing home placement, saving substantial personal and public dollars," stated Rud. "It is everyone's responsibility to ensure that the needed help and support is available in the community."

NW Area Agency on Aging receives Older Americans Act funds through the Minnesota Board on aging and is sponsored locally by the Northwest Regional Development commission to engage in planning, administration and program development activities that support the dignity and independence of older citizens.

Many special activities take place at senior centers throughout the region during Older Americans Month. Contact your local senior center for activities in your community.

Dear Readers,
Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, or "crib death", occurs very quickly. Parents have found their child dead while sleeping in the same room, even holding the baby in their arms. The grief after a SIDS death is one of the longest and hardest types of loss to endure. Grieving parents, often young and inexperienced, almost always blame themselves. These parents need immediate support and accurate information about SIDS. They must be convinced that this tragedy could not be predicted or prevented.
Respectfully,
Belmont Funeral Home

Eldercare will support senior citizen needs

"Eldercare...Independence for Older Minnesotans" is the 1992 theme for May which is Older Americans month. According to Helen Johnstron who chairs the Minnesota Board on Aging, "The theme emphasizes the need to address the unmet service needs of older Minnesotans by establishing state and local coalition efforts to provide expanded home and community-based care."

One in six Americans is 60 years of age or older and Minnesota has more than 700,000 older citizens.

"1990 census data indicates that 20,106 of the state's seniors reside in the seven northwestern counties of Minnesota", said Faith Rud, director of the Northwest Area Agency on Aging in Thief River Falls. "In other words, 22.3 per cent of northwest Minnesota's population is 60 years of age or older, with 85 and older being the fastest growing group. This raises some serious issues regarding quality of life for the seniors in their communities."

To respond to the increase in frail at-risk elderly, the federal Administration on Aging has initiated the Eldercare campaign supported by State Units on Aging and Area Agencies on Aging nationwide.

Purpose of the campaign is to involve a wide variety of organizations including government, business and labor, religious and charitable, educational and community service groups in developing "senior friendly communities" which support independent living for older citizens.

Northwest Area Agency on Aging, a program of the Northwest Regional Development commission, has formed an Eldercare Futures Task Force to expand discussion on needs of seniors and strategies to develop community based systems to respond to those needs so options to nursing homes exist for older persons.

"Just a little help at the right times can significantly delay nursing home placement, saving substantial personal and public dollars," stated Rud. "It is everyone's responsibility to ensure that the needed help and support is available in the community."

NW Area Agency on Aging receives Older Americans Act funds through the Minnesota Board on Aging and is sponsored locally by the Northwest Regional Development commission to engage in planning, administration and program development activities that support the dignity and independence of older citizens.

Many special activities take place at senior centers throughout the region during Older Americans Month. Contact your local senior center for activities in your community.

Sorrels guest artist

Gary Sorrels, wildlife artist from Roosevelt and his wife Ann, will be special guests when the annual sponsor banquet for the Thief River Falls Ducks Unlimited chapter is held Tuesday, May 26, at the lower level of Lon's Restaurant in Thief River Falls.

Social hour will start at 6 p.m. with dinner to be served at 7:15 p.m.

Sorrels has been a full-time professional wildlife artist since 1970 and has had nine limited edition prints published, including the last few for personal distribution. His oil painting of bluewing teal entitled "North Country Bluewings" was the winning entry when he was named Minnesota Ducks Unlimited Artist of the Year in 1987. He also finished 13th out of 1,667 entries in a federal duck stamp competition.

The 18x24 original oil painting of "North Country Bluewings" will be sold at auction at the DU sponsor banquet May 26. Another 18x24 original oil painting—a winter scene of whitetail deer—will also be auctioned at the banquet and several prints which are still available will also be for sale. Part of the proceeds from print sales will go to Ducks Unlimited.

For tickets to the banquet or more information, contact Marty Johnson at 681-1930, Steve Hook at 681-4303 or Wes Skibicki at 681-2772.

Impressions . . .

Beth Johnson

As my son and I spent some time this past weekend addressing graduation announcements I felt our life pass before me.

As each announcement was dutifully addressed and sealed and stamped I thought to myself how I would have liked to cease with the formalities of a properly addressed announcement and, instead, tell each of those on our list the influence they had had in the raising of my son. Yet, volumes could not have contained the gratitude I had for all and how their individual lives had touched my life, and my son's life.

Of course, there was the usual assortment of relatives included on our list—the grandparents and aunts and uncles and great aunts and uncles and cousins. Each of these in his or her own way had touched my son's life. Some had been able to spend more time with him than others. Some had barely made his acquaintance. Some had spent time under our roof. Some of the relatives are now feeble. Some are just in their youth. Some we have laughed with and cried with. Some have upheld my son each day in prayer. All of them are bound to us by the ties of family. These ties are sometimes taken for granted, but never forgotten. The blessings family have bestowed on my son are too many to number. We are blessed.

Our family has lived in several places as we have served various congregations. These groupings of people have also touched the lives of all of us. As I ponder the ways in which the persons in our congregations have influenced my son I find that the influences they each had were many and varied. As announcements were sent to these former parishioners I wondered if they realized how much they had touched our lives.

The encouragement given to preacher's kids from members of the congregations is a blessing. It's hard being the preacher's kid. A bit of encouragement, no matter how trivial, goes far in the positive raising of these children. Blessings on all of those in our congregations who through the years have encouraged my son.

Some of the announcements were addressed to friends of our family. Friendships that endure through the years are rare. They are to be treasured. Friends were godparents for my son. Friends were those who visited us in the hospital after his birth so many years ago. Friends were those who shared the joys of mutual child raising. Our son, and we, have been blessed by friends.

On our list also were educators. You in education may see your job as merely a job. But, in case you don't already know, your job is of much influence in the lives of those you educate. You not only teach the subject, but your attitudes of life sneak through the subject matter into the lives of the students. You bless the students you teach with knowledge and also with the life views you have. Our son has been touched by you. Our lives have been enriched.

As I was pondering the influences of so many persons in the life of my son I realized that there were others who in their unkind ways also influenced his life. These too are blessings as they allowed him to learn the value of kindness and the destruction of unkindness—truly lessons that one needs to learn in life.

I am preparing to see my son graduate and then to see him start a new venture in his life. I can only hope and pray that those whose lives he will touch, and whose lives touch him, will influence him in good ways. This mother ponders in her heart the past and prays with all of her heart for the very best for this first born son for the future.

Pennington County reviews solid waste background

Editor's Note: Following is the first in a series of three articles regarding the Pennington county solid waste recycling and disposal program. It deals with the background and establishment of the Future Fuel facility and county involvement.)

by Howard Person
Pennington County
Solid Waste Officer

Pennington county's recycling and landfill reduction efforts began in 1985 with the construction of the current county facility. At that time the recyclables market was just getting underway and the state of Minnesota—through the Office of Waste Management (OWM) and Pollution Control Agency (PCA) had a keen interest in reducing or eliminating altogether the use of landfills as a means of waste disposal.

Future Fuel, Inc., and the county, with the help of a grant and low interest loan from OWM, built the current Future Fuel facility which is designed to selectively remove marketable recyclables either mechanically or by hand and separate wet material from dry. The profitable recyclables were then sold to various recyclers or manufacturers and the dry material made into a burnable pellet called "densified refuse derived fuel" (dRdF).

The state was also interested in composting municipal solid waste as a means of landfill use reduction, so the county also began to experiment with this process, using the separated wet fraction of the processed garbage.

In 1989 Minnesota formalized its waste reduction goals by passing the "SCORE" legislative package. This legislation set deadlines for counties to meet certain waste reduction measures. Among these measures were rules which prohibited putting appliances, yard waste, used oil and several other items in the regular garbage stream as well as a mandate to recycle at least 25 per cent of the garbage produced in the county.

While most of the items mentions were manageable, the 25 per cent recycling goal caused two big problems. Because everyone was required to recycle, the limited markets available now became overloaded. Instead of getting a few dollars for recyclable material, we were generally lucky to give them away—depending on the item.

In addition, we don't have mandatory garbage collection. However, according to SCORE rules, the 25 per cent recycling must apply to all waste generated in the county and not just what's collected. Therefore additional recyclables must be removed in the waste stream and recycled even though it is not cost effective to do so.

Over time, the bugs were worked out of the pelleting operation but the PCA began to develop concerns about burning the pellets in small furnaces. The state and county conducted emission tests on the stack at Northwest Medical center and found no problem. As a result of these tests the hospital was permitted to burn the pellets but the PCA said each stack must be tested before it will grant permission for the pellets to be used in that furnace. Schools and small companies—the likely users of the pellets—are reluctant to consider using them because testing costs exceed $50,000.

The ethanol plant at Walhalla, ND, burned the pellets for a time before the North Dakota Department of Health shut it down for burning the pellets without a permit.

Other larger companies also shy away from burning the economical pellets for fear of closer scrutiny by the PCA and others. While some markets are being developed, it remains a slow and difficult process to move the pellets.

During this time the county had been working to perfect its composting process. This also created problems since the compost had not been permitted by the PCA and was not allowed to leave the site without a special permit. Sizeable amounts of the composted material have built up over time, making room a problem.

Muddy soils have not always allowed the compost to be turned on a regular basis, and this has caused some odors and justified complaints. Limited testing has now been done and the county is satisfied with the compost it is able to produce.

To bring the composting fraction of the garbage up to specifications required by PCA and OWM, the county needed to make some major modifications to the existing site. To help cover the cost, the county applied for and received a capital assistance grant from OWM amounting to 50 per cent of the project cost. Even so, the upgrade will cost the county about $480,000 for its share of the project.

A permit from PCA to upgrade the facility has been applied for and, once received, will allow the improvements to the facility to begin. With these improvements, the compost currently on site will be screened and removed. All future composting will be conducted on a concrete pad with a roof over it and the entire facility will have a screening fence put up along the side of the site facing highway 32.

Odor should be substantially reduced as the old compost will be removed and new compost will be sheltered and turned on a regular schedule. Processing will be speeded up and the finished compost removed from the facility on at least an annual basis, keeping total on-site volume down.

While securing pellet markets has been a problem, some businesses have now expressed an interest and test burns have been conducted. Further, solid waste officers from the 11 counties of northwestern Minnesota are working to develop a regional recyclables cooperative to help stabilize recycled material volumes and markets. Joint ventures and partnerships with other counties are also being explored to see where counties working together can recapture or reduce costs in a number of areas.

Extensive mandatory recycling and stricter rules regarding the disposal of municipal solid waste are new to northwestern Minnesota. To say these new rules have caused some concerns and added expense would be quite an understatement. However, counties are adjusting to the new regulations and the costs associated with these efforts.

In the second article of this series on solid waste, we will take a closer look at the state mandates that counties are required to address and how Pennington county intends to meet those challenges.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

It is good to see that America cares about pollution problems. Everywhere I go I see highway adoption signs, and they have the names of people who care a lot about the environment.

I myself care for the environment by recycling cans and plastic bags. When my shed gets full, I'm going to bring the cans and bags to the recycling center. We should all pitch in and make the world a better place to live.

Sincerely,
Grant Asp
Goodridge, MN.

Gayle Clifford is recipient of Sioux Award

Gayle A. (Kielty Kenville) Clifford of Grand Forks, ND, and a resident of Thief River Falls for a number of years, is one of four alumni of the University of North Dakota who will receive the UND Alumni association's highest honor—the Sioux Award—during the 1992 Alumni Days celebration May 20-22.

She graduated as valedictorian of her class at St. James high school in Grand Forks, attended the College of St. Catherine in St. Paul from 1960 to 1961 and graduated from UND in 1965 where she majored in home economics and textiles with minors in science, social sciences and education.

Gayle is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Kielty, who owned Kielty Motors in Grand Forks for about 30 years. In 1986 she married UND president Thomas J. Clifford who is retiring in June.

As wife of the college president, she entertains about 3,000 people each year for teas, receptions and dinners at their home on the UND campus. President Clifford attributes much of his success to the enthusiasm of Gayle, who attends numerous events and works hard behind the scenes.

She is an active volunteer in the community and serves on the board of directors for the North Dakota Museum of Art and the Grand Forks Education foundation. She is a member of the FEO, American Association of University Women and the Chester Fritz auditorium renovation committee. She was a board member of United Hospital in Grand Forks from 1979 to 1986 and has chaired galas for the American Diabetes association and the North Dakota Museum of Art. Gayle is also active in the Alpha Phi sorority and has held various offices as an alumna.

Since 1987 the company has served the Thief River Falls area from its office in Fosston. Location of an office here is an effort to better serve customers in this area, Strande said.

Strande has seven years of experience in the turf care business, working for four years with Prolawn, Inc. in Fosston before taking employment as the head chemical applicator for the Tournament Players Club in Scottsdale, AZ.

HATS OFF TO 4-H

Leader's Council

Pennington county 4-H leader's council meeting was called to order by president Beth Natvik on April 6 in the courthouse meeting room. Flag pledges were said, roll call taken and secretary and treasurer reports approved with a balance of $1,663.02 in the treasury.

Ryan Browning read a thank-you note to the council from Carla Sorenson for her scholarship award. An expression of thanks was extended to everyone who assisted at the regional Knowledge Bowl event.

Reminder was given that the share-the-fun contest would be April 10 at the Lincoln auditorium. Inter-State committee reported on plans for the Kansas 4-H exchange visit and expects to have evaluation sheets from those attending at the next meeting.

Beth Natvik and Lesley Helgeland were selected to attend the Citizenship Washington Focus in July. Ryan Browning and Lesley Helgeland gave a report on their St. Paul Capital Experience trip. Barb Natvik and Linda Helgeland shared information they had received at the MNAVA forum.

County 4-H agent Van Swanson reported that there was poor attendance at the last project meetings. He encouraged more 4-Hers and their parents to attend the next session on May 9 because very helpful information is given in a variety of project areas. The county fair food stand committee is meeting to decide on menu, workers and shifts.

There will be job openings at the state fair for interested 4-H members and they may contact the county extension office for information.

Discussion was held on changes in the Community Pride program. Two members of the winning Community Pride display will attend the state fair and be asked questions about their project and booklet. The 1992 county fair premium lists will be printed soon and one copy made available to each 4-H family. Cost of making picnic tables for the food stand was discussed.

Volunteer screening will be done on all volunteers for 4-H events. Camp counselors are expected to attend camp counselor training and be counselors for Lake Sandhill 4-H camp and 4-H day camps. Market animals must be weighed by May 10. Cost for the YLC program in June is $130 per person.

May 1 was noted as the deadline to drop or add 4-H projects for the year. The Hot Dog award went to everyone who helped with Knowledge Bowl and the Farm Safety Kit.

Trees planted this Saturday at Itasca park

Rotary clubs from Fosston, Bagley, Walker, Park Rapids and two from Bemidji will spearhead a tree planting project Saturday, May 16, beginning at 9 a.m. at Itasca state park. Other volunteers interested in assisting will be welcome.

Volunteers will gather one-half mile inside the park's east entrance off highway 200. The project is a continuation of last year's Centennial Forest planting when approximately 150 volunteers planted 17,000 red pine and jack pine seedlings on a 23-acre tract.

The project is being coordinated by Paul Rundell, regional resource management coordinator for the Minnesota DNR, division of parks and recreation and Richard Haugo of Guthrie, a "cluster representative" for the six Rotary clubs.

The park has purchased 30,000 seedlings and hopes to have enough volunteers to plant 15,000 to 20,000 this Saturday. Deer are fenced out of the plantation for a period of eight to 10 years to protect the seedlings.

"Ants'hillvanie" was the title of the children's musical presented by Northrop elementary school students from kindergarten through fifth grade Thursday afternoon in the school gymnasium. The musical was directed by Ruth and Konnie Christensen and attended by students and a number of relatives.

INSURANCE Update

by Carol Nelson

When plaintiffs sue for liability in the case of negligence, they often set the amount by using ten years of a defendant's earnings as a guideline. Assuming that the homeowner has an annual income of $30,000, a minimum of $300,000, limits would have to be carried to comply with this guideline. As an added measure of protection, it is a good idea for a homeowner to purchase a personal excess liability policy. This added coverage protects homeowners against personal lawsuits arising from accidents involving their automobiles as well as their homes. Personal excess liability policies are available at reasonable cost and are issued at limits of $1,000,000 or more. This coverage would be over and above, (or excess) the homeowner's liability limit.

Travel

Floyd and Fern Hesse arrived home on April 29, from a two week vacation. They had left on April 16, driving to Elk River, to spend the night with their daughter, Diane and Milt Grinde and girls. Then they flew out of Minneapolis to their daughter, and son-in-law, Nancy, and Karl Mattson in Springfield, VA. They were there for Easter and while there they toured the White House and other interesting attractions in Washington, DC. On Monday they left with Karl and Nancy driving to Nashville, TN, seeing all the sights, Hall of Fame, Music Row, Opryland and Opryland Hotel. The biggest thrill of the trip for Fern was touring the House of Cash, and also Johnny Cash's home, plus lots more including, Reba McIntyre's home. On Wednesday they drove to Floyd's Army Reunion at Lake Malone Inn in Dumore, KY. All four of them enjoyed it immensely. On Saturday they drove back to Nashville and attended the "Grand Ole Opry Show," which has been a life long dream of Fern's. Returning to Springfield on Sunday, they prepared for the return trip home. Karl left on Monday for work assignment in Canada, and the Hesses flew back to Minneapolis on Tuesday, again spending the night at Grinde's, and driving back to Plummer on Wednesday. Gov. Carlson signs Omnibus tax legislation

Governor Arne Carlson has signed the first major piece of budget balancing legislation of the 1992 session. The 1992 Omnibus Tax Bill contains no general tax increase and fully protects the homestead credit. "This is a tax plan that does not balance the budget at the expense of homeowners and farmers," said Carlson.

(The Omnibus Tax bill contains provisions for Thief River Falls to conduct a referendum on the issue of a one-half of one per cent local sales tax.)

The Governor said the 1992 tax bill followed most of the proposals he outlined in his budget message last March. In that message, the Governor requested no general tax increase and no borrowing to balance the budget.

The tax bill signed by the Governor sets the budget reserve at $240 million, transfers the costs of community local service from the general fund to the local Government Trust Fund, and keeps in place the reduction in commercial-industrial property taxes payable in 1993.

The bill also requires local units of government to pay sales tax on their purchases. The requirement excludes school districts and municipal hospitals and nursing homes and becomes effective June 1, 1992.

In his budget message, Gov. Carlson proposed a cut in local government aid. He said that he very reluctantly accepts the local government sales tax as a substitute. "The sales tax will have the same basic effect on the budget but a sales tax is permanent," said Gov. Carlson. "I have signed this bill to keep Minnesota's budget in balance without a further prolonged debate."

Honduras Assignment

David Vigstol, formerly of Plummer, now of Lakeville, returned recently from a military deployment with the 133rd Civil Engineering Squadron of the Minnesota National Guards. 61 Civil engineers, firefighters and services staff flew to Las Delicias base in northern Honduras in a MN C-130 aircraft on January 23rd, returning on February 10th. The purpose of the construction effort, according to Commander Major Vigstol, was to "Promote economic development of the northern Honduras area." Their mission was to begin construction on a final 5 miles of road connecting the agricultural area to the northern coast of Honduras. This effort by the guard members (stationed at Minneapolis-St. Paul International airport) is a part of a joint deployment with other U.S. Army and Air Force units. A total of 6100 U.S. Military members will be involved in the Honduran construction project from January to July of 1992.

The event starts with a Friday social-dinner-dance, when the four-member teams for the Saturday golf tournament will be drawn. Teams will be made up of an A-B-C-D handicap player (established handicaps required).

An 11 a.m. shotgun start will kick off the 18-hole Saturday golf scramble.

Tickets, priced at $100, include the Friday evening activities and Saturday's golf tournament. For an additional $25, you can bring your spouse or friend to the Friday social-dinner-dance.

For non-tournament guests, a $50 ticket will cover the cost of the Friday night activities, and the $25 additional guest offer is also available.

Ticket chairmen are Roger Reuter and Tom Williams.

Northwest Airlink and Northwest Airlines will provide two free international tickets for the hole-in-one contest portion of the tournament, and will award a free golf ball to each tournament participant who reaches the green at No. 4.

Scramble prizes include $600 merchandise prizes and four round-trip tickets from Thief River Falls to any Northwest Airlines destination within the 48 contiguous states for the first place team. Track teams run at Grand Forks

A couple of strong individual efforts highlighted Thief River Falls performances Monday at the Grand Forks Last Chance Invitational high school track meet.

Grand Forks Red River won both the boys and girls team titles. Thief River Falls girls placed fourth and the Thief River Falls boys were eighth in the 10-team fields.

Jodi Kruta led the Thief River Falls girls with a first place 48.08 in the 300-meter hurdles, second places in the 100-meter hurdles and 100-meter dash and a third in the long jump.

Shane Skeim and John Wallberg turned in the top performances for the Thief River Falls boys. Both turned in eye-opening efforts in the discus, where Skeim had a 164-foot second place toss and Wallberg recorded a 151-1 fourth place throw.

Skeim, pointed out Thief River Falls boys coach Tim Olson, is closing in on the school record – a 165-2 mark turned in by Tony Dorn Jr. back in 1974.

Wallberg added a second place 48-0 throw in the shot put.

"I'm really pleased with the performances in the field events," pointed out Olson. "Those were tremendous efforts."

Red River boys finished with 210 1/3 points, followed by Grand Forks Central with 88, West Fargo 54, Grafton 43, Minto 32, Cavalier 32, Thompson/Central Valley 31, Thief River Falls 28 1/2, Drayton 31 and Northwood 10 1/3.

The River girls collected 165 points, followed by Central with 131, West Fargo 58, Thief River Falls 55, Cavalier 48, Northwood 36, Grafton 26, Minto 14, Mayville-Portland 13 and Thompson 12.

"We felt real good about our performances," said Thief River Falls girls coach Glenn Chiodo. "We had a chance to compete against a lot of different teams – people we haven't run against before. It was fun. Our kids did a nice job. We had a number of kids who just missed placing – they're really close."

In addition to the Kruta performances, which have become standard fare for the versatile, multi-sport standout, Chiodo said a first-time placing for the 800-meter relay team (featuring Kelly Skeim, Allison Myers, Carly Dee and Jessica Bugge) was a highlight.

Both Thief River Falls teams will be at the Fergus Falls Otter Invitational Thursday at 3:15 p.m. The girls will compete in the rescheduled Bemidji Jaycees Invitational Saturday at 9 a.m., and both teams close out the regular season schedule Monday at the East Grand Forks Lions Invitational starting at 4 p.m.

North Sub-Section 8AA boys and girls track meet will be held Thursday, May 21, at Detroit Lakes.

Pioneers sweep Trojans

Northland picked up a one-run win in the opener, then went nine innings to take the nightcap and complete a wind-swept Minnesota Community College Conference baseball doubleheader sweep over host University of Minnesota-Crookston Saturday.

The Pioneers finished with a 4-0 mark against the rival Trojans this spring by adding the 5-4, 8-4 Saturday wins to earlier 11-1 and 7-5 decisions.

"It's always nice to sweep," acknowledged Northland coach Terry Wiseth.

The winners didn't produce much offense, but solid pitching and error-free defense carried Northland past University of Minnesota-Crookston 5-4 in Game 1.

Northland, limited to four base hits, bunched its scoring in the first two innings. RBI singles by Mike Swanson and Ryan Bothum gave Northland a 2-0 first inning lead. Two walks and a two-run error made it 4-0 in the second inning, and it became 5-0 when Kevin Hanson was credited with a steal of home when he broke for the plate on a UMC pick-off attempt at first base.

"We didn't hit the ball as well as we probably should have, but we won, and winning is the name of the game," said Northland coach Terry Wiseth.

Northland's Dennis Carpenter had a complete-game pitching performance.

Hanson was 3-for-4 and Jesse Coffield went 2-for-4 as the Pioneers out-hit the Trojans 9-7.

Hanson pitched the first 4 2/3 innings before giving way to Dan Boushee, who threw 4 1/3 shutout innings, striking out seven of the 14 batters he faced. He also picked off two runners.

TRF baseball team has busy schedule

Eight of the next 11 days are booked with Thief River Falls baseball games as the Prowlers close out their compacted 1992 regular season high school schedule with a flurry of activity.

Nearly half of the Prowlers' regular season schedule will be sandwiched between today's 4:30 p.m. game at Red Lake Falls and a Friday, May 22, match-up at Irv Wilson Field against Roseau.

Thief River Falls will be at Bemidji Thursday and will compete in the Iron Range Classic – an eight-team tournament hosted by Virginia and Hibbing – Friday and Saturday.

Regular season schedule ends next week with games Monday at Crookston, Tuesday at home against Bemidji, Thursday (May 21) vs. Middle River-Marshall County Central in Middle River and Friday (May 22) vs. Roseau.

"It's very important we play well the next two weeks," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Tracey Wensloff, whose team was a 5-3 winner over Warroad Thursday in its latest outing with an error-free defensive effort and a route-going pitching performance by Mitch Bernstein. "We played well defensively, and Mitch threw very well, except for one inning."

Match-ups in the Iron Range Classic will feature first round Friday games at two sites as Cloquet plays Duluth Central at 4:30 p.m. and Thief River Falls takes on Virginia at 7 p.m. in Virginia, while Crosby-Ironton is paired against Superior, WI at 4:30 p.m. and Warroad tackles Hibbing at 7 p.m. in Hibbing.

Saturday's semifinals and finals will include championship round games at Hibbing and consolation round games at Virginia. Thief River Falls will be playing at 1:30 p.m. Saturday with a first round win or 12:30 p.m. with a first round loss – against the Cloquet-Duluth Central winner or loser.

North Sub-Section 8AA tournament play will get underway Tuesday, May 26. Seeding positions will be announced May 20.

Pirates beat Rebels

Crookston scored eight times in the top of the sixth inning Monday and went on to beat Middle River/Marshall County Central 12-5 in a high school baseball game played at Middle River.

"It went pretty well until the sixth inning," reported Middle River/Marshall County Central coach Jerald Hagen, "then the flood gates opened."

The Rebels scored four times in the bottom of the fifth for a brief 5-2 lead.

Crookston combined seven base hits with two Middle River/Marshall County Central errors in its game-winning sixth inning outburst. The Pirates wound up with 16 hits for the day off three Rebels pitchers. Troy Myhrer was the starter and loser on the mound, giving up six runs and 10 hits in five innings of work. Jamie Lorenson got just one out before Rick Wappula took over.

Offensively, Wappula, David Blazek and Jarrett Walton had two hits apiece in the Rebels' 10-hit effort.

The Rebels, who lost an 8-6 Friday game to Red Lake and dropped an 11-3 Saturday decision to Ada-Borup/Gary/Norman County West at the Ada Invitational, fell to 4-5 for the year. They were scheduled to play a doubleheader at Fertile-Beltrami today (Tuesday) before hosting Warroad Thursday at 3 p.m. in Middle River.

Hibbing takes pair from NCC

Hibbing's offense produced 30 runs and 25 hits as the host Cardinals rolled to a 17-9, 13-2 Sunday make-up doubleheader sweep over Northland in Minnesota Community College Conference baseball.

"We just didn't have any arms left," pointed out Northland coach Terry Wiseth, whose team was coming off a Saturday twinbill at the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

The losses dropped Northland to 9-13 for the year, 8-12 in the MCCC Northern Division. The Pioneers close out the 1992 season this week. They were scheduled to host the Bemidji State University junior varsity today (Tuesday) in a 2 p.m. doubleheader. They will stage an alumni game Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. at Irv Wilson Field and will be back at the Northland diamond Saturday to finish the year with a 1 p.m. MCCC twinbill against Vermilion.

Hibbing	17

An eight-run fourth inning wiped out a 6-5 Northland lead and carried Hibbing to a high-scoring 17-9 first-game victory.

Dan Boushee, after picking up a win in an extended relief appearance at UMC the previous day, got through three innings against Hibbing before tiring. He left with a 6-5 lead, but Jarrod Spoor and Nate Carlin couldn't shut down the hard-hitting Cardinals in relief. Spoor took the loss.

Northland had a solid offensive game of its own as Dennis Carpenter, Kevin Hanson, Mike Swanson and Spoor had two hits apiece. Hanson and Marvin DeMers hit first inning home runs and Swanson had a fence-clearing shot in the sixth.

NCC alumni game

Annual Northland Community College baseball alumni game – which isn't really an alumni game – will be played Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. at Irv Wilson Field.

While its called an alumni game, Northland coach Terry Wiseth said the game is open to all interested ball players, whether or nor they attended Northland or played baseball for the Pioneers.

Those planning to try their hand at beating the current Pioneers should be at the diamond ahead of time and they should supply their own equipment.

Program is praised

Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club received a letter this spring from Skip Feltier, Association Director of the Minnesota State High School League, complimenting the group's efforts in putting together the Section 8 high school hockey program.

"I just wanted to take this opportunity to tell you how impressed I was with your program," wrote Feltier. "I think this is one of the best high school programs I have seen, and I have had the opportunity to see many state tournament programs from all over the country. I was especially impressed with the articles and your look at past Section 8 champions. It is a program that is both informative and interesting. I'm sure hockey players' parents and friends of hockey find it to be a real souvenir."

Baseball JV is defeated 11-9 by Crookston

Thief River Falls junior varsity high school baseball team suffered its first loss of the 1992 season Tuesday – an 11-9 decision at the hands of Crookston on the Northland Community College diamond.

Crookston bunched most of its scoring into a five-run fifth and a six-run sixth inning to overcome 5-1 and 9-6 deficits.

Jason Hruby was 3-for-5, while Steve Burslie and Preston Treat both went 2-for-4 in the 11-hit Thief River Falls attack.

Crookston collected 12 hits off Jason Olson, the starting pitcher, and Burslie, who took the loss in three innings of relief.

Woodworking for Wildlife

Newly revised Woodworking for Wildlife book can make backyards wild. The latest edition has 25 nest box designs that will accommodate 49 species from wood ducks to bats. Like the original edition, the revision was written by Carrol Henderson, supervisor of the Nongame Wildlife Program at the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources. The new edition will be in the bookstore by May 1.

The book has designs for nest boxes that can easily be built by individuals or by groups for community projects. There are several new additions to the book, including plans for the most effective purple martin nest box, a winter roost box for chickadees, barn owl nest boxes and lighter and easier-to-service wood duck boxes. "This is the state of the art nest boxes," said Henderson.

The new edition, published by the Minnesota Bookstore, has 100 color photographs, including those of eggs, nests and appropriate habitat. The original book was published in 1982 and 85,000 are now in use in the United States, South America and even Russia.

Royalties from the new book will benefit the Nongame Wildlife Program. This program is nationally known for providing critical habitat, research and education about Minnesota's 490 nongame species such as loons, eagles, owls and trumpeter swans. Taxpayers support these programs by donations checked off on their state tax forms.

"The new Woodworking for Wildlife book is just another example of ways the funds work for a wide variety of wildlife," said Henderson. "Please check off next to the loon, or have your tax preparer make the donation for you."

Officer of the Year

A conservation officer who hands whistles to children and tickets to drunken boaters has been named Minnesota's Boat and Water Safety Officer of the Year.

Conservation Officer Brad Schultz, 39, of Chisago City, was presented the award by Col. Leo Haseman, Director of the Department of Natural Resources Division of Enforcement. Schultz received the award for his efforts in law enforcement and boat and water education.

"Officer Schultz is doing an excellent job in one of the most difficult parts of the state," said Haseman. "Brad's work area includes a long stretch of the St. Croix River, which during the summer is packed with thousands of boaters, canoeists and swimmers."

In 1991 Schultz logged more boat and water safety hours than any other conservation officer in central Minnesota. He recovered five stolen boats, ticketed eight drunken boaters and made over 160 boating safety arrests or warnings. He also taught classes to law officers, including one on how to detect stolen watercraft. He co-produced a video on river search and rescue procedures, wrote articles on the dangers of drinking while boating, and is a lead worker on the Chisago County drowning recovery team.

While on the water, Schultz gives children small whistles that can be attached to their life vests. In the event they fall overboard or fear for their lives while swimming, children can blow the whistle, which trumpets a sharp, shrill warning.

For catch-and-release to work, anglers need to release medium-sized fish. For walleyes, that means 2-to-5 pounders.

State Park Camping Restored

Legislative action has provided enough funding for Minnesota state parks to restore a normal camping season to 23 parks that were facing a severely limited season, according to the Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

In anticipation to a state funding shortfall and budget reductions that would have limited facilities and services, a number of parks had been removed from the reservation system in March. However, 23 of those parks were put back on the Mistix reservation system this spring.

Those parks will have normal camping operations from Memorial Day weekend through Labor Day weekend. Camping reservations will be accepted for that time period only for Banning, Buffalo River, Crow Wing, Frontenac, Hayes Lake, Kilen Woods, Lake Louise, Moose Lake, Old Mill, Rice Lake, Split Rock Creek, Zippel Bay, Beaver Creek Valley, Charles Lindbergh, Fort Ridgely, Glacial Lakes, Judge C.R. Magney, Lac qui Parle, Lake Maria, Nerstrand-Big Woods, O.L. Kipp, Sakatah Lake and Upper Sioux Agency.

State parks that have been on the reservation system will continue to provide spring, summer and fall camping. However, some of these park may not be available for reservations after Labor Day, including Afton, Blue Mounds, Cascade River, Flandrau, Gooseberry Falls, Bear Head Lake, Camden, Father Hennepin, Forestville/Mystery Cave, Interstate, Itasca, Lake Bemidji, Lake Carlos, McCarthy Beach, Mille Lacs Kathio, Minnesota Valley, St. Croix, Scenic, Split Rock Lighthouse, Temperance River, Wild River, Jay Cooke, Lake Bronson, Lake Shetek, Maplewood, Minneopa, Myre Big Island, Savanna Portage, Sibley, Tettegouche, Whitewater and William O'Brien.

Fort Snelling, Soudan Underground Mine and Hill Annex state parks do not have campgrounds.

Only five state parks will not be on the reservation system – Big Stone Lake, Carley, George H. Crosby Manitou, Monson Lake and Schoolcraft state parks. Rustic camping at these parks is very limited and available on a first-come, first-serve basis only.

Although conditions may vary from park to park, all state parks are open, according to the DNR. Visitors are welcome year-around at state parks to enjoy the state's natural resources, or to use the parks for outdoor recreation or activities. Spring camping prior to Memorial Day and fall camping after Labor Day are also available at state parks, although the facilities and number of sites available will vary from park to park. The DNR advises people to call ahead for information on facilities and services available at the park you wish to visit.

For more information, call the DNR Information Center toll-free in Minnesota at 1-800-766-6000.

To make camping reservations at these and other Minnesota state parks call Mistix at 1-800-765-2267 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays.

Winter Fish Kill Reduced

Month of March didn't exactly come in like a lion in northwest Minnesota this year, but that was good news for lake-country anglers. What had been shaping up as one of the worst winters in a decade for 'winterkill' on many marginal walleye and panfish lakes turned into just another average winter, as moderate March temperatures helped break the ice and improve stream flows over most of the northwest region.

Winterkill is common on certain lakes in mid to late winter, as thick ice and snow cover reduce the amount of sunlight reaching aquatic plants. Photosynthesis and oxygen production slow down or stop altogether, and fish begin to suffocate as dissolved oxygen is slowly used up.

A lake's susceptibility to winterkill depends on a number of factors, including lake size, water depth, winter stream flows, ice thickness, snow depth, length of the winter season and, of course, the number, size and species of fish in the lake. In general, shallower lakes are more prone to severe winter kills than deeper lakes that hold a larger volume of water. This year, the Halloween blizzard of 1991 brought an early winter to most of Minnesota, with many lakes freezing up two to three weeks earlier than normal.

"Less than one-half of one percent of the DNR-managed fishing lakes in our 24-county region experienced winterkill conditions in 1992," said Henry Drewes, Regional Fisheries Project Coordinator for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources at Bemidji. "Other lakes are not managed as fishing lakes. DNR Fisheries does not intensively manage lakes without public access, or lakes without suitable habitat conditions."

"Winterkill is a natural phenomena," explained Drewes. "It's unfortunate when it happens, but it is not a big problem in the overall management of Minnesota's fish resources. As a matter of fact, periodic winterkill can offer some advantages for fish management. Restocking lakes after a winterkill usually results in rapid growth rates and high survival of gamefish in lakes which were previously dominated by rough fish."

Roy Johannes, DNR Area Fisheries Manager at Bemidji, opened ten of his lakes to unlimited fishing from late February through mid-March. "Oxygen levels were low enough for a winterkill in ten out of the 120 managed fishing lakes in Clearwater and Beltrami counties," said Johannes, "but the warm weather in March improved stream flows earlier than we anticipated, and the overall winterkill didn't turn out as bad as we though it would last January.

"We were actually hoping for a good winterkill on our walleye rearing pounds," continued Johannes, "So we wouldn't have any of last year's fish carry over to feed on this year's fry and fingerlings. We achieved that goal because the rearing pounds are shallow."

Boat Ramp Damage

Lack of snow cover on lakes caused ice damage to more than 100 boat launching ramps at public water access sites in northwest Minnesota, according to officials with the Trails & Waterways Unit of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

The most extensive winter damage occurred in west-central Minnesota, where a total of 99 DNR access sites were damaged in Otter Tail, Douglas, Pope, Steves and Grant counties. "Of the 99 sites, 57 ramps cannot be used until repairs are made," said Bruce Winterfeldt, DNR Area Trails & Waterways supervisor at Fergus Falls. "The ramps were pushed back and buckled by the ice, making a safe boat launch impossible."

Further north, another 15 boat ramps were damaged in Becker, Hubbard, Beltrami and Cass counties. "Six of those 15 ramps are not useable," said Dick Kimball, Area Trails & Waterways supervisor at Bemidji, "including the double ramp at Kabekona Narrows on Leech Lake."

"Boat owners should carefully examine any access ramp before attempting to launch their boat," warned Kimball, "because damage often occurs below the water's surface, and is not readily apparent."

Seasonal repair crews from the DNR Trails & Waterways Unit are already busy regrading and resetting concrete planks on the ramps. "Our goal is to have all the not useable ramps made useable in time for the May 9 fishing opener," said Winterfeldt, "and to repair the rest of the damaged sites as soon as possible, probably by early summer."

"With the large amount of damage that has occurred this spring, we ask that people be patient until their favorite access is repaired," said Winterfeldt.

DNR Library

Minnesota's Nongame Wildlife Program has a growing library of wildlife tapes and slide programs available for public use. Each regional office of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has approximately 60 different programs on a variety of wildlife topics that are ideal for schools, community groups and youth organizations. There are no charges for the programs, which are loaned out in a method similar to library procedures.

Topics include loons, eagles, bluebirds, hummingbirds, wolves, owls, bats, rain forest species, piping-plovers, prairie chickens and turtles. The high quality programs are produced by the DNR and national groups such as the Audubon Society.

In addition to video tapes, there are 16mm films and also slide programs with accompanying cassette tapes or prepared texts for speakers.

Nongame Wildlife Program Supervisor Carrol Henderson said, "This is a terrific educational resource for Minnesotans provided by funds from the tax checkoff. We are anxious for people to use them."

A list of available audio-visual materials can be obtained from the DNR nongame wildlife specialist in the DNR regional office in Bemidji by calling 755-2976.

The audio-visual programs are one of many direct benefits of the nongame checkoff on the tax forms, according to Henderson. "Minnesota's skies are home to more eagles, peregrine falcons, bluebirds and trumpeter swans because of the donations from 140,000 families that give generously by the loon on their Minnesota tax forms," Henderson said. "Many other species need help, too."

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS,
PENNINGTON COUNTY
FEBRUARY 25, 1992 - 5:00 PM

Pursuant to adjournment the Pennington County Board of Commissioners met in the Commissioners room in the courthouse in Thief River Falls, on Tuesday, February 25, 1992 at 5:00 p.m. Members present: Koop, Jensen, Murphy, Penning and Swanson. Members absent: none.

Alan Dalen and Dennis Kainz representing the Area Ag Information Center met with the County Board to discuss purpose of the operation of the Center and their request for financial support. After considerable discussion Commissioner Murphy moved that Pennington County match up to $1,000 of any other locally donated dollars to the Area Ag Information Center. Hearing no second the chairman declared the motion dead.

John Ellison, Safety Coordinator informed the County Board that he had tentatively set April 3rd to hold a Right to Know for those employees that have yet to attend the required session. The County Board approved the Right-to-know meeting set for April 3rd, 1992.

Ron Lindberg, Thief River Falls City Engineer, and George Broadwell, Assistant County Engineer met with the County Board to discuss the possibilities of trading a portion of 6th street from the County State Aid Highway System to the Municipal State Highway System and trading Barzen Ave from 8th St South to Hwy 59 to the County State Aid System. In order to make this effective for the coming year action was needed at this meeting. The County Board had questions about the effect this would have on the County State Aid funding and the maintenance difference of these two roads. The County Board requested that the exchange of roads be held over for more information that will allow the County Commissioners more time to study this issue for a possible trade for next year.

Ron Lindberg then discussed the replacement of traffic signal lights along Hwy #32. Pennington County has jurisdiction over part of the system at the intersection of Hwy 32 and 1st St with cost of replacement estimated at $15,000. The County needs to decide where these funds will be coming from. The following resolution was introduced by Commissioner Penning, seconded by Commissioner Koop and upon vote was unanimously carried.

BE IT RESOLVED, that the Pennington County Board of Commissioners intends to use an estimated $15,000 of County State Aid Highway funds to replace traffic lights at the junction of Trunk Hwy #32 and 1st street in the City of Thief River Falls.

County Sheriff, Robert Wold then met with the County Commissioners to inform them that Deputy Sheriff/Investigator, Howard Seim has turned in his resignation effective March 5th, 1992. Commissioner Murphy moved, seconded by Commissioner Jensen to accept the resignation of Howard Seim effective March 5th, 1992 and to allow payment of all vacation and holiday pay accumulated to the date. Motion unanimously carried. The County Board also would like to thank Howard Seim for his years of service to Pennington County and wish him well in the future.

Commissioner Murphy moved, seconded by Commissioner Penning to approve promoting part-time Deputy Sheriff Ben Kuznia to a full time Deputy Sheriff position effective March 5th, 1992. Motion unanimously carried.

WHEREAS, the Internal Revenue Service has issued Tres Reg. 1.103-18 providing that proceeds of tax-exempt bonds used to reimburse prior expenditures will not be deemed spent unless certain requirements are met, and

WHEREAS, the County of Pennington (the "County") expects to incur certain expenditures which may be financed temporarily from sources other than bonds, and reimbursed from the proceeds of a bond; and

WHEREAS, the reimbursement rules apply to bonds issued after March 2, 1992.

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE BOARD OF COMMISSIONER OF THE COUNTY OF PENNINGTON AS FOLLOWS:

1. The County reasonably intends to make expenditures for the described Exhibit A (the "Project"), and reasonably intends to reimburse itself for such expenditures from the proceeds of debt to be issued by the County in the maximum principal amount described in Exhibit A.

2. The County Auditor is authorized to designate appropriate additions to Exhibit A in circumstances where time is of the essence, and any such designation shall be reported to the Board of Commissioners at the earliest practicable date and shall be filed with the official books and records of the County as provided in Section 3.

3. This resolution shall be maintained as part of the books and records of the County at the main administrative office of the County, and shall be continuously available during normal business hours of the County on every business day of the period beginning not more than 30 days after adoption of this resolution and ending on the last date of issue of any bonds issued to reimburse expenditures described in Exhibit A.

4. This resolution is an expression of the reasonable expectations of the County based on the facts and circumstances known to the County as of the date hereof. The anticipated reimbursements set forth at Exhibit A are consistent with the County's budgetary and financial circumstances. No sources other than proceeds of bonds to be issued by the County are, or are reasonably expected to be, reserved, allocated on a long-term basis, or otherwise set aside pursuant to the County's budget or financial policies to pay such Project expenditures. The County has not adopted any allocation, budget, or restriction of moneys or adoption of a requirement or policy to reimburse a fund, the primary purpose of which is to prevent moneys from being available to pay an expenditure the County intends to reimburse with the proceeds of a borrowing.

5. This resolution is intended to constitute a declaration of official intent for purposes of Tres. Reg. 1.103-18 and any successor law, regulation, or ruling.

6. The allocation of proceeds of the bonds to be issued to any Project expenditures described in Exhibit A will be made not later than the later of one year after the expenditure was paid or one year after the property was placed in service.

7. The Project expenditures described in Exhibit A are capital expenditures as defined in Tres. Reg. 1.150-1 (h), including costs of issuance of the bonds to be issued in order to reimburse the Project expenditures.

8. Proceeds of the bonds issued to reimburse the Project expenditures described in exhibit A will be deemed spent only when (1) an allocation entry is made on the books or records of the County with respect to the bonds; (2) the entry identifies an actual expenditure to be reimbursed, or where the Project is described as a fund or account, the fund or account from which the expenditure was paid, and (3) the allocation is effective to relieve the bond proceeds from restrictions on unspent proceeds under applicable documents and state laws.

9. No entity or entities possess simultaneously two or more of the following discretionary and non-ministerial powers with respect to the County: power to (1) remove without cause a controlling portion of the Board of Commissioners of the county, (2) select, approve, or disapprove a controlling portion of the Board of Commissioners of the County, (3) determine the County's budget or require the use of the County's funds or assets for the other entity's purpose; or (4) approve, disapprove, or prevent the issuance of debt obligations of the County.

10. None of the proceeds of the bonds issued to reimburse the County for the Project expenditures described in Exhibit A will be used within one year of the allocation (i) to refund another governmental obligation or (ii) to create or increase the balance in a sinking fund or replace funds used for such purpose, or (iii) to create or increase the balance in a reserve or replacement fund or replace funds used for such purposes; or will be used at any time to reimburse any person or entity (other than the County) for expenditure originally paid with the proceeds of a County obligation (excluding a County inter-fund borrowing); unless (i) such amounts are deposited in a bona fide debt service fund or are set to pay debt service in the next one-year period on any County obligation other than the reimbursement bond, or (ii) the original issue was not reasonably expected to be used to finance the expenditure.

11. No action or inaction by the County with respect to the allocation of bond proceeds to reimbursement of Project expenditures will be an artifice or device to avoid, in whole or in part, arbitrage yield restrictions or arbitrage rebate requirements.

12. The procedures described in this resolution shall cease to apply to the extent not required by Tres. Reg. 1.103-18 or any successor law, regulation, or ruling.

May 12, 1992
CITY OF GOODRIDGE
Residential Antidisplacement and Relocation Assistance Plan under Section 104(d) of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, as Amended

A. The City will replace all occupied and vacant occupiable low/moderate-income dwelling units demolished or converted to a use other than as low/moderate-income housing in connection with an activity assisted with funds provided under the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, as amended, as described in 24 CFR 570.496a(c) (I).

All replacement housing will be provided within three years after the commencement of the demolition or conversion. Before entering into a contract committing the City to provide funds for an activity that will directly result in such demolition or conversion, the City will make public and submit to the Minnesota Department of Trade and Economic Development the following information in writing:

1. A description of the proposed assisted activity;

2. The location on a map and number of dwelling units by size (number of bedrooms) that will be demolished or converted to a use other than as low/moderate-income dwelling units as a direct result of the assisted activities;

3. A time schedule for the commencement and completion of the demolition or conversions;

4. The location on a map and the number of dwelling units by size (number of bedrooms) that will be provided as replacement dwelling units. If such data is not available at the time of the general submission, the City will identify the general location on an area map and the approximate number of dwelling units by size and provide information identifying the specific location and number of dwelling units by size as soon as it is available;

5. The source of funding and a time schedule for the provision of replacement dwelling units;

6. The basis for concluding that each replacement dwelling unit will remain a low/moderate-income dwelling unit for at least 10 years from the date of initial occupancy.

7. Information demonstrating that any proposed replacement of dwelling units with smaller dwelling units (e.g., a 2-bedroom unit with two 1-bedroom units) is consistent with the housing needs of low and moderate-income households in the jurisdiction.

The City may request the Minnesota Department of Trade and Economic Development to recommend that the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development approve an exception to required replacement housing if there is an adequate local supply of vacant low/moderate-income dwelling units in standard condition. Exceptions will be reviewed on a case-by-case basis as described in 24 CFR 570.496a(c) (1) (iv) (C).

B. The City will provide relocation assistance, as described in 570.496a (c) (2), to any lower-income person displaced by the demolition of any dwelling unit or the conversion of a low/moderate-income dwelling unit to another use in connection with an assisted activity.

C. Consistent with the goals and objectives of activities assisted under the Act, the (jurisdiction) will take the following steps to minimize the displacement of persons from their homes:

1. The City will not demolish any properties with State or Federal Funds.

2. The City will not convert any low to moderate income housing to any other use with State or Federal Funds.

D. Definitions for the purposes of this plan are as follows:

A "low/moderate-income dwelling unit" is a unit with a market rental, including utility costs, that does not exceed the applicable fair market rent for existing housing and moderate rehabilitation, as established under the Section 8 existing housing program.

A "vacant occupiable dwelling unit" is a vacant unit that is in standard condition; or in substandard condition, suitable for rehabilitation; or in dilapidated condition and occupied less than a year from the date of the grantee agreement.

An "occupiable dwelling unit" is a unit that is in standard condition or has been raised to a standard condition from a substandard condition, suitable for rehabilitation.

COMBINED NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT AND NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS

May 12, 1992

CITY OF GOODRIDGE
CITY CLERK'S OFFICE
CITY HALL
GOODRIDGE, MN 56725

TO ALL INTERESTED PARTIES, GROUPS AND PERSONS

The purpose of this notice is to identify two separate but related actions to be taken by the City of Goodridge, Pennington County of MN.

On or about May 27, 1992 the City named above will request the Division of Community Development (DCD), Minnesota Department of Trade and Economic Development, to release Federal funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, as amended (PL 93-383) for the following project:

The Goodridge Project
Water system improvements
CITY OF GOODRIDGE
MINNESOTA

Finding of No Significant Impact

It has been determined that such request for release of funds will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment and the above named City has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (PL 91-190).

The reasons for such decision not to prepare such statement are as follows:

1. None of the project activities to be undertaken will affect any known local, state or national historical, archeological resources presently listed or potentially eligible for listing in the National Register of Historical places in any state or local registry.

2. The project will not affect protected or endangered wildlife or vegetation.

3. Some increase in noise, dust or other nuisance levels may occur during construction, however, such disturbances will be temporary and will cease upon completion of the project.

An Environmental Review Record respecting this project has been made by the City named above that documents the environmental review of the project and more fully sets forth the reasons why such statement is not required. This Environmental Review Record is on file at the above address and is available for public examination and copying, upon request, at the City Hall between the hours of 11:00 A.M. to 12:00 noon and 1:00 P.M. to 5:00 P.M.

No further environmental review of such project is proposed to be conducted prior to the request for release of Federal funds.

Public Comments on Finding

All interested agencies, groups and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration by the City to the Office of the Mayor. Such written comments should be received at the City Hall on or before May 27, 1992. All such comments so received will be considered and the City will not request the release of Federal funds or take any administrative action on the within project prior to the date specified in the preceding sentence.

Release of Funds

The City of Goodridge will undertake the project described above with Block Grant funds from the Division of Community development (DCD) under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. The City of Goodridge is certifying to the (DCD) that the City of Goodridge and David Brown Environmental Certifying Officer, in his official capacity as Mayor consent to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision making and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval the City of Goodridge may use Block Grant Funds and DCD and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development will have satisfied their responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

Objections to Release of Funds

DCD will accept an objection to its approval only if it is on one of the following bases: (a) that the certification was not in fact executed by the certifying officer or other officer of the grantee approved by the DCD, or (b) that Goodridge's environmental review record for the project indicates omission of a required decision, finding or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24 CFR Part 58) and may be addressed to the DCD at 940 American Center Building, 150 East Kellogg Boulevard, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101.

Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by DCD. No objections received after June 12, 1992 will be considered by the DCD.

A copy of that Petition is on file at the Court Administrator's office, Pennington County Courthouse, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

The Court has set 1:30 P.M. as the time and June 17, 1992 as the date and the Pennington County Courthouse, Courtroom "B", Thief River Falls, MN, as the place of the hearing to be held in the above entitled matter.

YOU ARE HEREBY SUMMONED AND REQUIRED TO APPEAR BEFORE THIS COURT AT THE HEARING.

THE PURPOSE OF THE HEARING WILL BE:

THE POSSIBLE CONSEQUENCES OF THE HEARING ARE:

1. That all of your rights, powers, privileges, immunities, duties and obligations including any rights to custody, control, visitation, or support existing between yourself and Justin Micheal Bilie, be severed and terminated and that you would have no further standing to appear in any further legal proceedings concerning Justin Micheal Bilie.

2. Failure to appear in response to the Notice or Summons may result in a hearing being conducted without your presence and the appropriate relief may be granted on the petition.
3. Further information concerning the date and consequences of subsequent hearings, if any, may be obtained from the Court by request in writing.

AT THE HEARING YOU HAVE THE FOLLOWING RIGHTS:

1. The child has a right to:

THE CHILD'S PARENT(S) HAVE THE FOLLOWING RIGHTS:

The child's parent(s) or guardian who participate as guardian ad litem or who participate separately concerning the allegations of the petition, have the right to be represented by an attorney. If such parent or guardian who participates separately cannot afford to retain counsel, the court will appoint an attorney at public expense. However, the Court may order, after an opportunity to be heard, that the parent or guardian may be required to pay the attorney's fees (in whole or in part) depending on their ability to pay.

Minnesota-Iowa Trip!

Good Friday, April 17, Ernest and Lois Swanson left on a Minnesota-Iowa relative visiting trip. They enjoyed Friday dinner with Gene and Leone Swanson, and Emma and Albert Kasse of Willmar and Spicer. The Swansons were overnight guests at the Marjorie (Swanson) and Clayton Johnson home in St. James, where the almost daily rain showers commenced. Driving south on Highway 15 in heavy rain for a hundred miles, they traveled through the area where a severe ice storm followed by wind, damaged trees and shrubs, which the farmers were cleaning up and piling in huge piles. This destructive storm covering a 100 square miles occurred in November of 1991, and had left them without electricity for several days. Arriving at West Bend, IA, as the rain subsided, Ernie and Lois toured the Grotto of the Redemption. Father Paul Dobberstein commenced building the Grotto in 1912, and continuing work is now under the direction of Father Louis Greving. Precious and semi precious stones have been gathered from all over the world. The value of the carved white marble statuary from Italy is estimated to be $100,000. Easter Sunday was spent with niece, Donna (Moquin) and Roger Nelson, in Waverly, IA. They toured the city's new housing developments Sunday evening. Easter Monday and overnight was with Lois's sister, Wanda and Reed Weinberg. Other guests were Scott Weinberg and daughters, and Greg Weinberg and family of Plainfield, IA. Tuesday Lois and Ernie drove to Dunkerton, IA, and visited her brother, Clark and wife, Adeline, and were overnight guests. Wednesday the Swansons started northward again, following a brief snow flurry in Iowa, and visited and were overnight guests of Maxine Kaehler of St. Charles. Thursday, April 23 and 24, the Swansons attended the Minnesota Masonic Grand Chapter Convocation, at the Kahler Hotel in Rochester. Ernie participated in the proceedings and was re-appointed Deputy Grand Lecturer of District 6 B in northern Minnesota. Enroute home on Saturday, April 25, was the first day of sunshine on the trip. It was interesting to note that springs work was no farther along than in Pennington county. A highlight of the drive was observing the hundreds of large white swan resting and eating in the wild rice paddies, on either side of the Gully road in SE Pennington county.

Sunday Ernie and Lois drove to Lake Park, and helped their granddaughter, Kimberly Pietila observe her birthday. Other guests were Kim's uncle, Jerry and Marie Pietila and family of Menahga. The Swansons were overnight guests and returned home Monday morning.

Lois, Ernest, Alan, Debbie, Karl, Aaron and Michael Swanson attended the open house and pancake breakfast at the Technical college in Thief River Falls on Sunday, April 26. Lucky winners in the registration drawings were Deb Swanson, who won a sweat shirt, Ernest Swanson, a 50-foot extension cord/trouble light, and Lois Swanson received a credit slip for a manicure in the Cosmetology Department.

Lois Swanson and Gertie Haugen attended Bible study leaders meet at the parsonage Monday evening.

Lois Swanson and Jeanette Hoffman attended the East Pennington Homemakers Spring Tea "Hats Off to Spring" on May 1. Jeanette won the prize for wearing the oldest hat (her mother-in-law's hat, about 100 years old).

TRF schools get debt help

school and related building plans."

These savings will be received by 126 school districts in Minnesota, including 24 districts which are members of the MREA. Qualifying districts have heavy debt service tax burdens due to building projects and low property wealth. To qualify for the funding, a district's bonding debt must exceed 10 per cent of its tax capacity (ANTC). For the Thief River Falls district the applicable rate is about 17 per cent.

Several other school districts in the area which are MREA members also qualify for debt service equalization. Warroad tops the list with $154,770 to be received in 1993 and $321,128 in 1994. Its debt service rate is nearly 38 per cent before the equalization and about 26 per cent after equalization.

Roseau school district will receive $65,708 in 1993 and $139,955 in 1994. Lake of the Woods district will receive $41,845 in 1993 and $77,682 in 1994.

Karlstad-Strandquist will receive $6,760 in 1993 and $10,538 in 1994. Grygla district will receive nothing in 1993 but $2,179 in 1994 and the Badger district will also receive nothing in 1993 and $1,474 in 1994.

The MREA credits Rep. Jerry Bauerly, a DFL legislator from Foley, for guiding the equalization through the legislative process and Gov. Arne Carlson for signing the funding after vetoing it last year.

"There's a trend toward considering school buildings and equipment as part of a child's right to equal access of uniform education as stated in our state Constitution," Rep. Bauerly said. "Debt service equalization provides in property poor areas an equal opportunity for children to have decent buildings and equipment for their education. In the past, school districts used their dollars to repair old buildings. If they built, they couldn't equip the new buildings adequately. This legislation provides bricks and mortar equality."

On average, the state will assume 48 per cent of a qualifying district's debt over its 10 per cent ANTC.

"There is a direct correlation between the poorest districts getting the most aid," Hasbargen stated. "With low agriculture property values MREA districts have some of the lowest tax capacities per student in the state. MREA districts are further hurt by declining student populations. This legislation will help our district provide the facilities needed to educate their students."

Many cellular phones used

Almost 40 per cent of the respondents to a recent Gallup Poll have used cellular telephones to help someone on the road. (The poll determined the impact of cellular telephones on users' lives.)

National Cellular Safety Week, May 12 through 18, recognizes the value of cellular telephones as a tool which improves public safety. Here are some tips on how to make the most of a cellular telephone in an emergency:

- Tell the 911 operators that you're calling from a cellular phone.
- Thoroughly describe where you are. Use the highway mile markers.
- Provide accident details. Who's injured? Is there a fire? Is the road blocked?
- Try to stay at the scene of an accident. If that's not possible, call back, and leave your cellular and home phone numbers.
- Note which direction speeders and drunk drivers are heading, but don't violate the law or endanger yourself by trying to keep up with them.
- Don't call 911 for road or weather conditions. Instead, call the Minnesota Department of Transportation road condition information line, 1-800-542-0220.

Spring weight restrictions on roads lifted

Spring weight restrictions were removed from state highways in the Minnesota north zone Monday, May 11, according to Marv Bates, maintenance engineer for the Minnesota Department of Transportation in Crookston. Roads reverted to the normal 10-ton weight limit except where otherwise restricted.

Roads will remain restricted until further notice for the area north of and including highway 1 from North Dakota to Northome, then highway 71 from Northome to the Canadian border at Pelland. A year-around seven-ton restriction remains in effect on highway 1 between highway 219 south of Goodridge and highway 89.

The Minnesota North zone includes all state trunk highways north of highways 10, 210 and 39, passing through Moorhead, Brainerd and Duluth. Weight restrictions had previously been lifted in the rest of the state with some local exceptions.

Bates said that some routes elsewhere in the state may remain posted or otherwise restricted because of construction projects or road and bridge deficiencies. He added that the signs posted on the road determine the weight restrictions so truckers should be aware of any weight restriction signing.

Anyone with questions about legal weights or weight restrictions on a particular road should contact the Mn/DOT permit office in Crookston at 281-3503 or Bemidji at 755-2942.

Quick response saves Plummer woman's life

(Editor's Note: The following article regarding an area emergency was submitted to The Times by the writer. It is being published for its general public interest.)

by Nancy (Olson) Heisler
Nunn, Colorado

At 1 a.m. on January 12, 1992, we were awakened in our Colorado home by the ringing telephone. My husband Jim answered it and told me that it was my mother, and she was asking to speak to me. Mother is M. Jane Olson of Halstad.

My feet felt like lead as I walked to the telephone, and my heart was pounding. She said hello and then began sobbing as she told me. "We almost lost Julie tonight."

My sister Julie Hesse, who lives on a farm near Plummer, was five days shy of her sixth child's delivery date, so my immediate concern was that whatever was wrong had to do with the pregnancy. In the next few days I would receive astounding evidence of God's hand being played during the previous few days and hours leading to this phone call.

At 10 a.m. of the same day, my Dad (Herbert Olson), who lives in Thief River Falls, called to let me know about Julie. My parents are divorced so each is not aware of what the other parent may have informed me regarding family matters. My brother, Eddy Olson, who lives on a farm near Plummer, had called him to relate that his wife, Linda, a nurse, had saved Julie's life. Julie's husband, Randy Hesse, and Linda are brother and sister and the two families are very close. When I talked with Linda at the hospital about an hour later, she recounted to me what had happened to Julie and the baby, and what actions she had taken.

Randy Hesse left their farmhouse about 10:30 p.m. Saturday, January 11, to assist three teenaged boys who had driven their car into a ditch.

At 11 p.m., Julie felt ill and lay down on her bed. She became weak, nauseous and faint and assumed that she was suffering from the prior effects of a migraine headache. While looking outside to see if Randy had returned, she considered dialing 911 but thought emergency services would not reach her in time. Instead, she called her sister-in-law, Linda, at about 11:30 p.m., then slid down the side of the kitchen cupboard to the floor. She told Linda, "I need help. Please come." The Hesses had not had telephone service for a week, but had been reconnected to service earlier in the day.

Linda works as a nurse at the rest home in Red Lake Falls and normally works the night shift, but her supervisor had put her on the day shift a few days before. When Linda asked the supervisor about the change in shifts, the supervisor told her that she really couldn't say why she did it, but she felt that it was necessary to do so. She couldn't explain any further. As a result of the change, however, Linda was at home when Julie called her for help.

Upon receiving Julie's call for help, Linda thought that Julie was going into a diabetic coma and called her mother, Clara Hesse of Plummer, asking that Clara hurry to Julie and Randy's to take care of the couple's five children while she

Seat belt use promotion to get underway

Pennington County Traffic Project in conjunction with the Thief River Falls Police and Pennington County Sheriff's departments will be encouraging residents to use their seat belts.

The three organizations announced recently that they will participate in a statewide campaign to enforce safety belt use. The goal of the campaign is to increase use of safety belts in Minnesota to 70 per cent by the end of this year.

Some surveys have already been conducted in Thief River Falls and the results are not encouraging. Local officials are hoping that this campaign will encourage residents to buckle up.

"This enforcement effort is aimed at making sure Minnesotans get in the habit of buckling up every time they're in a motor vehicle," said Dave Strong, a representative with the Pennington County Traffic project. "We want to make sure that the members of our community travel safely, both throughout the summer and every time they travel in a car."

The campaign, called "Buckle Down: Avoid the Summertime Blues," is part of a nationwide effort and involves more than 150 Minnesota law enforcement agencies. The enforcement campaign will be integrated into each department's existing traffic enforcement program.

Local law enforcement officials will be checking for seat belt use during routine patrol stops and will take appropriate enforcement action for all violations. In accordance with Minnesota law, all drivers and front-seat passengers, as well as children under age 11, are required to wear safety belts. In addition, children under age four must ride in child safety seats. Violators are subject to a $25 fine.

"The chances of serious injury or death are significantly reduced by wearing safety belts," Strong said. "If everyone wore them, deaths would be reduced by one-quarter in Minnesota." According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, more than 24,850 lives have been saved by seat belt use alone since 1983.

Dedication of a new bathhouse at the Thief River Falls campground was held last week at the campground. With the increasing number of visitors using the campground the old facility just didn't meet demand. Construction on the bathhouse began last summer and was recently completed. The number of camping sites at the campground was also increased. Pictured at the dedication are from left: (front row) Cliff Larson, chamber ambassador, Denise Aune, administrative assistant for the Chamber of Commerce, Alderman Milt Burstad, Jane Mattson, Chamber President, Mayor Robert Reeve, Aldermen Dale Wannberg, Curt Howe, park department, Mike Mongoven, park department, Holly Haugen, chamber ambassador, Alderwomen Jean Heinrichs; (back row) Dave Strong, president of the Convention and Visitors Bureau, Tom Ronchetti, park board, Annette Bergen, Zehlens, Greg Brekke, chairmen of the park board and Julie Olson, director of the Visitors and Convention Bureau.

AFTER GRADUATION, LET'S ENROLL IN THE SCHOOL OF LIFE

Whether the extent of your education has been high school, college, junior college, vocational school or whatever, there comes a time when that institution of learning has taught you all that it has to offer, and then comes graduation. What you do with your life after that depends a great deal on the skills you have acquired, but you should remember that there is a lot more to life than just earning a living. You should be wondering why God put you here, and what purpose He has for you, beyond the limits of your everyday life. For this you need a good postgraduate course, which you can get by attending your House of Worship. Schools can go only so far, but learning about God and the world in which He has placed you can give you the real meaning of life itself.

Learning isn't a means to an end; it is an end in itself.
— Robert A. Heinlein

ADULTS NEED IMMUNIZATION BOOSTERS

Booster doses of Diphtheria and Tetanus are necessary for all adults to maintain immunity. One dose for Td vaccine should be given every 10 years.

Living in an agricultural area where cuts and scrapes are common for most adults, particularly adult males, a booster vaccine of Tetanus/Diphtheria is a wise preventative measure.

The Marshall County Nursing Service will be giving vaccines throughout the county on May 12th, 13th, 14th, 19th, and 20th. All adults are encouraged to receive a Tetanus/Diphtheria booster if it has been over 10 years since previously vaccinated. Second doses of the measles vaccine will be available to 6th & 11th grade students, and 12th grade students requiring it for college entrance.

took Julie to the hospital. She then threw a coat on over her pajamas and quickly drove the two and one-half miles to the Hesse farm.

A few months before, Julie had been diagnosed as having diabetes. The disease was controlled with diet, and her doctor felt that she would no longer have diabetes after the baby was born. This is why Linda first surmised, after having received Julie's call for help, that she was entering a diabetic coma.

Linda arrived at the Hesse farm in a matter of minutes after receiving Julie's phone call. She found Julie sprawled on the kitchen floor, nearly unconscious, with the telephone receiver on the floor beside her. Linda called the hospital to alert them that she was bringing Julie in. She aroused her and helped her to her feet. Julie insisted that she could walk to the door, but began vomiting on herself and Linda, and nearly collapsed.

Linda said that she dragged Julie to the car, but Julie says that Linda carried her. The car was sitting on a patch of ice and the tires spun under an unmoving car as Linda attempted to drive away. Julie remembered telling Linda that she was sitting on a patch of ice. Linda told her, "Don't worry. I'll get off." The car began to move off the ice and they drove away.

As they were travelling at 75 miles per hour on the 15-mile drive to the hospital, Linda frequently reached over to feel for Julie's pulse. When she no longer felt her pulse, she put the gas pedal to the floor, too afraid to look down at the speedometer to see how fast they were travelling. The trip from the Hesse farm took just seven minutes.

Upon their arrival at the hospital, Linda helped Julie into a wheelchair but forgot to put the footrests up for Julie's feet. Julie later reported this to me with humor as she said that her feet were dragging and one foot was run over by the wheelchair. When they arrived in the obstetrics department, Linda refused to leave, and was given the task of taking Julie's blood pressure.

Medical personnel attempted to hear the baby's heartbeat, and checked to see if the baby was coming. Julie remembers a nurse reporting, "I can't hear the baby." It was at that moment that she knew her baby had died.

Dr. Allen Scheuneman was called at home, and, realizing what was happening to Julie and the baby from what he was being told, gave orders to the nurses, called Dr. Julio Krepp to meet him at the hospital, and then sped there himself. Both doctors arrived on the floor at the same time.

Dr. Scheuneman later told Julie that two members of the medical team (one being the anesthetist) working at Julie's surgery had earlier decided to stay at the hospital that night rather than drive home since they lived a long distance from the hospital. If they had gone home as they were scheduled to do, the surgery would have been delayed while waiting for their arrival at the hospital.

Dr. Scheuneman told Randy, after returning from Julie's surgery, that in his 32 years of practicing medicine he'd had other cases like Julie's—three in one month in another town he was practicing in—but he'd lost only one other baby.

Cause of the tragedy was that the placenta had pulled away from Julie's uterus and the baby began to die. Julie began to hemorrhage, but the uterus had closed so that she was not aware that she was bleeding to death. As we talked with a very groggy and grief-striken Julie on the evening of the 12th, and at subsequent times in the week following, the evidence of God's hand began to surface.

When I arrived in Minnesota for baby Kiara's funeral service, Linda and Eddy met me at the Grand Forks, ND., airport. We discussed the events of Julie's ordeal and I thanked Linda for being there when Julie needed her. I told her that if it had been me who arrived at Julie's home to assist her, I would have dialed 911 for help. Linda said that when she arrived at the hospital with Julie, Dr. Scheuneman had told her that if Julie add arrived five minutes later, she would be dead. She received three units of blood to replace what she had already lost.

Linda also said that, since Randy Hesse is self-employed, he did most of his work out in his workshop after the children were put to bed in the evenings, and he would stay out there most of the night. If Julie had attempted to contact him for help when she became ill, she would have had to travel across the farmyard to reach him, and she probably would not have made it.

The funeral service for Kiara Grace Hesse was held on Jan. 17, 1992, the day she was scheduled to have been born. Those of us who viewed her proclaimed her to be the most beautiful baby we'd ever seen.

My family, consisting of my parents and brothers Michael, Eddy and Thomas, and I want to publicly thank our sister-in-law (and wife), Linda Hesse Olson, for saving our precious Julie's life. Julie joins us in giving thanks for Linda's dedication to her profession, her compassion, and for her love. All who come under her care are, indeed, fortunate. Thank you, Linda.

"There, but for the grace of God...," goes Julie.

Seat belt use promotion begins

through Sept. 11 as Minnesota Buckle Down Summer. Throughout the summer and especially during the 10-day periods surrounding the three major holidays — Memorial Day, Independence Day and Labor Day — officers will be strictly enforcing seat belt use.

According to John Harbinson, state coordinator of Operation Buckle Down, "The local law enforcement community is pivotal to our efforts to increase highway safety. We appreciate their support for this important enforcement campaign."

Since its introduction six years ago (1986), Minnesota's seat belt law has resulted in a 27 percentage point increase in seat belt use. The state's overall usage rate is now 52.7 per cent. Studies conducted by the Department of Public Safety show seat belt use higher in the Twin Cities metro area (63 per cent) than in the rest of Minnesota (47 per cent).

The Times' Editorial Opinion

The Times
Thief River Falls, Minnesota

John P. Mattson, publisher
Marvin Lundin, editor
David Hill, associate editor

Editorial opinion published on this page, whether locally written or re-printed from other sources is intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. Opinions expressed by the editor are his own and not necessarily those of other staff members. Opinions expressed in items from other publications may be contradictory to the editor's own views but are offered for their general interest.

Area Taxpayers Have Some Studying To Do

During the next several months residents of Thief River Falls and the wider area of School District 564 will have some studying to do. This fall they will be faced with two questions which will involve how their tax dollars are obtained and how they are used.

The first question will be a proposal by School District 564 for a comprehensive program which will involve construction of a new elementary school for all elementary children in the district. It will also involve the abandonment of several buildings and remodeling of others for expanded or new uses. Overall goal is to reduce the number of buildings operated by the district and thus the extremely high maintenance costs.

Millions of dollars will be at issue for the district and that idea will certainly be frightening to some—perhaps to most—taxpayers who live and/or have businesses therein. There will be many questions to consider and many issues to weigh. When details are more defined and the proposal more formalized there will certainly be a strong effort to provide as much information as possible.

The Times and Northern Watch will be a part of that effort and we will make every effort to do our part in distributing that information and offering a forum to have questions answered and provide for exchange of information. We urge all residents of the district to keep current on what is taking place and to reserve a definite opinion until all the facts are known and presented. The decision to be made in a bond referendum on Sept. 15, 1992, will have major long-term impact on this entire area.

Also of major importance to the city will be a decision on adoption of a city sales tax. Here again we urge no snap judgments nor establishment of positions until more decisions are made and procedures finalized. And once more we will be attempting through The Times and Northern Watch to keep the public informed as to what those decisions, procedures, goals and options are.

We do believe that neither proposal will be an "easy sell" for the proponents. There is a natural aversion to anything involving higher taxes and even to anything involving a change in the status quo regardless of cost. Voters must be shown specific advantages from both perspectives of change and cost to generate support at the polls.

Although involved in a subcommittee regarding the new elementary school proposal, this writer hasn't made any early decisions or commitments to support that question. Our interest is to see as many facts compiled as possible so that eventual future decisions can be based on what is known rather than speculation or projection.

Regarding the city sales tax, we are interested in a priority list as to how funds generated by such a tax will be used. Our initial and present feeling is that voters must have specifics to consider rather than generalities before going to the polls to vote on that question in the November general election.

But today's editorial invitation is simply for everyone who will have a vote on either or both of these two important questions to make every effort to be as informed as possible before casting that vote in a referendum. And that may mean doing a little extra in-depth reading of The Times and Watch.

It's Hospital and Nursing Home Week—Join In The Celebration.

May 10-16 is being observed nationally and locally as Hospital and Nursing Home Week. A number of special events have been arranged by Northwest Medical Center and Oakland Park Nursing home and some of these will involve the public.

Our community is fortunate to have a medical facility that is well beyond the average available for a community our size and for an area with our population. It may not always meet all our needs nor live up to our expectations, but comparatively speaking it is a major asset and deserving of the special recognition being accorded this week.

Take advantage of the events scheduled for the public and make an extra effort to visit the relative or acquaintance now living at Oakland Park or the medical center's convalescent and nursing care unit. Caring people make these long term care facilities work and a thank-you when you meet staff members in the hallway or room or on the street would be in order and appreciated.

We give them our collective thanks for their patience and understanding as well as their hard work and dedication. This week is for you—you deserve it.

Weather Report

"We had several days of exceptionally fine weather the past week, and it looked for a few days as if dry weather and spring has come at last. Appearances however are deceitful, as yesterday brought the hardest rainstorm we have had this spring. It has rained steadily for the past twenty-four hours and it will take at least a week, if not more, to dry the ground so that the farmers can resume seeding. To say the least, crop prospects for this season are not encouraging."

"If Mother Goose had known she was in for this snow job she would have stayed in the south," quipped Arvid Matero, who took the photo above near his home on the Middle river east of the city of Middle River. The goose had begun nesting when the April 21 snow storm hit and nearly covered her. Matero said she stayed on the nest she had built in the spacer ring from the dual wheels on his combine for a couple of days until the snow melted around her. "If she would have left earlier, the snow would have fallen in and covered the eggs," Matero said. Now the goose leaves the nest to feed and gets up to turn the eggs, apparently none the worse for its snowy introduction to homemaking in northern Minnesota.

Strandquist

F. Myrtle Vagle

Today I learned that the Strandquist Senior Citizens are going to resume their regular weekly meetings on May 14. They hope to see all the members and friends there.

The Strandquist Junior Citizens have been busy as usual. Mrs. Schindele's second grade class surprised her on Wednesday with cake, punch and ice cream. They presented her with a quilt that each of the students worked on. Each student dipped their hand in red paint and put their print on a white square of fabric. Jodie Olson then put all the squares together and added the other colors of green, royal blue, red, yellow, and a multi-colored stripe. Mrs. Schindele was very surprised and loved the quilt. The hardest part was to keep it a secret so long, but the wait was well worth it.

Mrs. Helling's third grade class has been very busy bird watching during their spare time. They have been learning about many kinds of birds, their habitats, and many other unique things about birds. They have made bird houses, bird seed pictures and a fact about their most interesting bird. Many children have shared wonderful books with the class too. The featured author for April was Charolette Zolotow, a wonderful children's author. They also had many creative activities. Next week they will begin on a theme about moms, and a special project will be created by each child. They think moms are special, and so do I.

The school now has 11,108 soup labels. Thanks to all who have been saving them.

I heard there is to be a bridal shower at Irene's Cafe next Monday evening. Hope to see you there!

Sunday afternoon Frank and Judy Kleinvachter visited at June Kasprowicz's.

Isaac and Betsy Thompson, and Pearl Thompson spent Tuesday evening at Elsie Lefrooth's. Martys Lefrooth had lunch with Elsie on Wednesday.

Elphie Adls flew to California to visit her sister, Berdell. Joyce Wickstrom took her to the Grand Forks airport, and she was met by Richard Johnson, and some other relatives in Minneapolis, and taken to lunch before flying out. We hope all the shaking isn't going to upset her vacation.

A minister was hard at work on his Sunday sermon when a church member, Mrs. Abernathy, suddenly called on him at his residence. Irritated by this unanticipated caller, the minister asked his wife to go downstairs and speak to her. After a time the minister had heard nothing so he shouted "Has the old hag left yet?" With great presence of mind the minister's wife replied, "Yes dear, but Mrs. Abernathy is here now." Quick thinking don't you think?

Shooting Star Casino in Mahnomen opens Sat.

by David Hill
Associate Editor

White Earth Band of Chippewa Indians and their gaming management team, Gaming World International Inc., are betting that a casino they call the Shooting Star in Mahnomen will turn the area economy around.

Angelo Medure, president and CEO of Gaming World International Inc. said he expects the casino to have a tremendous impact on the local and area economy. Medure noted that gas station attendants in the area have already experienced a 10 to 15 per cent increase.

How can you not expect a significant impact when there are 500 people on the payroll? he asked. All of those people will spend some of their money outside of the casino. In addition, the casino will be purchasing the food for its three full-service restaurants and full service bars from vendors in the area and that doesn't include electricity, utilities, and other equipment needed to operate the 70,000 square foot facility, motel, and entertainment lounge, 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Just about everything but the slot machines were purchased in the area, Medure said. Instead of bidding out everything and risking adverse publicity locally, much of the work was performed by local and area contractors. Medure went on to praise the craftsmen saying that, "The craftsmen you have in this area are as good as I've seen anywhere in the United States. They do marvellous work," he said.

The Shooting Star casino is unique in what it offers in Minnesota. No other casino in the state offers gambling, motel rooms and entertainment in one facility.

Medure speculated that because of the project, land values will probably increase in the area. There are rumors, he said, about a new mini mall for the community. Other business have expressed interest in opening businesses in the community, and a private investor was convinced to build a 60-unit motel nearby.

Saturday, May 23, marks the official opening of the Shooting Star casino in Mahnomen. Monday, the White Earth Band of Chippewa opened the facility to reporters anxious to get a look at the new 70,000 square foot facility.

Workers were swarming over the facility like ants on an ant hill. Much of the facility needs to be completed, even the RV park which was little more than scraped earth, but representatives assured the visitors that phase 1 of the project would be completed by Saturday.

There's no question about the 850 slot machines, and 24 blackjack tables and video keno being ready. They were in operating condition Monday. Whether the casino showroom is completed or not is a matter of speculation but performances begin the night before the grand opening and tickets have been on sale for at least a week. The first show will feature the Elvis Wade show. The Blenders, a group from Fargo, ND, will perform in the Mustang lounge. Future performers will include: Charley Pride, Louie, Louie, The Boxtops, Jack Ely of The Kingsmen, Dennis Yost and the Classics IV, Len Barry, T.G. Sheppard, Lee Greenwood, The Forester Sisters, Billy Joe Royal, Jerry Reed, Juice Newton, Ray Price and T. Graham Brown, and others.

Grand opening festivities will kick off on Saturday, with the noon ribbon cutting ceremony in front of the main casino entrance and culminating Memorial Day night with the 8:30 p.m. grand opening dedication ceremony.

Altin Paul, chairman of the Minnesota American Indian Chamber of Commerce and an enrolled member of the White Earth Band of the Minnesota Chippewa Tribe, will be the master of ceremonies at the dedication.

Ensemble music will be provided by "A Touch Of Brass", with opening remarks by Paulson, Darrell "Chip" Wadena and Jerry Rawley, chairman and secretary-treasurer respectively, of the White Earth Band of Chippewa Indians and Angelo Meduro.

The traditional pipe ceremony and presentation of the Wadena Ancestral Headdress to Darrell "Chip" Wadena by Earl Sargent at 9 p.m. will lead into a memorable raising of the White Earth Reservation flag by Jerry Rawley and Earl Sargent, the American flag by White Earth Reservation American Legion Post 625 and the Canadian flag by Wayne Flett, president and CEO of Mr. Canada's Touring Network Inc. of Winnipeg, Canada.

Highlighting the flag raising ceremony will be song and drum music by the Kingbird Singers and the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by Mr. Willie Morales with Canadian professional singer Michelle Reimer singing "O' Canada". Native American dancers accompanied by the Kingbird Singers will entertain those in attendance prior to the fireworks

Nurseryman at Fertile dies

Melvin Bergeson, 86, nurseryman and horticulturist in the Fertile area, died Thursday, May 14, at the Fair Meadow Nursing Home in Fertile.

Bergeson founded Bergeson Nursery in 1937 and operated it until his retirement in 1971. He was best known for his introduction of the Red Splendor flowering crabapple tree, designated by the Minnesota State Horticulture society as a "Minnesota Heritage Tree" in 1977.

The Red Splendor is considered by the Minnesota Landscape Arboretum to be one of the outstanding varieties ever introduced in Minnesota and is planted along the streets of dozens of Minnesota cities. Several were planted around the John F. Kennedy Center for the Arts in Washington, DC, and several more were presented to the Chinese government as a gift by President Richard Nixon on his trip there in 1972.

For his work in promoting new varieties of trees and shrubs, he received the bronze medal from the Minnesota Horticultural society in 1975 and later was recipient of the R. L. Woodarz award—the highest award of the North Dakota Horticultural society.

After entering Fair Meadow Nursing Home in 1987, he completed a small book on gardening and wrote a weekly column on gardening for the Fertile Journal.

School District 564 to screen pre-schoolers May 26 to 28

An early childhood screening clinic for young children planning to enter school will be conducted May 26-28 in Thief River Falls. Designed to identify any problems at an early age, the screening clinic involves a family interview, and a health and immunization review checking for vision, hearing speech, language, and general development.

This is not the first time the screenings have been conducted, but it is the first time they have been required. In 1991, the Minnesota legislature adopted a new law which requires all children to be screened prior to entering public school, preferably around age three and one-half to four years old. The clinic in Thief River Falls will be held May 26-28 at Redeemer Lutheran church and is for children who will be entering school in the fall of 1992 and the fall of 1993 and have not yet been screened.

As many families as could be identified have been mailed letters explaining the screening requirement. According to Joyce Froschheiser, Early Childhood Family Education, the screening includes a family interview, a health and immunization review, and a check for vision, hearing, speech, language, and general development.

Froschheiser said the offer to screen the children is for all children regardless of whether they plan to go to a public or private school later. "It's just good information to know," she added.

Early detection of a child's health and developmental problems can reduce the need for costly care at a later time and such difficulties can be addressed before kindergarten. The screening will be conducted by trained professionals from the public school system and County Public Health Services at no cost to the families.

The reviews are confidential. How the information is used is also up to the families. Froschheiser said families can "choose to have comparable screenings provided by public or private health care providers". But, she encourages individuals who wish to exercise this option to call her first because there are some specific requirements that need to be addressed by the health official.

Follow up from the screenings include referrals. It used to be, Froschheiser said, that officials were looking for special education needs children during the interviews. Now, officials are looking at such things as development and providing information about services that are already available in the community.

Froschheiser said she sees the screenings "as a positive". It doesn't cost the families anything, and children can get help before they start school.

In addressing parents in the community Froschheiser said, "If you have a child who was born after September 1, 1987, and has not been screened, you should have received a letter with a scheduled appointment. If your child qualifies for screening and has not yet received an appointment, please call 681-8670."

Samantha Langston

Langston is recipient of scholarship

Samantha Langston, a senior at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls, has been awarded a 1992 Minnesota Municipal Beverage association-Eugene O'Brien college scholarship.

Board of directors of the association annually awards scholarships to graduating sons and daughters of full-time municipal liquor store employees based on overall academic excellence and monetary requirements. Samantha's father, Dennis, is manager of Falls Liquor in Thief River Falls.

Samantha participated in Key club, danceline and speech activities at Lincoln and as a senior attended Northland Community college, earning 21 credits in psychology and intermediate Spanish. She will attend St. Cloud State university this fall, majoring in pre-law and minoring in Spanish.

Annual fall conference on aging set

"Seniors Are Classics" is the theme for the Northwest Region's 18th annual fall conference on aging to be held August 20 at the University of Minnesota—Crookston.

"The conference provides educational sessions on topics of concern to seniors and services providers from the seven counties of Region 1," states Faith Rud, director of the Northwest Agency on Aging (NWAAA).

"Our goal is to facilitate learning and keep people up to date on issues affecting seniors. When individuals feel they have a better understanding of the world they live in they cannot help but feel better about themselves," she added.

Sessions are primarily designed for senior but many of the topics provide information that is helpful to caregivers, service providers, elected officials and the general public.

A keynote address at 9:15 a.m. will be followed by workshops on 10 different topics. An opportunity to register for door prizes and visit a resource area with informational booths provided by many public and private agencies and businesses throughout the region will follow the workshops. A dinner at noon will be followed by two concurrent workshop sessions in the afternoon.

The day will end with refreshments, entertainment and door prize winner announcement.

"The fall conference is always an extra special day for those in attendance," Rud said. "The University of Minnesota provides us with an excellent facility and a wonderful meal. UMC staff, particularly Glenice Johnson, are cooperative and conscientious. We are very fortunate that UMC is available and so very accommodating."

Planning task force members are from the seven county region and include Francis Tangen, Twin Valley; Lorraine Strand, Erskine; Ione Olson, East Grand Forks; Charles Lindberg, Kennedy; Eunice Hoff, Middle River; Harriet Heinen, Warroad; Monica Douglas, Lutheran Social Service senior nutrition program; and Glenice Johnson, UMC, Crookston.

"Mark your calendars now," Rud said. "Preregistration is required or a meal can not be guaranteed."

Simplify form for reporting wetland plans

Landowners will now be able to use one form to notify all the appropriate government agencies and departments of planned projects affecting wetlands, according to Ron Harnack, executive director of the Minnesota Board of Water and Soil Resources (BWSR).

"Development of this form was one of the recommendations of a study by the BWSR and the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) on how to simplify wetland regulation," Harnack said. "It's a small but significant step."

In the past, landowners and sponsors of projects involving wetlands have had to first determine which agencies and government units had authority over the wetland—the DNR, the federal Army Corps of Engineers, city, county, and/or watershed district. Then the landowner or sponsor had to contact each organization and supply it with the necessary information.

With the new combined joint notification form, landowners will be able to fill out one form, copy it and send it to each regulatory organization. The DNR and the Army Corps of Engineers will let the applicant know within 45 days if the wetland area falls within their jurisdiction.

Applicants can obtain the forms from any soil and water conservation district or participating local units of government. SWCD phone numbers are listed in the blue pages of the telephone book.

Sharon LaCoursiere

. . . Help!

Can anybody tell me what to do with my junk?

I've been trying to do a little spring cleaning (an ongoing process, more or less, mostly less, over the past few years), and I don't know what to do with my junk.

Oh, I don't mean the bags of clothes and other trash that accumulate at cleaning time. Those are easy to dispose of. I just put them out back with the rest of the garbage and the garbage men take them.

What I mean by "junk" is all of those big items like chairs and sofas, old dressers and such, and all of the other large things that have broken down or worn out over the years and have been replaced or are no longer needed in the house.

I didn't know what to do with these junk things last year or the year before that, either, so I put them in the garage.

Now I am really having a problem, because my little car barely fits in the garage any more, what with all the junk I have in there. Considering the fact that my car is just a little bug and looks like you wind it up with a key somewhere, this means the situation in the garage is bad. Something has to be done. Somehow, I have to get rid of the junk.

The junk is much too junky to be sold at a rummage sale, so I've already ruled that out. Come to think of it, it wasn't so junky before I put it out in the garage and left it there over a couple of winters. Nonetheless, now it is really junk, believe me. I have to get rid of it, somehow.

I noticed, driving down the alleys, that some people put their junk out in back with their trash. I also noticed it seems to disappear. Do the garbage men take it? Do other people come along and take it? Where does it go?

I've always had trouble getting my garbage men to take things. Often bags are left, even those that are neatly tied and not ripped open at all.

I can understand them leaving those bags that are open, or ripped a bit by the dogs (not always my own, I'll have you know), and are too precarious to pick up and might spill all over when they are grabbed. But I don't know why they take some bags and leave others. Besides, weren't they telling us to leave our grass clipping bags open last year? I guess they changed their minds.

Nevertheless, this spring we raked and raked and finally got all of our leaves in bags. I would have loved to burn the leaves, but, first of all, I wasn't sure that was legal. Secondly, it snowed right in the middle of our raking. All the leaves that had been raked into nice piles and left in the yard, at least the ones that didn't blow away, became very damp and stuck together. These leaves would not have burned well.

I did hear that the leaf picker would pick up leaves left in the boulevard, but that hasn't worked well for us other years, either. The problem with this is that the leaf picker comes around during week days and we live right by the high school. It seems that spring and fall leaf-raking time are also school time. Guess whose boulevard is inaccessible during school hours because of all of the cars parked there?

One fall we raked all of our leaves, from both front and back yards, (which is a substantial amount of leaves, I'll tell you) into neat rows on the boulevard. The leaf picker never came to our house. Finally, after the first snow, we shoved them into bags. We were so tired after that, we left the bags standing in the front yard, intending to carry them back to the alley the next day.

A miracle happened! A man came to my front door and said he had seen all of the bags of leaves sitting there and could he have them. I said he sure could! I even gave him the big orange bag with the pumpkin face on it, I was so happy to get rid of them. I often wonder what he was going to do with them…

Anyway, after the snow fell on our leaves this spring, we gave up trying to do much of anything with the piles, and just shoved them into bags. The garbage men didn't take them. I don't know why.

Frankly, I don't know how they knew those particular bags were full of leaves. They looked just like the other bags out there, if you ask me. They must have peeked into them and decided they didn't want my leaves, because they sat there. Bags filled with ordinary garbage disappeared, but the leaves just sat.

At first I considered opening the bags and trying to burn the leaves, but after a few weeks had passed, I decided that opening those bags might be disastrous. Heaven knows what was going on in there with the wet leaves and the heat we'd been having. Besides, I still wasn't sure that would be legal. Finally, I decided to just "leave" them alone, pardon the pun.

You'll be happy to know that some of them have been disappearing lately. I don't know if I have new garbage men who are picking them up accidentally, or if the old garbage men are being compassionate. Did I mention that there were 20 bags of leaves out there? Whether it is accidental or intentional, I'm just glad some of them are disappearing.

Now, back to the junk in my garage. What do I do with it? I'm afraid that if I put it out for the garbage men it will sit there like my leaves. It was bad enough having 20 garbage bags sitting in my alley for a month and a half, I don't need old chairs and dressers sitting there, too. If that happens, I'm sure the city will send the sanitation inspector, or whoever, to tell me I'm being a public hazard or some such.

Sure, I can get someone with a pickup to haul the junk away. But could someone tell me where it should be hauled to? Is there a city dump somewhere?

This is really getting to be a problem. I need some answers pretty fast before I have to park my car outside of my garage, which would be near the bags filled with leaves, which have been there so long that they are getting to the point where they might spontaneously combust and burn up my car. But that would be another story, wouldn't it?

MPCA states rules regarding ash disposal

Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (MPCA) announced recently that rules are now effective to govern the transportation, testing, treatment and final disposal of ash from municipal solid waste combustors in Minnesota.

The MPCA's Citizens Board approved the rules on March 24, following a nine-month period of public comments, hearings and review and approval from the Minnesota Office of Administrative Hearings. The rules became effective after they were published in Minnesota's State Register on April 20.

These new rules replace a temporary ash-management program created by the Minnesota Legislature in 1988. That legislation also directed the MPCA to develop ash disposal rules. The temporary ash-management program was scheduled to end June 30.

Under the new regulations, combustor ash landfills in Minnesota will need to incorporate one of five seperate bottom liner design requirements depending on how the ash tests for concentrations of pollutants.

The rule's most stringent bottom liner requirement is equivalent to the standards in federal law for hazardous waste landfills. Landfill liners help protect underlying soil and ground water from leachate that is created when water passes through the ash. The new rule's requirements also include leachate-collection and treatment systems to properly dispose of this material.

Other key provisions in the new ash-combustor rules require owners and operators of municipal solid waste combustors to test ash quarterly and provide the MPCA with those test results, and to take steps to reduce the quantity and toxicity of the ash being generated from the combustors.

The rules prohibit the disposal of combustor ash with municipal solid waste in landfills. They also regulate the transportation of ash from combustors to ash landfills and the treatment of ash prior to final disposal.

For more information on the MPCA's combustor ash disposal rules, contact Robert Criswell, MPCA, at (612) 296-7273, or toll-free 1-800-652-9747.

County waste management procedures are reviewed

(Editor's Note: Following is the second in a series of three articles on Solid Waste management in Pennington county. Third article will discuss recycling markets, prices for recyclables and what can be expected as more waste is recycled in the future.)

by Howard Person
Pennington County
Solid Waste Officer

Pennington county's long range goal in solid waste management has been to avoid the use of landfills or incineration as much as possible. The county has done this mainly through three processing steps. The first is to remove by hand or mechanically any saleable recyclable materials, second, to divert dry paper and plastic film to a pelleting machine for marketing fuel pellets, and last to compost whatever waste is left, screen out what won't compost and use the compost for reclamation or agricultural applications.

The State of Minnesota goals, regarding waste reduction, have been far more selective. Several of these mandates are already in place and you've seen their effects already. They include such rules as no used tires or major appliances can be landfilled, a ban on disposing of car batteries in a non-recyclable manner and a law against dumping or landfilling used oil and oil filters.

As a result of these rules, the county collects waste tires and charges users the cost of disposal. When you buy new tires, the old tire disposal costs are in the price or often listed separately. These tires eventually end up being retreaded for resale or are ground and burned as a fuel in several large industrial plants around the country.

When you buy a new car battery, you're given $5 or at least asked to bring in your old one to get the new. These car batteries are then collected and most of the materials in them recycled back into new batteries or other uses.

Businesses which sell motor oil are required to accept used oil or post a sign stating where individuals can take their used oil for proper disposal. Most of the service stations in the county will take the used oil for their customers but the county is currently looking for a designated waste oil disposal site. Consequently, acceptance of used oil by any businesses is currently on a voluntary basis. Waste oil that is collected is generally used as a fuel source and burned with only about 10 per cent currently being recycled back into motor oil.

Used oil filters go into the regular waste stream and are removed at the county facility by a magnetic separator. These filters are then recycled as scrap metal.

Large appliances are accepted at the county facility and in the past have been stored until there is a full truck load and sold as scrap white ware. However, this may change in the future and a disposal charge may have to be applied. The Minnesota Pollution Control Agency is currently working on new rules restricting the disposal of materials containing lead or mercury. Many of these appliances have switches containing mercury.

Further, air pollution regulations will soon restrict the discharge of refrigerants into the air because of ozone depletion in the atmosphere. Consequently, freon from air conditioners, refrigerators and freezers will have to be removed before the items can be disposed of. The disposal charge is one method currently being considered to cover the cost of removing hazardous materials from these appliances so they can be properly recycled.

This past January, the state-wide ban on putting yard waste into landfills went into effect. This had little affect on Pennington county as we haven't been landfilling yard waste for some years. However, we have been composting some of the material with good results. The last of the yard waste the county had on hand was recently made available to the public. It was dumped in the parking lot at Oakland Park Nursing home and people were allowed to take what they wanted for free. The eight or so truck loads were gone in less than three days and so it's fairly certain the county will be composting more of this material in the future.

All of the recycling and waste control laws discussed so far are currently in force. But there are several other mandates that have been established but are not yet in effect.

Rules have been established regarding the proper collection and disposal of household hazardous waste with these rules scheduled to take effect June 30 of this year. Household hazardous wastes include materials like paints and thinners, solvents, garden pesticides, concentrated cleaners and other mostly petroleum based chemicals.

Collection and proper disposal of such materials is very expensive. For example, a one-day collection in Detroit Lakes, conducted in 1989, cost over $15,000. To reduce costs and take advantage of current cost share opportunities with the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency, Pennington will be among 11 counties in Northwest Minnesota working together to develop a regional household hazardous waste system.

Waste will be collected in each of the 11 counties with an exchange program to get the usable materials back to consumers. Material that can not be reused will be brought to a regional site, packed for shipment and hauled to an EPA approved incineration facility. By working together, counties should be able to cut the costs of the program by nearly 50 percent as compared to individual collection and disposal.

By January 1 of 1993, all state and local units of government will be required to recycle at least three items. To get a better understanding on how this program would work, Washington school offered to do a pilot program, recycling clear glass, tin and aluminum cans and office quality paper. The county provided Washington with a roll-off container to put the materials in and the pilot program has been functioning for nearly three months now.

Some problems have occurred with some numbers of the general public assuming the roll-off was for their use as well. However, the drop-off site for recycled materials for the public is at the county facility. Further, the main recycled material at the schools is office quality paper, which is not being collected at the county facility due to the strict requirements in what types of paper are acceptable for this grade. If there is over one per cent contamination with other types of paper, the entire load will be rejected at the end market.

Full scale collection will begin in all county and local buildings by September of this year. However, because of the strict grade requirements and additional costs involved, recycling of particular grades of paper will be done only through these special programs where participants are few enough in number to allow individual training at each site.

The one very broad based mandate the state has passed is a goal of recycling 25 per cent of the entire waste stream by January 31 of 1993. Since the county processes almost all of the waste generated in the county this goal can be met. But it will require collecting recyclables that are harder to market and not nearly so cost effective to remove from the waste stream.

With this broad goal comes a requirement for waste haulers to charge for waste removal based on volume rather than a flat fee. In the coming months, Thief River Falls will be converting to this system as have Warren, Hallock and a number of other area communities where your flat fee will pay for a certain number of specially identified bags. If you use more bags than those allotted, you will need to buy them on a per bag basis. If you don't use the bags with the identifier on them, those bags will not be picked up.

The idea behind the state rule is that if you charge by volume, then people will be inclined to reduce the amount of garbage they produce to save money on the disposal costs. Further, those who don't pay for the service shouldn't get it, so rules on illegal dumping are certain to become stricter.

Follow proper tree planting techniques

Thief River Falls City Forester John Johnson is encouraging residents to learn how to plant trees properly. He also asks that property owners receive permission first before planting trees on boulevards.

Johnson asks residents to read the following story written by Kim D. Coder, Ph.D., University of Georgia.

Getting shade trees and street trees started correctly is critical to long tree life, easy care and low-cost maintenance. One way to ensure that trees are planted correctly is to give them plenty of room to grow; don't plant trees in spaces too small for their mature size. The amount of space required varies with soil conditions, site stress levels and species of tree.

Good planting allows a tree to colonize a site and positions tree roots where they can grow well. The soil environment must contain adequate space and essential materials to the roots. Planting is the first step in root management.

Site selection — Select the area for planting based on the growth characteristics and biology of the tree species, the size of the area it will occupy when mature, the presence of potentially damaging conditions (like overhead or underground utility lines), and functional and aesthetic design, in that order. Thousands of trees die every year when tree biology is an afterthought of the design process.

Rooting space — The amount of rooting space needed by a tree depends primarily on its mature size, the expected amount of stress the tree will be under, and management input. Soil texture, aeration of the soil, and the amount of surface area of the soil open to the air are also considerations. Calculate rooting area.

Planting area treatment — The planting site should be an area at least 10 times the diameter of the initial root spread or rootball of the tree. The entire planting site should be tilled or spaced as deeply as possible (at least eight inches). On badly compacted sites, sub-soiling, aeration and deep tilling (16 inches) may be required.

Do not incorporate organic materials like peat or manure into the soil; they should be added as mulch. Adding materials that will change soil texture will disrupt soil water movement. Also, do not till or dig in areas where other tree roots already exist.

Test the soil to determine the level of essential elements, pH, and potential productivity. pH should fall between 5.8 and 7.0 for most native trees. Dolomitic limestone can be added to raise pH in highly acidic (low pH) soils. High soil pHs (cement wash areas) lead to elemental shortages.

In areas where rooting is limited and tilling is not possible, it is important to provide as much soil space as the site permits for tree roots. Allow as many square feet of open soil surface as possible in tree wells, containers, parking lot areas or tree lawns. Ideally, at least 100 square feet of open soil surface is needed for long-lived, healthy trees.

Hole shape — The actual planting hole, placed in the middle of the planting site, should have a compacted soil pedestal and steeply-slanted sides.

The rootball should rest on a compacted soil pedestal in the bottom of the hole. This soil pedestal can be compacted with your foot since the roots are going to spread outward, not downward. The pedestal will encourage root spreading.

The tree should be positioned to rest at the same level in the soil as it did in the nursery. You can tell where the old soil level was by looking at the stem base. In heavy textured soils (clays), it is better to plant trees one inch too high than to plant trees one inch too low.

Planting hole sides should never be vertical (straight up and down). They should always be slanted at least 45 degrees from the ground surface. Slanted hole sides allow and encourage roots to spread out and grow into native soil. In limited rooting areas, slanted hole sides can help prevent the tree from becoming pot-bound in the hole.

Hole size — The diameter of the planting hole should be at least three times the diameter of the root ball. The hole must be large enough to allow for proper root growth and distribution. Do not bend or pack roots into too small a hole.

Tree placement — Do not put water into the hole before the tree is planted. You should water the root ball heavily after planting.

Remove the tree from all bindings, ties, wires, burlap or wrapping. For larger trees, it is important that you remove all ties and as much of the packaging material as possible.

Do not leave trees in wire baskets or surrounded by any other kind of material or fabric. Any materials left around the tree will disrupt root growth and affect long-term root distribution.]

Tree wrap can be used to protect the tree during the planting process. But it should be removed immediately after the planting site is finished.

Tree planting — Tree roots should not be exposed to full sunlight and air for more than a few seconds. Immediately upon opening the container or wrapping, use your fingers to gently pull the outer roots away from the rootball.

Gently break up and disrupt the nursery soil around the roots. Place the tree in the hole and carefully backfill with the native soil. Do not add any type of soil amendment or fertilizer to the native soil fill or the hole.

Try to keep the roots in roughly their original orientation. Do not sharply bend, abrade or twist them. Pull apart or cut roots that are closely surrounding or girdling the stem base. Plant trees with their roots spread horizontally, not downward.

Snugly pack the soil around the roots. Eliminate large air pockets but do not tamp or compact the soil. Roots must have close contact with the soil in order to properly function.

After the tree is planted, extensively water the entire planting site to help settle the soil and minimize large air pockets. Extensive watering helps establish connections between the tree and soil-water system.

INSURANCE Update

The rationalization is often made that safety belt use is unnecessary when traveling short distances or at low speeds. The following statistics indicate the opposite.

-1- Three out of four accidents occur within 25 miles from home.

-2- Eighty percent of traffic deaths and serious injuries occur at speeds below 40 MPH.

-3- The force of impact at a mere 10 MPH is about equal to catching a 200 pound bag of sand tossed from a first floor window.

As for those who believe that safety belts might trap them inside an automobile in a crash; the fact is, being ejected in an accident increases the risk of being killed by 25 times.

Accidents can happen at any time. Should a mishap occur, it is comforting to know that your interests are safeguarded by the appropriate kind of protection. The event, designed for athletes and non-athletes in grades 9-through-12, drew 20 participants.

Lawrence led the freshman with a lift of 111 pounds, a figure matched by Martell in winning the sophomore competition. Boughton led the juniors with lift of 106 pounds, and Kruta had a meet-best 141-pound effort in winning the senior class title.

School bench press record for girls, set during the annual Lincoln fund-raising event that was previously designed for boys and girls, is 151 pounds, set by Nancy Geske, a 1991 graduate.

"It went over real well," said Lincoln weight room supervisor Jeff Mumm after helping to stage the first weight meet for girls-only. "The girls were very enthusiastic. It's a start. Hopefully it'll grow over the years."

Instructors Helen Anderson, Sally Wiltse and Amy Roche conducted the meet.

North Sub-Section 8AA high school tennis tournament...

Tennis team beaten by Bemidji

Bemidji defeated Thief River Falls 5-2 Monday in the first round of the 1992 North Sub-Section 8AA boys high school tennis tournament in Detroit Lakes.

The Lumberjacks were seeded No. 3 and the Prowlers were No. 6 in the six-team field.

Thief River Falls points came at No. 1 singles – sophomore Kyle Jordet – and at No. 1 doubles - junior Trevor Haugen and sophomore Jeff Twomey. Bemidji was already assured of the victory when the Lumberjacks' Adam Wiechman withdrew after posting a 6-3 first-set win over Jordet, while Haugen and Twomey won an 8-6 tie-breaker to complete a shortened 7-6, 0-6, 1-0 decision over Matt Sanford and Chris Wiechman as the Lumberjacks prepared to move into the semifinals later that day.

Thief River Falls finished the year with a 4-9 dual meet mark.

"They were competitive," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Jay Forney, who gave special praise for the efforts of sophomores Derek Dahlstrom and Tony Miramontes, despite their losses, at No. 2 and No. 3 singles.

Sophomore Marc Seaverson rounded out the Prowlers' singles line-up at No. 4. Sophomore David Johnson and eighth grader Keith Anderson played No. 2 doubles, while eighth graders Nick Chiodo and Robbie Stock rounded out a young Thief River Falls line-up at No. 3 doubles.

Individual portion of the North Sub-Section 8AA tournament was scheduled to be played today (Tuesday), with the Prowlers using Miramontes and Seaverson in singles; Dahlstrom-Jordet and Haugen-Twomey in doubles.

Wallberg, Kruta lead LHS track teams

A school record performance in the shot put by John Wallberg and female Athlete of the Meet honors won by Jodi Kruta highlighted the Thief River Falls performances Monday at the East Grand Forks Lions Invitational high school track meet.

It was the final regular season outing of the 1992 season for both the Thief River Falls boys and girls, who will compete in the North Sub-Section 8AA meet Thursday in Detroit Lakes.

Wallberg had a toss of 50-1 to win the shot put, breaking a school record 49-8 1/2 effort by Larry Joppru set back in 1965.

"That was exciting," said Thief River Falls boys coach Tim Olson. "John has worked really hard to reach that 50-foot mark. He really wanted it."

Kruta, meanwhile, continued to rack up top place finishes for the girls, winning the 100-meter dash in 13.9 and the 300-meter hurdles in 48.8 to go along with a fifth place in the long jump for the Athlete of the Meet award.

"Jodi had another good day," reported Thief River Falls girls coach Glenn Chiodo. "She's been consistent at every meet we've been at."

Thief River Falls boys also received a first place finish from Joel Davis with a 2:04 in the 800 meters. It was the first meet for Davis since early April. One of the Prowlers' top athletes, Davis missed the entire outdoor schedule until Monday's meet because of a hip injury.

"It was great to see Joel back in there," mentioned Olson. "He looked great."

The boys almost added another school record as Nathan Egge turned in a personal-best 6-0 effort to finish second in the high jump. He just missed clearing the bar, according to Olson, at 6-2 – an inch higher than the school standard that was first set in 1947.

Wallberg also had a second in the discus with a 135-foot throw. Shane Skeim, who has been approaching the school record in the discus, had good distance yesterday, but wound up scratching on each throw, pointed out Olson. However, he did turn in a personal-best 44-6 for a third in the shot put.

"We had a great meet," said Olson. "We were having a lot of fun."

Kruta was joined in the winner's circle for the Thief River Falls girls by the 3200-meter relay team – a 10:22 effort by Stephanie Vigen, Lisa Swanson, Sanna Torgerson and Leah Helgenset.

Vigen and Helgenset also had second place finishes in the 800 and 3200 meters, respectively, and the 800-meter relay team of Kelly Skeim, Allison Myers, Brenda Pals and Jessica Bugge had a runner-up finish. That same relay unit added a fourth in the 400 meters.

"Our two shorter (400/800) relays really did a great job," said Chiodo. "They placed higher than they have all year."

Team-wise for the boys, Marshall County South was a winner with 150 points, followed by Crookston with 91, East Grand Forks 87, Stephen 78, Thief River Falls 58, Win-E-Mac 30, Climax 18, Ada-Borup 8 and East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 8.

For the girls, East Grand Forks collected 128 points, Crookston 75, Marshall County South 69, Thief River Falls 64, Ada-Borup 47, Climax 41, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 38, Stephen 26 and Win-E-

Prowlers win 9-3 game vs. Pirates

A strong, well balanced offensive effort carried Thief River Falls past host Crookston 9-3 Monday in high school baseball.

Carter Rogalla was 3-for-4 and Marc Haugen went 2-for-2 as the Prowlers out-hit the Pirates 10-4 to go 9-6 for the year.

"We played pretty well," noted Thief River Falls coach Tracey Wensloff, "and that's because offensively, we created scoring opportunities nearly every inning. It didn't matter who was batting, or what part of the order we were in. They all contributed. Our No. 7-8 hitters scored five runs for us."

Mitch Bernstein benefitted from the offensive output to pick up the pitching decision. He struck out four and walked five.

Thief River Falls closes out its 1992 regular season schedule with games Bemidji today (Tuesday) at home vs. Bemidji at 3:30 p.m., Thursday vs. Middle River/Marshall County Central at 3:30 p.m. in Middle River; and Friday at home against Roseau at 4:30 p.m.

North Sub-Section 8AA tournament seeding positions will be announced Wednesday. The tournament gets underway Tuesday.

NCC-Vermilion baseball games will not be held

A twice-postponed season-ending Northland Community College baseball doubleheader against Vermilion has now become a pair of forfeit wins for the Pioneers.

Rain forced officials to call off the planned twinbill Saturday, and after rescheduling it for Monday afternoon, Vermilion ran into problems, bumping the games to Thursday. It was announced today (Tuesday), however, that the Ironmen will not be making the trip to Thief River Falls.

The forfeits lifted the Pioneers to .500 for the year at 13-13. They finished 10-12 in the Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division.

David Blazek hit a two-run inside-the-park home run in the third inning to spark Middle River/Marshall County Central to a 12-2 five-inning Game 1 win over the Wolfpack.

Jeremy Tallum was 2-for-3 with 4 RBI and Rick Wappula drove in three runs for the Rebels.

Winning pitcher Shane Borg gave up just three hits, struck out 11 and walked four.

Middle River/Marshall County Central scored twice in the top of the seventh inning, then got out of a bases-loaded, one-out jam in the bottom of the inning to escape with a 7-5 second game win and the doubleheader sweep.

A wild pitch and an error produced the two runs for the Rebels in the top of the seventh, and the Wolfpack threat in the bottom of the inning was snuffed out by Shane Borg, who came on in relief to strike out the two batters he faced in the bases-loaded situation on six pitches.

Starting pitcher Rick Wappula went the first three innings. The win went to Jeremy Tallum, who pitched 3 1/3 innings before Borg got the save. They gave up six hits, struck out four and walked eight.

Offensively, Tallum was 2-for-4 and Brian Marstad had a second inning RBI triple.

The Rebels won the two games despite missing three Middle River players because of a senior class trip. "We were missing a little firepower, but the kids who played, played well," said Middle River/Marshall County Central coach Jerald Hagen.

Baseball team 2-1 at Iron Range Classic...

TRF third at tournament

Two wins in three starts produced a third place finish for Thief River Falls at the Friday/Saturday Iron Range Classic high school baseball tournament hosted by Hibbing and Virginia.

The Prowlers crushed Virginia 14-3 in the first round quarterfinals, lost a 6-5 semifinal decision to Cloquet, but bounced back to beat Superior, WI 10-3 in the third place game.

"We played two very nice games," reported Thief River Falls coach Tracey Wensloff. "I thought we were as good as anybody down there. "I was really pleased with our pitching, and, outside of the second game, I was satisfied with our offense and our defense."

Ten different Thief River Falls players collected hits as the Prowlers rolled to a 14-3 Friday night win over Virginia.

Marc Haugen went 3-for-3 and Carter Rogalla was 2-for-3 as the Prowlers banged out 13 base hits and played error-free baseball behind pitcher Darin Wald, who gave up only five hits, walked just one and struck out four.

"Darin threw very well," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Tracey Wensloff.

Thief River Falls grabbed an 4-0 first inning lead on a run-producing error on a ball hit by Nathan Knutson, an RBI single by Rogalla and a two-run double by Haugen.

It was 13-0 before Virginia got on the board with a three-run fifth inning.

Cloquet 6
Thief River Falls 5

Trouble at the plate and in the field wound up costing Thief River Falls on the scoreboard in a 6-5 Saturday afternoon semifinal loss to Cloquet.

Offensively, the Prowlers struck out 12 times, including six called third strikes – frequently with runners on base. And defensively, five errors made pitcher Jeremy Olson's job a lot tougher than it had to be.

"I was not happy with our performance," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Tracey Wensloff. "I thought Jeremy pitched well, but we just didn't get the job done on offense or defense."

Despite their problem, the Prowlers had a shot in the bottom of the seventh. Trailing 6-4, Thief River Falls loaded the bases with nobody out on singles by Carter Rogalla and Mitch Bernstein, along with a walk issued to Barry Dowers.

An infield fly out was called on a one-out pop-up by Rick Ostby. But when the ball dropped, Rogalla broke for home, scoring when the catcher, thinking the force-out was still in effect, stepped on the plate instead of making the tag. A walk issued to Darin Wald reloaded the bases with two out before an infield ground-out ended the threat and the game.

Rogalla was 2-for-3 at the plate. Olson pitched until the seventh before giving way to Marc Haugen. They gave up seven hits, struck out three and walked two.

A nine-run Thief River Falls first inning made quick work of Superior, WI. The Prowlers went on to win the Saturday evening third place game 10-3.

Five singles and four walks issued by Superior pitching produced the 9-0 head start.

Mitch Bernstein, Barry Dowers and Darin Wald had two hits apiece for the Prowlers.

Rick Ostby was the winning pitcher, scattering nine hits while striking out seven and walking just one in a route-going performance.

Newest edition of fish consumption advisory released

Minnesota Department of Health (MDH) has released the latest edition of its advisory on eating sport fish from lakes and rivers in the state.

The 68-page advisory is designed to help anglers avoid any possible health risks associated with environmental contaminants in fish. However, the advisory is not intended to discourage people from fishing in Minnesota, according to Marlene E. Marschall, Minnesota Commissioner of Health.

"The quality of sport fish taken in Minnesota is among the highest in the Great Lakes region," Marschall said. "We simply want to help people enjoy this resource – and the health benefits of eating fish – while minimizing any health risks that might be involved."

The advisory contains recommendations about eating fish from Minnesota waters that have been tested for environmental contaminants. The recommendations are based on the size and species of fish, where it was taken, and the type and amount of contaminant found in fish.

The 1992 edition includes information on 31 lakes and three rivers that were tested for the first time. The advisory also updates information on a number of lakes and rivers previously listed in the advisory. A total of 357 lakes and 31 rivers are listed in the advisory.

Anglers are cautioned that in the northeastern part of the state – the Arrowhead Region – contamination in untested lakes is likely to be similar to that found in lakes that have been tested. In potions of the Superior National Forest, the U.S. Forest Service has posted a general warning in untested lakes to limit consumption of large northern pike and walleye to one meal per week.

"For most of the lakes we've tested, you can safely eat up to one meal a week, all year long," Marschall said. "However, our advice is a little more cautious for young children, and for women who are pregnant or may become pregnant."

Young children and fetuses are especially sensitive to mercury and other contaminants, Marschall explained. For that reason, there are more restrictive recommendations for pregnant women, women who may become pregnant, nursing mothers and children under six.

MDH has published the advisory since 1975. The advisory is based on the results of monitoring programs conducted by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR), the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (PCA), and the U.S. Forest Service (USFS). Recently, DNR has been responsible for the largest of the monitoring efforts, sampling approximately 4,000 fish from more than 80 bodies of water.

Current advisory is available at USFS offices and DNR regional offices in Bemidji, Grand Rapids, Brainerd, New Ulm, Rochester and St. Paul, as well as some local DNR offices throughout the state. The public can also receive a copy by calling MDH at 612-627-5423, PCA at 612-296-3000, or DNR at 612-296-2835.

MSHSL News

Professional basketball player Kevin McHale of Hibbing, Olympic gold medalist and former professional hockey player Bill Baker of Grand Rapids and legendary Edina High School hockey coach Willard Ikola were among 10 individuals selected for recent induction into the Minnesota State High School League Hall of Fame.

This second group of inductees includes two athletes, two administrators, two athletic directors, two fine arts advisors, one coach and one administrator/coach, bringing the total number of Hall of Fame members to 20.

Along with McHale, Baker and Ikola, the inductees included administrators Ralph Brynelson of Cottonwood and Carolyn Cade of Bloomington, athletic directors Roger Carlson of Coon Rapids and Kerwin Engelhart of Rochester, along with fine arts advisors George Regis (deceased) of Stillwater and Jim Seeden of Minneapolis.

The Hall of Fame is located at the MSHSL Brooklyn Center office. Induction ceremonies were held April 28 at the St. Paul Radisson Hotel. Each Hall of Fame selection was presented with a handsome engraved crystal trophy and a customized watch during the luncheon ceremony.

The 1992 Hall of Fame class was selected through a multi-level process which included MSHSL member schools and a committee of athletic, fine arts and education leaders. Nominations were solicited in nine categories: 1) athlete; 2) activity/athletic director; 3) cheerleader/cheerleader advisor; 4) coach; 5) fine arts participant/advisor; 6) media personnel; 7) official/judge; 8) school administrator; and 9) school board member.

DNR News

Early-Season Fishing Dangers

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources is warning anglers about two silent killers lurking in Minnesota's lakes and streams: hypothermia and the sudden drowning syndrome.

Hypothermia symptoms range from continual shivering, poor coordination, numb hands and feet to hallucinations and death in the most extreme situations.

"Hypothermia kills immersed victims by eliminating their ability to swim or stay afloat due to the loss of body heat," said Tim Smalley, DNR boat and water safety specialist. Smalley said wearing a life jacket at the time of entry is one of the few defenses against hypothermia.

A life jacket increases survival time in at least two ways: it decreases the amount of movement it takes to stay afloat, and it helps a person stay afloat if unconscious due to hypothermia.

It's very important that there is a properly-fitting life jacket for everyone on board," Smalley said. Besides being a legal requirement, personal flotation devices are important because they save lives, he said.

Early in the season, when the water temperatures are still well below 50 degrees, the sudden drowning syndrome become a real prospect for anyone not wearing a life jacket who falls into the water or capsizes a boat. Related to hypothermia, the sudden drowning syndrome is brought about by quick entry into cold water, usually by a fall overboard or a boat capsizing. This sudden entry into cold water causes the victim to gasp water into their lungs.

"Unless people are wearing life jackets to keep their heads out of the water, even strong swimmers can drown in a matter of seconds," Smalley noted.

To avoid hypothermia and the sudden drowning syndrome, the DNR offers these tips to ensure safe and successful early-season fishing tips:

• Always wear a life jacket, especially early in the season when the water is cold. Cold water induced hypothermia is involved in 50 percent of fishing deaths.

• Avoid alcoholic beverages while in the boat. Alcohol can actually make a person colder more quickly, and can cause dumb mistakes that get that person in trouble.

• Stay with the boat if it capsizes. Even Olympic-class swimmers have a difficult time swimming more than a few yards in 45-degree water. Climbing on top of a capsized board makes it easier to be spotted by potential rescuers, and prolongs survival time by reducing exposure to old water.

Boat Registrations

May marks the beginning of watercraft registration season; more Minnesota boats are registered in May and June than any other time of the year, according to the Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

Based on past statistics, 40,000 to 50,000 people will be registering new boats in Minnesota this year. Those folks will be affected by an amendment to the Minnesota statutes that became effective Sept. 1, 1991, according to Dawn Thell, DNR counter sales supervisor. That amendment requires individuals registering new watercraft and snowmobiles in Minnesota to show proof that they paid sales tax on their boat or snowmobile when they bought it.

"Naturally, we want customers to be be able to accomplish their goals in one trip," Thell said. "Because this is a new requirement, many people are unaware of it. Without proof of sales tax payment, we are not able to file a registration on new boats or snowmobiles."

The sales tax amendment applies only to registration of new boats and snowmobiles; registration renewals are not affected by it. At the time of registration, registrants must show a copy of the original sales invoice, or provide other proof that sales tax was paid, and complete a Department of Revenue Form UT-1W. These forms are available at the place of registration.

Watercraft and snowmobiles may be registered at the DNR License Bureau in St. Paul, or at deputy registrar of motor vehicles offices throughout the state.

According to a Minnesota Department of Natural Resources commissioned survey, the primary reason most people go fishing is to relax and enjoy nature (42 percent); to compete, be with friends or meet new anglers (19 percent); to catch fish for food or sport (14 percent).

Maps Are Available

Looking for a new spot to fish? That search can be made easier with the new public recreation information maps (PRIM) published by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Bureau of Engineering.

PRIM maps are like several maps combined into one, bringing together federal, state, and county lands and outdoor opportunities. The maps show fishing piers, trout streams, and water access sites – both drive-in and carry-in.

The map series divides the state into 51 areas and includes campground information, parks, state trails, waterfowl areas, boat and canoe routes, forest and nature areas, and more.

Thirty-eight of the 51 maps are now available. The maps are being sold in many sporting goods stores in Minnesota. They are also available from the Minnesota Bookstore at 117 University Ave. in St. Paul, the DNR Gift Shop at 500 Lafayette Road in St. Paul, and at the DNR regional offices in Bemidji, Grand Rapids, Brainerd, New Ulm, Rochester, and St. Paul.

PRIM retails for $3.95, plus tax. The proceeds from PRIM sales go back into the program to keep the maps current and available to the public.

MinnAqua Program

The MinnAqua Program has arrived in northwest Minnesota with the recent appointment of Annette Drewes as seasonal MinnAqua representative in Bemidji.

MinnAqua is an educational program designed to teach kids about recreational fishing, along with lessons in conservation, water resource ecology and environmental ethics. Seasonal MinnAqua representatives have been hired to work this summer – through Sept. 11 – at Bemidji, Duluth, New Ulm, Rochester and the Twin Cities.

"MinnAqua was started in 1990 by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR)," said Drewes. "Our primary goal is to increase the public's awareness, understanding and appreciation of Minnesota's lakes, streams, rivers and wetlands through educational fishing clinics, workshops and special events with organized youth groups, such as 4-H clubs, scout troops, and community education programs.

Funding for MinnAqua comes from the Legislative Commission of Minnesota Resources (LCMR), the Reinvest in Minnesota (RIM) program, and federal sportfishing restoration funds.

For information on programs or to become a MinnAqua volunteer, contact Annette Drewes, MinnAqua Program, c/o Minnesota Extension Service, Beltrami County 4-H, 815 Fifteenth Street, NW, Bemidji, MN 56601; or call 759-0038.

Drewes' calendar is already filling up with workshops, youth fishing clinics and other events. "So far, I've received requests from Detroit Lakes, Ada, Erskine, Fosston, Bemidji, Cass Lake, Kelliher, Nevis, Park Rapids and Wadena," said Drewes," she said.

Borders to Backyards

It's moving plants and animals off the short road to extinction and onto the long road to recovery - butterflies, birds, snakes and wolves. It's managing refuges for wildlife, hatcheries for fish and large populations of migratory birds - from the 95,456 acre Seney National Wildlife Refuge in Michigan to the 43 million fish and eggs raised at the Genoa National Fish Hatchery in Wisconsin. It's informing the public about the best spots for observing wildlife, the value of wetlands and how to bait a hook for walleye.

It is this and more that make up the Fish and Wildlife Service (Service) in the North Central Region of the United States. And in the 1990's, the Service is doing business in a new way; the only successful way to properly care for the fish and wildlife resources of this region; the way of partnerships.

"This is a new era of partnerships between the Fish and Wildlife Service and the states, local organizations and private individuals. Together we can do so much more for our nation's natural heritage than could be achieved separately," said John Rogers, Jr., Acting Regional Director.

North Central Region of the Service includes the states of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio and Wisconsin. Around the eight-state region, over 1,000 people are employed at national wildlife refuges, fish hatcheries, fisheries assistance stations, research laboratories, ecological services field offices, law enforcement stations and the regional headquarters office.

In 1991, concerns such as deterioration of the Great Lakes, public awareness on the problems facing our nation's wetlands, and international fish and game violations were major areas of emphasis. The predation of sea lamprey upon game fish in the Great Lakes was challenged with a new state-of-the-art technique for sterilizing male lampreys.

Assistance and training in natural resource management was provided to youth of color. An educational video and new technology enhanced awareness and communication between the Service and members of the disabled community.

The Service also worked with over 2,000 private landowners to restore wetlands on their property, funded urban landscaping exhibits that benefit wildlife and continued work on three "Joint Ventures" with tribal, local, state and federal partners under the North American Waterfowl Management Plan. The new Upper Mississippi River/Great Lakes Region Joint Venture, a seven-state partnership effort to increase wetlands and waterfowl habitat, was initiated. Efforts were also directed at making the federal system more "user friendly" for its state resource management partners.

Other major activities include opening an urban wetlands office in Chicago, conducting wetland restorations from a watershed perspective, the special designation of Horicon National Wildlife Refuge, Wisconsin, as a "Wetland of International Importance" and continuance of the Upper Mississippi River partnership in the Environmental Management Program.

From international borders to quarter-acre backyards, from insects to eagles, from single plants to entire ecosystems, the Fish and Wildlife Service is working in partnership with others to preserve, enhance and protect the fish and wildlife resources of the nation.

RIM Gifts Help Habitat

Conservation groups and Minnesota citizens have donated or pledged $1 million to the Reinvest in Minnesota (RIM) program's critical habitat match fund during the first quarter of 1992. This program matches private donations with state funds to protect and improve important fish and wildlife habitat across the state.

A record 36 donations were received from 30 different donors across the state during the last three months, according to Jay Rendall of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR). "This shows the popularity and support for this unique program that encourages partnership with the private sector," said Rendall, coordinator of the DNR's RIM program.

Native prairie, wetlands, fish spawning areas, deer wintering areas, sharp-tailed grouse habitat and trout streams will benefit from the donations, which will add 4,400 acres of new public outdoor recreation lands for fishing, hunting, hiking and wildlife watching. The new parcels will become part of the outdoor recreation system as state parks, state forests, wildlife management areas, aquatic management areas, or scientific and natural areas.

Since it was established in 1987, critical habitat match program gifts of land or money now total $7.7 million, or an average of $1.5 million per year.

Critical habitat match is used by many private conservation organizations, such as Pheasants Forever, Minnesota Deer Hunters Association, Ducks Unlimited, and the Nature Conservancy to double their conservation efforts.

In northwestern Minnesota, critical habitat match programs have been implemented at the East Park Wildlife Management Area, Marshall County; Huot Wildlife Management Area, Red Lake County; Twin Lakes Wildlife Management Area, Kittson County; Crookston deer habitat development, Polk County; and Roseau River Wildlife Management Area, Roseau County.

Forest Service logging plans affect everyone

Almost everyone has heard about how environmental groups have tried to save the northern spotted owl by stopping timber sales in old growth forest stands along with West Coast. Sales on government lands in the west have decreased to almost half of the 1987 level. Logging at this time is basically on hold, except for salvaging trees damaged by fire or windstorm.

As a result, northern Minnesota will be affected, according to Robert Wennerstrand, Area DNR Forest Supervisor at Warroad.

The western states have traditionally supplied over half of America's lumber and more than a third of the plywood, pointed out Wennerstrand. Reductions in western timber cutting will reduce the total national construction lumber supply by almost 20 percent. Low interest rates have spurred new home construction and almost as much lumber is used for repair and remodeling. Wood supply was considered to be virtually unlimited in the past, but demand for U.S. lumber will reach 98 percent of estimated available capacity this year.

Where will Americans get the wood products that we all use and need? Most of our imports now come from Canada, noted Wennerstrand. However, Canadian imports are expected to stay fairly constant, or even decrease since Canada is facing the same environmental pressures that we are, he said.

There are few substitute building materials which are environmentally friendly as wood is. Within the next year, therefore, lumber prices could increase at least 40 percent over last year's price, affecting everyone that buys lumber, warned Wennerstrand.

The familiar Oriented Strand Board (OSB) is a 'composite' manufactured near Bemidji from small trees. OSB is a replacement for plywood which was originally developed as a replacement for lumber. Some composites are starting to show up at new home sites and it appears that they are readily accepted by the consumer. Other composition building materials such as wood I-beams or the new 'parallel strand lumber' made near Deerwood will eventually replace lumber made from big western trees, explained Wennerstrand.

Since most of Minnesota's forests are properly managed, Wennerstrand said, wood harvest in the state may not increase much, but markets certainly will. "We can expect increased demand (and prices) for our wood products as the large western logs continue to be locked up from harvest," Wennerstrand said. "Our many loggers and wood industries should benefit from the improved markets, which in turn, will benefit our forests, our economy and everyone in northern Minnesota."

PUBLIC NOTICE

The City Of Thief River Falls Water Department announces that the State maximum limit for turbidity in drinking water of one turbidity unit was exceeded during the month of April 1992. The monthly average for turbidity was 1.38.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand, or organic matter in water. Turbidity can be a problem if it interferes with the Chloramine used for disinfection. However, the turbidity level did not create a health hazard because the Water Department is able to maintain effective levels of disinfection.

The Thief River Falls Water Purification Plant is currently in the construction stage of a 6.7 million dollar expansion and remodeling project. This project will enable compliance with the water quality requirements of the 1986 Amendments to the Safe Drinking Water Act.

Please be assured that the water is safe to drink. Any citizen seeking additional information should contact Allen J. Lamm, at the Water Purification Plant phone number 681-3809.

We have been so blessed with many musical treats at school this spring. On Monday night the Junior and Senior High band and chorus presented their offering. This included selections from the Jr. Hi band and chorus the Senior High chorus and a combined band. Special numbers that had starred at contests were given, including a vocal duet by Cheryl Greenwald and Amy Arlt, vocal duet by Michelle LaFebvre and Carrie Fallon, saxophone duet by Amy Arlt and Michelle LeFebvre, clarinet duet by Dixie Koskela and Cheryl Greenwald, and a clarinet quartet by Dixie, Cheryl, Farrah Brand and Lisa Howard. To close the program the combined band played "The Thunderer" by Sousa, and for many of us who are Sousa fans it was a perfect ending, and kept many toes tapping. Refreshments were served and artwork of the HS classes was on display.

Joyce and Kim Megers attended the Student Senate banquet at Mayville College on Wednesday evening where Sarah Megers received the Barrie Kolaing Memorial scholarship, as the many awards were being given.

While all of the pageantry celebrates an opening it also celebrates a beginning. Future plans include two more phases. The second phase to begin upon the completion of phase I. Those plans include the addition of 150 more lodging rooms. Most of the rooms at the two lodges are already booked through October. The plans also include an enclosed swimming pool and convention center almost doubling the casino complex's square footage to 140,000 square feet. This phase should be completed by May of 1993.

Phase III construction is projected to begin as soon as phase II is completed. More rooms and special guest amenities including more shops and health-related facilities are anticipated at this time. Upon its final completion, the casino complex in Mahnomen should contain over 200,000 square feet.

There's no such thing as a sure bet, but when the White Earth band of Chippewa wished upon a "Shooting Star", their dreams came true.

Edgar Winter

Edgar Winter

Edgar Winter who will perform on Saturday, May 15, recently scored big with "Way Down South", his first ever title song which will be featured in the upcoming 20th Century Fox film called "My Cousin Vinnie", starring Joe Pesci.

During November of 1991, Winter went "down under" for the first time with The Edgar Winter Blues Band. The group had a highly successful tour of Australia and New Zealand. The positive response was overwhelming and has led to more bookings on the international circuit.

Winter, born into a highly musical family in Beaumont, TX, has a keen interest in jazz, pop and R & B. He has written and performed many songs. Always innovative, Winter was the first to use synthesizers to make records an introduced exciting variations for using synthesized music in live arenas. He also invented the first body strap for the hand held keyboard.

Kix Brooks and Ronnie Dunn

Brooks and Dunn will perform their brand of honky-tonk music on Sunday. The new group brings back to country honky-tonk which has been left out of country's return to traditionalism. But their music, which roars through a landscape of hot dresses and cold beers in smoky dance halls, is also for the enlightened age — chemically responsible. Their song "Cool Drink Of Water," for instance, takes the wheel when the singer has had one too many suggesting, "We'll have more fun if we make it home alive."

"Musically, we both feel things pretty much the same way," says Brooks. "Ronnie is probably a little closer to Lefty Frizzell and I might be more on the Glenn Frey side of things, but both of us like country music with an edge to it. His voice might be a little more on the right side, and mine on the left, but they seem to have a nice meeting in the middle."

Both Brooks and Dunn bring long music histories into this project, as both were playing professionally by the time they were teenagers.

Brooks, a Louisiana native who says "There was always a lot of playing and singing around the house," picked up his first instrument (a ukulele) at six and was in a band at 12. He cites as special impetus the fact that singer Johnny Horton, whose wife Billie Jean had also been married to Hank

Ruby Stromgren went to Hallock to visit Clarice Hanson, and to Roland Hanson's for Easter dinner.

Guests at Peter and Pearl Thompson's on Monday evening for potato dumplings were Isaac and Betsy Thompson, Danny, Becky, Michelle and Jeremy Johnson.

Tuesday evening Pearl Thompson and Betsy Thompson visited Elsie Lefrooth and later Elsie and Walter Thompson accompanied Pearl to the concert at Heritage School.

On April 25, Elphie Adils left on a 2-weeks trip to San Francisco, CA, to visit her sister, Berdell Katanes. She must have had a great time as she got in on a shock from the earthquake, and the next week's riot. They were on the go every day except during the riot when her nephew suggested they best stay at home. She got to ride the cable car, dine at Fisherman's Wharf, and tour the country. She flew home on Tuesday and brought greetings to all the friends around here from Berdell.

Lionel and Boots Johnson and Peter and Pearl Thompson were guests for supper at Danny and Becky Johnson's on Sunday evening in honor of Mother's Day, and to celebrate Danny and Becky's anniversary. Brent Thompson called from Bremerton, WA, to wish Grandma Pearl a Happy Mother's Day.

WE OWE OUR FREEDOM TO THE LIVES THEY GAVE UP FOR US

All thinking people must abhor
The dreadful tragedy of war,
Which often we could not avoid;
And so our troops were then deployed.
It's so unthinkable, and yet
We mustn't let ourselves forget
The debt of gratitude we owe
To those who fought our every foe,
And gave their lives so gallantly
To help preserve our liberty.
So let's remember them with pride;
We're free today because they died.
For this, let's thank the Lord and pray
That we will live to see the day
When all is safe upon our shore,
And freedom reigns forevermore.
— Gloria Nowak

Howsoever we shall be called to make our exit, we will die free men.

Dinner guests at the Roger and Marion Anderson home following the confirmation services were Thea Anderson, John and Kari Benjamin and Christopher of Minneapolis, Janice Anderson of Bloomington, Elaine Barclay, Terry and Deanne of Young America, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Bisel, Aaron and Zachary, Teresa Bisek and Lisa all of St. Cloud. Senior Citizen Meeting

The May meeting of the Grygla Senior Citizens was held on the first Wednesday of the month. All reports were read and approved and several thank you notes were read. Some discussion was held concerning "having the pig-out" for all birthday parties, as we had originally voted for last November. Because the club needs this method to keep our funds up, it was voted on and again passed, to have the "Pig-out" without exception. Lastly two other items discussed were that some members were going to work on nomination of an Outstanding Senior Citizen from Grygla. The planned tree planting ceremony will take place on May 15, at the park west of the school.

Sunday night overnight guests at the Loren Lusignan home were Mr. and Mrs. Arne Tanem of Hibbing, and Ragna Huderly of Virginia. Oral Howland of International Falls was a Sunday overnight guest at the Oliver Howland home. They all attended funeral services for Ingmar Tanem, which were held at Grace Lutheran church on Monday morning. Sympathy is extended to the family!

Williams, lived half a block from his boyhood home. "That was my first exposure to gold records and things like that, so I got the bug way back," he says.

Dunn was born in Coleman, TX, and his dad, like Brook's, was in the oil pipeline business. He was also "a guitar player and singer in a hillbilly band." Ronnie started playing bass in bands in high school in Port Isabel, but found he couldn't carry the mix of school and bands any further. "I was studying to become a Baptist minister," he says, "but I got caught playing in honky-tonks and got kicked out".

The switch from solo careers to duo status hasn't proven difficult for Brooks or Dunn.

"It's felt really good," says Brooks. "We're enjoying sharing the spotlight, kicking it back and forth. Musically we both kind of feel things the same way, so the honky-tonk sound and the progressive edge it has isn't something we tried to do. It's just what evolved."

The Times' Editorial Opinion

The Times

David Hill, associate editor

Editorial opinion published on this page, whether locally written or re-printed from other sources is intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. Two Views On The Electoral College

In the "At Issue" column provided by PM Editorial Services, two U.S. Senators are asked for their views on abolishing the electoral college which has always elected the Presidents of these United States. Sen. David Pryor, an Arkansas Democrat, believes the college should be abolished. Sen. Thad Cochran, a Mississippi Republican, believes it is necessary to maintain the electoral college system.

Following are their respective replies to three questions posed to them about the electoral college.

Question: "Should the Electoral College be abolished in favor of electing the president by direct popular vote?"

SEN. PRYOR—"Yes. Three times in America's history we have put in the White House a "minority president"—that is, a president who received fewer votes than his opponent. That was due to the Electoral College system, which allocates each state's vote on a "winner-take-all" basis according to the size of its congressional delegation.

"Each time this has happened, it has resulted in widespread outrage from those who thought democracy had been turned on its ear. Even in recent years, we have had some close calls. For example, a shift of merely 10,000 votes in Hawaii and Ohio in 1976 would have given Gerald Ford the presidency, even though Jimmy Carter received nearly two million more popular votes nationwide."

SEN. COCHRAN—"No. The intent of the framers of the Constitution was to give each state a voice in selecting the president. Requiring the states to choose electors who cast the votes to elect the president keeps the elections from being dominated by the most populous states.

"Direct election would dilute the power of smaller states and would increase unfairly the influence of large cities and population centers in presidential politics."

Question: "What effect would eliminating the Electoral College have on presidential campaigns?"

SEN. PRYOR—"It would avert any potential constitutional crisis that could result in the future if we again select a minority president. Abolishing the Electoral College would help preserve faith in our system among the American electorate. The Electoral College may have made sense before the advent of television, radio and daily newspapers. However, the miracle of modern communication now enables every citizen in this country to be well-informed enough to directly elect their president and vice president."

SEN. COCHRAN—"Presidential candidates would tend to ignore smaller states, or even regions with fewer voters, and concentrate their time, organizational efforts and appeal for support in the most populous areas. Entire sections of the country could be overlooked or ignored as the candidates designed their campaign strategies to gather votes in the more densely populated sections of the country."

Question: "What impact would abolishing the Electoral College have on our system of government?"

SEN. PRYOR—"Direct election of the president will give every man and woman in every state an equal voice in the election of our two biggest national officials. It is time for our country, which believes in the equality of all its citizens, to adopt an election framework that ensures this same equality at the voting booth."

SEN. COCHRAN—"Farmers and rural landowners would become political outcasts. It would be likely for the president to pay much more attention to the interests of the cities than the problems of rural America. Political power in our federal government would shift away from small towns and rural communities to the urban areas. Those states without large population centers would be effectively disenfranchised.

"The U.S. Senate would be the only institution left in our federal system to guarantee equal consideration of the interests and well-being of the smaller states." Those are the opinions of Sen. Pryor and Sen. Cochran. The principle of each person having a vote with the same effect as the vote of every other person is a basic one, and it applies in the Senate as well as in the House. Although two senators are elected from each state, they are elected by popular vote of all the voters eligible to vote in the state. Number of Congressmen in the House of Representatives from each state varies according to the population of each state, but each of those is elected by the popular vote of the voters in the designated geographic district of each Congressman.

The Electoral College system is in place and has functioned with due regard for the best interests of the people and their government. We see no great benefit to be derived from abolishing it but we can see some foresee some inequities which would derive from abolition. Sometimes the best reform is to leave well enough alone.

Strandquist News

F. Myrtle Vaglo
436-2133

The Strandquist Senior Citizens are resuming their weekly meetings on Thursday, the 14th. It has dried up around town so it looks real nice, and we hope many will be out to enjoy it.

This area had three Seniors who were known to most of us, that passed away this past week, namely Edna Sanderson, Samuel (Bud) Wayne and Mildred Elie. Their obituaries will be found in other places in this paper. We really miss them around here and sincere condolences to to all their relatives and friends.

The Junior Citizens have been busy as beavers when building dams. Mrs. Rodahl's first graders have arrived safely home from Mexico. While they were there, they made parrots which were very colorful, used Mexican leapers in Math, and learned about the Mexican flag. They also made serapes to wear. The highlight of the trip was celebrating Cinco de Mayo by being blind folded and breaking a pinata that Daniel Berggren had brought back from Mexico when he vacationed there at Christmas time. It's good they made it home. They are also learning fractions in Math. Some of the Senior students of yore can't figure fractions.

The Tri-County/Strandquist students will have their elementary track meet on Wednesday, May 13, at the Tri-County football field. We are anxiously awaiting that day. On Tuesday afternoon, May 12, the students will be visiting the hospital and the nursing home and some of the classes will be performing there. On Thursday afternoon, May 21, there will be a music program featuring the Tri County/Strandquist students with a special time set aside for our third grade students.

May and summer birthdays were celebrated this week. Those celebrating May birthdays were Ryan Rector, Alida Stechmann, Erich Schaffhauser, Alexis Stechmann, Erin Anderson, Jessica Berg, Shayna Hagen, Shayne Hagen, Anne Schallhauser, and Zachary Green. Memorial Day brings World War II memories

by Donna Myhrer
Times Community Editor

May 1942: ...Rommel takes Tobruk in North Africa; Admiral Nimitz becomes commander in Pacific; Battle of the Coral Sea. Yesterday, May 25, was Memorial Day, a day to remember those who have fought and died for this country in time of war. Yesterday, Clair Larson of Thief River Falls, a veteran of World War II, was a part of the color guard at the local memorial program. During 1942, he was stationed in Kodiak, Alaska, and later moved to the Aleutian Islands.

Clair Larson

The defense of Alaska was considered a vital part of the defense of the United States, because of its proximity to Japan. So military personnel were stationed in Alaska to guard the northern entrance to North America.

The training Clair received, as a part of a light weapons platoon, was in the use of machine guns and mortars. A mortar is a 60-mm pipe into which the operator drops a shell which is then shot over a hill. The operator doesn't need a clear view of the target.

In the fall of 1942 he was sent to Adak, an air and naval base, which he says "looked like an airplane factory. There were planes all over." He spent about a year there, helping to build runways and unload ships, which carried food and ammunition.

The ground was tundra, no grass or trees with moss on the surface, then about a foot of mud and black gravel. Building the runways was done by covering the ground with steel interlocking sheets, 10 feet long and 1 1/2 feet wide.

Following his time in Adak, Clair was sent to Amchitka, where he remained until April 1944. When he first arrived there, the Japanese had just left the island, so bringing ammunition had been the priority. There was very little food shipped with the troops, so, Clair recalls,

DARE graduates nearly 200 in ceremony

Graduation ceremonies in Thief River Falls for nearly 200 sixth grade students who completed the Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) program had all the fanfare of a graduation ceremony for high school seniors. Certificates of accomplishment were handed out to the students, and guest speakers included Thief River Falls Mayor Robert Reeve, State Senator LeRoy Stumpf, and State Representative Wally Sparby. Guests also included Thief River Falls Police Chief Ken Froschheiser, Pennington County Sheriff Bob Wold and Miss Thief River Falls Doni Loeslie.

This was the first class to graduate from the program. It was also important to local officials because they wanted to show the students that they stood behind them in their fight against drug abuse.

DARE — Drug Abuse Resistance Education — brings drug education into the classroom, through a 17-week course for fifth and sixth graders, and teaches children to develop positive attitude and behavior. It gives them the self-confidence, sense of self-worth and the will power they need to resist drugs and alcohol.

Thief River Falls Police Officer Craig Mattson, and Pennington County Sheriff's Deputy Ray Kuznia underwent an extensive training course so that they could teach the DARE program to students in Thief River Falls and Goodridge. The course, which teaches students not just to refuse drugs, but how to do so, was taught to public and private school students in Thief River Falls.

DARE was founded in 1983 by the Los Angeles Police Department and Los Angeles Unified School District and went nationwide with its valuable anti-drug program in 1987. In studies by the Evaluation and Training Institute and by the

Sharon LaCoursiere

. . . Well, Mom, It's This Way

My mother always told me to mind my manners.

She said I should always say "please" when I asked for something.

She said I should always say "thank you" when I got it.

She said I should always say "excuse me" when I walked in front of someone or interrupted a conversation (or belched).

She said I should always be polite to people who came to the door.

She said I should always be polite to people who called on the telephone, and say "hello" and "good bye" at the appropriate times.

Well, Mom, I'm not minding my manners so well any more. Oh, I still say "please" and "thank you," and try to remember to say "excuse me" when I should. I'm still minding those manners, Mom.

The manners I'm not minding much any more, Mom, are the ones about being polite to people who interrupt my precious evenings and weekends with their pitches and pratter.

I guess there have always been people who come to the door and try to peddle something. I understand that our city requires that people like this have a license. This is good. Even though it seems that anybody can get such a license, it still helps keep the average person from being pestered to death by salespeople and pontificators pounding on their door.

But a problem has arisen. It seems to me that in the last few years, those who want to sell or sermonize have found a new and better way to do it other than ringing doorbells. Now they just let their fingers do the walking and use the telephone.

These people have found that using the telephone is a wonderfully easy way to get into someone's home. They just dial a number, any number, on the telephone and pitch away, never minding that it might be meal time, or bed time, or bath time, or that the person on the other end of the phone was busy doing something else, like reading a book or watching a movie.

I've had it with telephone solicitation. There have been too many times when I've dropped what I was doing and raced to the telephone only to be greeted with something like this: "Hello. Is this Mrs. —uh—La—uh—La Cooseer (or La Coursey-air) (or La Cursear)? This is Bill Blow (or Tom Taylor or Bill Brown) (or Mary Martin or June Jones or whatever). How are you this evening?"

Without pausing for one minute for me to tell whoever it is just HOW I AM FEELING THIS VERY MINUTE, THANK YOU, whoever it is immediately launches into a high speed sales pitch. How anyone can speak without breathing is beyond me, but these people can do it.

Not only do they not stop for a breath during their prattling, but they speak so fast that I can't understand a word they are saying. It is like listening to a foreign language coming out of my very own telephone receiver.

While all this prattling is going on is when I stop minding my manners, Mom. Yes, it is true, and what's more, it is so easy.

I just smile sweetly and remove the telephone from my ear, listening to the squeaking sounds that come from the little holes fade, fade, fade away. The best sound of all is the "click" as I carefully place the receiver back on the hook, and I breathe a sigh of relief in the wonderful, peaceful silence that follows.

No, Mom, I do not say "good-bye." I do not mind my manners, and I don't feel bad about it, either. People who try to invade my privacy do not deserve my courtesy, and I'm not going to give it to them.

And do you know what, Mom? They don't ever call me back. Too bad, so sad, and that is just fine with me. I do wonder just how long it takes them to notice I'm not there any more.

Dear Readers,
May 30, 1868, was proclaimed as a time for civil war veterans to pay public tribute to their departed comrades. America's 123 year Memorial Day tradition continues to honor veterans. On this special day, the lonely sound of Taps will echo across America's cemeteries. Take time to remember those men and women who gave their lives so that we may enjoy a free and independent nation.
Sincerely,

Belmont Funeral Home
Larry Belmont

DARE graduates 200

National Institute of Justice, a sample of students who had completed the DARE curriculum showed:

- significantly less substance abuse, including cigarettes and alcohol,
- a sharp decrease in school vandalism and truance,
- improved student work habits;
- reduced gang activity;
- a more positive attitude toward police, and
- better student rapport with teachers and school officials.

Local officials encouraged parents and residents to continue to support these youngsters who will probably come in contact with drugs during their school-age years. During the graduation ceremony, several students also read essays they had written about how they will take a stand against drugs.

The DARE board of directors hopes the program will continue next year and continue to enjoy the support of the community. Board members believe the program prepares youngsters to face the drug abuse challenge.

TRF students DARE to say "No"

(Graduation ceremonies for nearly 200 sixth grade students who participated in the DARE program in Thief River Falls schools was held last week. As part of their final assignment the students were asked to write an essay about how they plan to say "no" to drugs. The following essay was written by Sixth Grade student Joe LaFriniere, son of Peggy Gustoff, and was one of many read during the graduation.)

Hi, my name is Joe. For the past 17 weeks I've been in DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education program). In DARE we learned many things about drugs. This is what I'm going to do to stay off drugs.

If I'm ever confronted by someone to take drugs I'll simply say no. In DARE we learned many ways to say no and to resist.

To relieve stress I can go outside, play my instrument or talk to someone but I won't take drugs.

Drugs can kill you or hurt you really bad if you take them. One marijuana cigarette is equal to 32 normal cigarettes.

I knew someone who took drugs. After I found out he took drugs I never spoke to him again. If someone takes drugs they won't have many friends.

Peer pressure is a big thing these days. If one kid takes drugs, his friends take drugs, and so do their friends. It's a chain reaction.

With programs like DARE and cooperation from kids, I hope we can soon be free of drugs.

I know it's not going to happen overnight but I hope it happens soon; drugs are wrecking America's future.

So do your part and stay off of drugs and support programs like DARE. I'll do my part and stay off drugs!

Human Services Aware Of Gambling Problems

With the proliferation of gaming casinos in Minnesota, most conversations of any duration usually get around to some discussion of visits to these gambling houses, either first person or as comments received from someone else. There is word of occasional winners; very little word about the likely more frequent losers.

Minnesota Department of Human Services is aware of problems developing in the state and has announced plans for a new public awareness campaign aimed at sensitizing Minnesota residents to gambling problems and creating awareness of treatment and other resources for compulsive/problem gambling that are available in Minnesota.

"Gambling is becoming an increasingly popular pastime among Minnesotans," state Roger Svendsen and Julie Halberg of the Minnesota Institute of Public Health.. "A Minnesota Planning department report shows that in 1991 gross gambling sales were $558 per capita. Minnesota now ranks fourth in the nation for per capita spending on gambling. After prize payouts, actual gambling losses per capita in Minnesota were $117."

Per capita figures involve all residents of Minnesota, including the many who do not gamble, so the numbers should be viewed in that context. Perhaps the figures could be at least doubled if only those who gamble were included in the statistics.

Studies conducted by the University of Minnesota for the Department of Human Services indicate that seven per cent of Minnesota adults are problem gamblers and 1.5 per cent are potential or probably pathological gamblers. The studies also conclude that 6.3 per cent of Minnesota teens have gambling problems with an additional 19.9 per cent "at risk" of developing problems. Experts in compulsive and problem gambling have commented that, as opportunities to gamble increase, compulsive and problem gambling will also increase.

It is noteworthy that Marvin Windows in Warroad recently conducted a seminar on problem gambling, aware of the potential for severe problems among the employees of that company and others in a community where one of the legal casinos in the state is now located.

The Minnesota Institute of Public Health has been contracted to design and implement the public awareness campaign being planned by the Department of Human Services. An advertising agency has been subcontracted by the Minnesota Institute to assist with the development of creative materials.

The Minnesota Institute of Public Health also operates the Minnesota Compulsive Gambling Hotline and will be coordinating the efforts between the Hotline and the six state-funded compulsive gambling treatment centers in Minnesota.

"For some people gambling is an addictive disorder," Svendsen and Halberg said. "The Minnesota Department of Human Services and the Minnesota Institute of Public Health are dedicated to helping compulsive and problem gamblers and the people who are concerned about them.

We believe the surface is just being scratched in regard to problems which will develop as the gambling boom becomes more entrenched in our state's society. In a state which has many problems already, we really don't need to have any more. And as usual, the cost of problems developed by the few must be borne by the general public, and that means all of those who don't gamble as well as those who do. If you want a sure bet, you can bet that human services costs will rise because of gambling in the future.

For more information regarding the public awareness campaign, contact Roger Svendsen or Julie Halberg at the Minnesota Institute of Public Health, phone 612-224-5121.

For information about compulsive and problem gambling call the Minnesota Compulsive Gambling Hotline at 1-800-437-3641.

With the proliferation of gaming casinos in Minnesota, most conversations of any duration usually get around to some discussion of visits to these gambling houses, either first person or as comments received from someone else. There is word of occasional winners; very little word about the likely more frequent losers.

Minnesota Department of Human Services is aware of problems developing in the state and has announced plans for a new public awareness campaign aimed at sensitizing Minnesota residents to gambling problems and creating awareness of treatment and other resources for compulsive/problem gambling that are available in Minnesota.

"Gambling is becoming an increasingly popular pastime among Minnesotans," state Roger Svendsen and Julie Halberg of the Minnesota Institute of Public Health.. "A Minnesota Planning department report shows that in 1991 gross gambling sales were $558 per capita. Minnesota now ranks fourth in the nation for per capita spending on gambling. After prize payouts, actual gambling losses per capita in Minnesota were $11."

Per capita figures involve all residents of Minnesota, including the many who do not gamble, so the numbers should be viewed in that context. Perhaps the figures could be at least doubled if only those who gamble were included in the statistics.

Studies conducted by the University of Minnesota for the Department of Human Services indicate that seven per cent of Minnesota adults are problem gamblers and 1.5 per cent are potential or probably pathological gamblers. The studies also conclude that 6.3 per cent of Minnesota teens have gambling problems with an additional 19.9 per cent "at risk" of developing problems. Experts in compulsive and problem gambling have commented that, as opportunities to gamble increase, compulsive and problem gambling will also increase.

It is noteworthy that Marvin Windows in Warroad recently conducted a seminar on problem gambling, aware of the potential for severe problems among the employees of that company and others in a community where one of the legal casinos in the state is now located.

The Minnesota Institute of Public Health has been contracted to design and implement the public awareness campaign being planned by the Department of Human Services. An advertising agency has been subcontracted by the Minnesota Institute to assist with the development of creative materials.

The Minnesota Institute of Public Health also operates the Minnesota Compulsive Gambling Hotline and will be coordinating the efforts between the Hotline and the six state-funded compulsive gambling treatment centers in Minnesota.

"For some people gambling is an addictive disorder," Svendsen and Halberg said. "The Minnesota Department of Human Services and the Minnesota Institute of Public Health are dedicated to helping compulsive and problem gamblers and the people who are concerned about them.

We believe the surface is just being scratched in regard to problems which will develop as the gambling boom becomes more entrenched in our state's society. In a state which has many problems already, we really don't need to have any more. And as usual, the cost of problems developed by the few must be borne by the general public, and that means all of those who don't gamble as well as those who do. If you want a sure bet, you can bet that human services costs will rise because of gambling in the future.

For more information regarding the public awareness campaign, contact Roger Svendsen or Julie Halberg at the Minnesota Institute of Public Health, phone 612-224-5121.

For information about compulsive and problem gambling call the Minnesota Compulsive Gambling Hotline at 1-800-437-3641.

County recycling has high and low spots

(Editor's Note: Following is the [illegible] in a series of three articles on [illegible] solid waste program in Pennington County.)

by Howard Person
Pennington County
Solid Waste Officer

[illegible] first article I commented [illegible] facilities involved with the current [illegible] waste facility and how [illegible] run. The second article [illegible] on state mandates [illegible] Pennington has or will have [illegible] in the coming 1-3 years. In [illegible] article I will address recy[illegible] we are recycling in Pen[illegible] and some of the [illegible] as well as the problems [illegible] face.

[illegible] county, our main [illegible] has been land fill avoid[illegible] we have no site of our [illegible] currently have to depend [illegible] Forks for land fill facili[illegible]. The state, on the other hand, [illegible] of waste reduction as a [illegible]. They like to reduce the use [illegible] fills and incineration but [illegible] to reduce the amount of [illegible] each of us generates. While this works with our system in general, it does create a few problems.

Our current system directly recycles several materials off the line as the waste is being processed. This is in contrast to what several surrounding counties have with their voluntary recycling programs with roll-off containers in each community. As waste goes through the county facility, metals are removed magnetically or by hand and are sold in the Winnipeg scrap metal market. Aluminum cans are removed by hand and marketed through the Occupational Development Center.

Corrugated cardboard is removed by hand, baled and sold to a paper recycler in the Twin Cities. Type 1 plastic, called PETE, includes materials like plastic soda and liquor bottles. Type 2 plastic, called HDPE, are containers like milk jugs, soap and oil containers. These materials are removed by hand, baled and sold to a plastics firm in the Twin Cities. Glass is ground, goes into the composting operation and is later screened out and used for road bed fill.

Two big problems currently exist with all recycling facilities. The first is price. Current markets for most recyclables are 50 per cent to 75 per cent less than what they were five years ago. As more people recycle and states develop their recycling programs, the markets for recyclables become over loaded to the point where materials such as newspaper can't even be given away, but rather it costs you just to get the product to the recycler's front door. While there are some manufactures building now which can use many of these materials, it will be at least a few years before this glut of recycled materials begins to lighten up.

The second big problem with recycling has been materials quality and purity. Most market outlets have become extremely sensitive to the purity of their recycled materials. As an example, Anchor Glass—which recycles most of the clear and colored glass in the state—has rejected entire semi loads of glass because they found one or two pieces of ceramic material in the load. When the price of the recycled materials barely covers the price of transportation and entire loads are rejected, the cost of recycling automatically goes way up.

Our system has an advantage in this regard since the people at the facility are trained to remove only those materials that can be recycled. While all voluntary programs are nice and perhaps even cheaper up front, all their material needs to be sold to a broker who then sorts through it to make sure it's all recyclable goods. Without this middle man, the materials would not make grade with the manufacturers and would be rejected.

But the middle man costs money as well and with most material prices down, it's costing these voluntary programs substantial amounts of money to get rid of their recycled materials.

Pennington county does collect materials on a voluntary basis with the recycling bins located at the facility. The bin site accepts clear, green and brown glass, types 1 and 2 plastic, aluminum cans, tin cans and scrap clothing. All these materials are directly recycled with the other recycled materials at the facility except for the glass which is sent to a recycler in Grand Forks.

The two main problems we face with recycling at present are, as I mentioned, (1) falling prices with a mandate to recycle more materials which have less value and (2) the cost of the facility as a whole. Since the facility is paid for mostly by those who use the service, costs are calculated on a per ton basis to cover needed expenses. As we recycle more materials for less money and reduce the amount of waste we generate, our volume goes down and we must either increase our volume elsewhere or increase fees to cover the added costs. This added cost of processing, while at the same time receiving less for recycled materials, is the main reason the county has not gone further with voluntary recyclables sites.

While we all realize the need to reduce the amount of waste we generate and to reuse and recycle all we can, we must also realize that it takes time for markets to develop for these recycled materials and time for people to adjust to new programs and that until these things happen, it's going to be confusing and a bit more expensive to get the job done.

Impressions . . .

Beth Johnson

Graduation is fast approaching. This year, unlike other years, I am intimately involved in this event. My eldest son is graduating from high school.

Graduation makes me nostalgic. I am remembering other graduations in my life. None of them seem so important as this graduation of my son's.

I don't remember whether or not I had a kindergarten or elementary school graduation. But, I do remember my graduation from Bunker Junior High school.

In Muskegon, Michigan, we graduated from 9th grade. There was a formal ceremony marking the end of our early education years and the beginning of high school. This graduation was a solemn, important—at least to us junior high graduates—occasion. Every year for this graduation, there was a contest to see which student could write the words to the class song. This song was sung to the tune "Work for the Night is Coming." What a tune to choose for young teens to use for their class song!

Well, as luck would have it, my Latin teacher decided that I would be the lucky one to write the words to our class song. I wanted nothing to do with that— who wants to be the nerd who does something different??!!

But, even though I planned my escape from this predetermined songwriting event, I was the writer of our class song. So, on that eventful graduation day, I and all of my classmates sang "Now as the school year closes..."

My high school graduation was also memorable. I graduated a few short years ago from the high school in Muskegon, Michigan. There were 500 in my graduating class. It was the time in our nation's history in which violence between the races was prevelant. My city high school was not a stranger to racial violence. It was something we experienced regularly.

On the day we practiced for our baccalaureate service, I happened to be the person who led the class off the stage. As I did, I led the class right into a stabbing incident. Our school became a place of fear that last week of my high school years.

Graduation itself was impressive. Our ceremony was held at the L.C. Walker Arena—the place of many hockey games. The music played for our graduation was the 1812 Overture by Tschaikovsky. It was the first time I heard this piece performed. I was duly impressed.

After graduation it was not tradition in that town to go from one home to the next as is traditionally done here. Instead, each student had his or her private party. We had another family over for dessert. No relatives were with us as we did not live near any of them.

My college graduation was in Chicago. It was a memorable time, but more for the events surrounding my graduation than for the actual ceremony. Immediately following graduation, my husband and I were to depart for our first church. So, graduation was spent packing up our few possessions and saying farewell to family and friends. My husband and I both graduated that year—he from seminary and I from college. Our son was also there, as I was expecting him. So, if you can imagine pregnancy, graduation and moving, all at the same time, you will probably imagine how memorable this graduation was!

Now, 18 years later, our son is graduating. I wonder if the other graduations in my life kept my mother as busy as this one has kept me. Maybe it's the traditional open house that causes us all the work—or maybe it's being a parent, not a graduate. How nice it would be to simply graduate. How nice it would be to leave the worrying to someone else.

But, with a bit of worry, and a bit of love, and a bit of laughter, and much encouragement, graduation will come to our children. We wish them all the best for their graduation day and for their futures.

Memorial Day recalls World War II events

they were limited to eating three biscuits and a slice of bread each day for the first three days. "We weren't sure when the Japanese might be back."

At Amchitka, where 120,000 troops were stationed, the soldiers again built five runways, the largest of which was five miles long for B29 planes, the largest bombers they had at the time. The plan was apparently to invade Japan from the north and east.

Did they have any contact with the Japanese there at Amchitka? "Not really," Clair answers," but for the first ten days we were there, the Japanese would fly over at each meal time and machine gun the tents. When the U.S. patrol planes came in from the east, the Japanese went the other way." This only lasted until the first runway was built. However Amchitka, which is about 400 miles from Adak, was also only 40 miles from Kiska, which was occupied by the Japanese. The island was about three miles wide and 42 miles long.

While at Amchitka, Clair relates that he lived in a tent with a dirt (or mud?) floor. A coal burner provided the heat. Clair says that it wasn't as cold as Minnesota.

Because of the variation in the weather and conditions, he adds that they had different footwear for every day, including Alaskan boots, pack shoes, GI shoes and rubber knee boots.

Eventually, Clair was reassigned to Camp Roberts in the states for the remainder of the war. There he became an instructor in a 17-week training course on staying alive. The message was "to stay down, spread out or one shell could kill everyone." The men were taught to dig foxholes and use camoflage.

He returned to his home southeast of St. Hilaire in 1944 and farmed there until his retirement in 1985.

Frank Gibbs

Frank Gibbs of St. Hilaire grew up in Winnipeg and, in 1938, had joined the Canadian cavalry, which, he says, was a kind of "national guard" unit. September 1939 is a memorable month for him. He was visiting Thief River Falls as a trumpet player in a marching band for the International War Veterans Conference. As it happened a young lady named Isabel Rosendahl was a member of the drum and bugle corps sponsored by the American Legion Post in Thief River Falls and Frank met her that week.

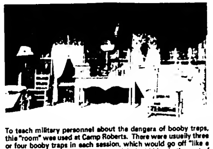
That was also the week that England announced that it had declared war on Germany and Canada immediately followed suit.

While at Amchitka, there were several "K-9" military dogs, used for patroling the beaches at night. One of these had puppies, two of which were "adopted" by the men in Clair's tent. The dogs were fed leftovers and were very much enjoyed as companions. Clair is shown here with a friend and their puppy.

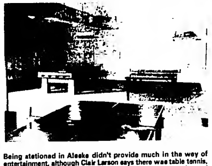
As soon as Frank returned to Winnipeg he transferred from the cavalry unit to a reconnaissance unit using Whippet tanks. He later transferred to the Canadian Air Force and spent the war working in a supply unit. He was stationed at several different training facilities, including St. Thomas, Ontario; Winnipeg (in a radio school); Rivers, Manitoba (a training school for navigators) and Gimley, Manitoba (gunnery training). At these facilities, Frank recalls, training was provided, not only to Canadian troops, but men from South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, England and India.

During this time Frank, who started in the Canadian Air Force at the rank of Basic Airman, had taken a series of tests and risen to the rank of Permanent Corporal. In supply, he explains, one had to know all phases of operation, such as fuel handling, warehouse handling, clothing and food distribution.

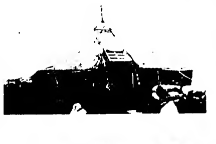
In 1940, he was married to Isabel Rosendahl. They were able to live together at Gimley, but later, when he was transferred to Whitehorse, Yukon Territory, she had to stay in Winnipeg for several months until housing was available for dependents at Whitehorse. The housing was built by PanAmerican Airlines, which had a contract to ferry people in and out of Whitehorse. The company constructed a hotel and 12 quadruplexes in town which were completely modern. Much of the rest of the community was made up of log houses, built during the gold rush.



To teach military personnel about the dangers of booby traps, this "room" was used at Camp Roberts. There were usually three or four booby traps in each session, which would go off "like a fire cracker" when touched. These might be hidden in the seat of a chair, a lamp switch, the record player or even the toilet seat.



Being stationed in Alaska didn't provide much in the way of entertainment, although Clair Larson says there was table tennis, pool and basketball available at Adak, there were no movies and the men were thrilled to get letters from home.



Living conditions at Amchitka, Clair Larson explains were not luxurious, as the men lived in tents with a dirt floors and coal burners for heat. There would be four men in a 16-foot pyramid tent (top photo), which had to be sand-bagged on the sides to keep it from blowing away. Their bunks were in the mud, until they were able to collect enough wood for a floor. "This procedure," Clair explains, "was known as a 'midnight requisition.' A piece or two at a time would be gathered down at the beach." Later quonset prefab huts (bottom photo) were built down in the ground for the men to live in.

After the PanAmerican Airlines contract ended, the housing was turned over to the Canadian government and assigned to military personnel, including an apartment for Frank and Isabel. After she joined him there, their daughter, Michele Carol, was born at an American military hospital near Whitehorse.

The Americans maintained a base near the Canadian air field. Whitehorse was the hub of the construction of the Alaskan Highway, from Poucecape' (by Watson Lake) through a corner of British Columbia and on to southern Alaska. There were also several relief air fields along the route to allow for emergency landings for fighter planes.

While at Whitehorse, Frank was responsible for coordinating supplies with the American base. He recalls that the Canadians were responsible for cleaning the runway and supplied their own food, but purchased gasoline and oil from the American base. He also had to visit three relief air fields each month, at Teslin Lake, Snag (on the Yukon border) and Aiskiak. There were 20 to 30 men at each and Frank made sure they had adequate supplies.

While at Whitehorse, Frank remembers that he and his wife were able to do a lot of exploring and could visit a suspension bridge at Miles Canyon where boats were portaged on carts over tracks made of logs laid on ties. There were numerous mines, mostly copper, in the area and they even found a few gold nuggets in the streams.

On one occasion, Frank and a couple of friends were camping near a shallow stream and noticed "gold stuff all over under the water." They got very excited and the following weekend, returned with waders, shovels and pans and "worked and worked and worked." They seemed to have a problem separating the gold from the gravel, however, and returned to Whitehorse to ask some of the oldtimers for advice. They learned that what they had discovered was "flour gold," which required special equipment using mercury in the riffles to pick up the gold. Another process was then necessary to remove the gold from the mercury. At the price of $32 per ounce, it wasn't worth the effort.

Frank remained at Whitehorse until 1944, when he returned to Stevenson Air Field in Winnipeg. A few months later, after the war ended, he mustered out. Frank then moved to St. Hilaire, where he worked purchasing eggs for Land O'Lakes and driving a school bus for the St. Hilaire school for a time and later enlisted in the U.S. Army. He remained in the U.S. military service for 26 years, during which he served in the Korean and Vietnamese conflicts. He retired as a First Sergeant and presendy lives in St. Hilaire.

A MARRIAGE REQUIRES A LOT OF PREPARATION TO SUCCEED

The day you both say, "I do," is not really the beginning of your marriage, but it should be the culmination of a lot of preparation and discussion of the issues that are likely to become points of contention after the ceremony. These can include a wide range of topics, such as how many children, money matters, working wives, religion, division of household chores, recreational activities and a host of other things. All of these should be ironed out beforehand, so that the only surprises that await you newlyweds will be pleasant ones. However, if some problems do arise, go to your House of Worship, which you should do in any case, and talk to your clergyman about them. After all, he performed your marriage; perhaps he can help you save it.

> A marriage without conflicts is almost as inconceivable as a nation without crises.

INSURANCE Update

by Dee Schmidtgall

When one applies for business insurance, specific questions are asked about the business itself, as well as personal background. The statements and answers given on an application are known as representations. If false or inaccurate information is given, the insurance company would be permitted to void the insurance contract. Also, if it is discovered that the one applying has purposely failed to divulge information or attempted to conceal it, the company would be permitted to void the contract. It is in the best interest of everyone concerned to give a complete picture of any unusual risk or hazards that could perhaps cause a company to decline from writing the account in the first place. Then there are no unhappy surprises in the event of a major claim.

NORTHERN STATE AGENCY represents several Minnesota based companies that are committed to serving you. NORTHERN STATE AGENCY can tailor a policy to meet your needs. Give us a call today at 681-4042. NOTICE

"If the home you now own and live in was not being used by you - or by the previous owner - as a home on January 2, 1992, you can reduce the amount of property tax you will pay on your home in 1993 by applying to have the property classified as a homestead.

However, you must have moved into the home you now own and live in before June 1, 1992, to apply to have the property classified as a homestead.

As a result of having the home you own and live in classified as a homestead, your property's taxable value will be calculated at a lower percentage of its estimated market value than if it is not classified as a homestead.

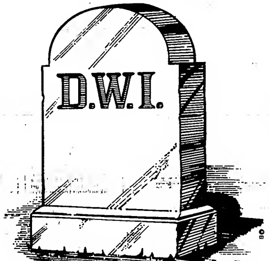
Will this old acquaintance be forgot?



When Charlie left the Graduation party he said "see you next year". But unfortunately, he didn't live to see the following day.

He was just one of thousands of ordinary people who are killed or injured in alcohol-related auto accidents each year.

And what his friends will remember most, is that they just didn't notice that he had had too much to drink before he got behind the wheel.

Please make a resolution to use good judgement. Don't drink and drive. And watch out for the other guy, too.

8AA play opens at two sites

First round North Sub-Section 8AA high school baseball tournament games – Moorhead at Thief River Falls and Detroit Lakes at Alexandria – were scheduled to be played at 4:30 p.m. today (Tuesday).

Winners move on to Fergus Falls Wednesday when the Moorhead-Thief River Falls winner takes on Fergus Falls and the Detroit Lakes-Alexandria winner goes against Bemidji in 1 p.m. semifinals. Championship game will be played at 4:30 that afternoon.

Thief River Falls is 11-6 for the year, 2-2 against North Sub-Section 8AA foes. A single regular season Thief River Falls-Moorhead meeting produced a 6-2 win for the Spuds at Matson Field back on April 28. In other 8AA outings, the Prowlers beat Detroit Lakes 6-4 and split with Bemidji – losing the first encounter 6-2, but winning the rematch 12-6.

That 12-6 victory over the Lumberjacks was part of a four-game regular season-ending winning streak for the Prowlers, who scored 49 runs while beating Superior, WI, Crookston, Bemidji and Middle River/Marshall County Central.

TRF Babe Ruth parent meeting is set Thursday

A meeting for parents of Thief River Falls Babe Ruth baseball players will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the basement meeting room at the Law Enforcement Center.

Practice schedules will be distributed at the meeting.

First Babe Ruth practice sessions will be held Sunday at 12-noon, with the 13-year-olds meeting at the Northland Community College diamond, while the 14-15-year-olds report to Irv Wilson Field.

Section 8A Sub-Section 3 high school baseball...

Rebels lose first round game

Middle River/Marshall County Central will not be making a return trip to the Class A state baseball tournament this spring. The Rebels, who won the Region 8A title a year ago, lost in the first round of the revised 1992 playoff format Monday – an 8-1 Memorial Day setback at the hands of Fertile-Beltrami in Section 8A Sub-Section 3.

In other first-round match-ups, Ada-Borup/Gary/Norman County West beat Badger/Greenbush/Tri-County 5-1 and Red Lake Falls got by Hallock-Humboldt-St. Vincent/Kennedy/Kittson County North 1-0.

Sub-Section 3 play continues Thursday at Ada. Semifinal games will find top-seeded Crookston playing Fertile-Beltrami at 1 p.m. and Red Lake Falls vs. Ada-Borup/Gary/Norman County West at 3:30. Championship game will be played at 6 that night.

Middle River/Marshall County Central finished the year 7-10. The Rebels split a high-scoring May 12 regular season doubleheader with the Falcons – losing 17-7 and winning 9-7 – but they couldn't solve the soft curves offered up by Fertile-Beltrami pitcher Gary Jensrud Monday. Jensrud retired the side in order the first three innings and did not give up a hit until the fifth, finishing with a three-hit shutout, seven strike-outs and just one walk.

"He (Jensrud) pitched a good game," pointed out Middle River/Marshall County Central coach Jerald Hagen. "He didn't throw hard, but he had our players lunging for the ball. We weren't patient enough at the plate."

And five errors led to four unearned Fertile-Beltrami runs. "The first play of the game was an error, and that kind of set the tone for the day," noted Hagen.

Fertile-Beltrami followed that game-opening error with a pair of doubles and a single for a 3-0 head start. It became 5-0 in the third, 6-0 in the fourth and 8-0 in the top of the fifth.

Only Middle River/Marshall County Central offense of the day occurred in the bottom of the fifth when singles by Jason Simmons, John Sparby and Chad Bjorgaard produced the Rebels' lone run.

Shane Borg pitched the first three innings for the Rebels and took the loss. Troy Myhrer also pitched three innings in relief and Jarrett Walton worked the seventh, when he struck out the side. The three Middle River/Marshall County Central pitchers struck out six and walked two.

Thief River Falls second baseman Nathan Knutson stepped on the bag and threw to first base, over the head of Bemidji runner Ben May, to complete a fourth inning double play in last week's high school baseball game at Irv Wilson Field. The Prowlers were scheduled to host Moorhead today (Tuesday) in a 4:30 p.m. first round North Sub-Section 8AA tournament game. The winner advances to Wednesday's semifinals/finals in Fergus Falls.

Facilities at Old Mill State Park have been the targets this year for some much-needed improvement projects. Bridges, pool, picnic grounds, sanitation system, picnic shelter, and water supply are all undergoing major upgrading at the park.

The swimming pool, originally a W.P.A. project completed in 1939, has been dredged of silt that was accumulated during the years before 1973 when the Middle River was the water source for the pool. Hundreds of yards of sand have been laid, giving the beach and pool a fresh sand bottom. The foot bridges near the pool have also been upgraded for safety.

In the picnic grounds area, a new septic system and lift station are currently being installed, replacing a sanitary system dating back to the 1930's. The increase in park visitor numbers and the deterioration of the old system had put the much-needed replacement into emergency status.

The once 'flowing well' which supplies the campground and also is used to fill the pool, was pulled, cleaned and developed this winter. The results find the well now producing three times as much water as in recent years. Park officials made sure the pool would be completely filled well before Memorial Day.

Planning is underway for remodeling the picnic shelter at the park. The picnic pavilion is among nine structures in the park that are listed on the National Register of Historic Places, and is the best example of WPA-era cut stone masonry at Old Mill State Park. The picnic shelter is popular for church gatherings, family reunions, youth outings and interpretive programs both summer and winter. It is planned to upgrade the inadequate lighting, power, safety, and counter space, while preserving the historical integrity of the building.

Like Old Mill, most of the parks in the Minnesota state park system have aging facilities, while park use has skyrocketed to eight million visitors per year. The 66 state parks have 1,600 buildings, 32 miles of waterlines, 280 wells, 4,000 campsites, and 72 bridges among the many facilities maintained. A sound infrastructure is essential for state parks to protect the environment, and provide safe facilities for visitors, it was noted by Old Mill State Park officials.

RN students conduct own health fair

More than 200 students from Northrop, Knox and Mark Twain elementary schools in Thief River Falls attended the Northland Community college health fair sponsored by RN students who will be graduating this quarter from Northland Community college.

Purpose of the health fair was to focus on education and wellness instead of illness. Every nursing student was required to set up a booth and demonstration for the health fair.

"The elementary students flocked from booth to booth as they learned what to do if someone was choking or the importance of good oral hygiene," stated Katy Henke, director of college relations.

Several of the booths included medical equipment loaned to the college by Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls.

"Elementary students were able to see the importance wellness plays in leading healthy, active lives," Henke said.

The Skjerven family left here Saturday morning and returned home Sunday evening, having done some sightseeing while in Duluth.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The City Of Thief River Falls Water Department announces that the State maximum limit for turbidity in drinking water of one turbidity unit was exceeded during the month of April 1992. The monthly average for turbidity was 1.38.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand, or organic matter in water. Turbidity can be a problem if it interferes with the Chloramine used for disinfection. However, the turbidity level did not create a health hazard because the Water Department is able to maintain effective levels of disinfection.

The Thief River Falls Water Purification Plant is currently in the construction stage of a 8.7 million dollar expansion and remodeling project. This project will enable compliance with the water quality requirements of the 1986 Amendments to the Safe Drinking Water Act.

Please be assured that the water is safe to drink. Any citizen seeking additional information should contact Allen J. Lemm, at the Water Purification Plant phone number 681-3809.

RESOLUTION AWARDING SALE

RECITALS

WHEREAS, Minnesota Statutes, Section 373.01, Subd. 3, authorizes the County to issue notes to provide money for the purchase of public safety equipment, ambulance and other medical equipment, road construction or maintenance equipment, and data processing equipment, provided such equipment has an expected useful life at least as long as the term of such notes; and

WHEREAS, Such statute authorizes the County to issue such capital equipment notes without a referendum; and

WHEREAS, The Association of Minnesota Counties has endorsed the Minnesota Municipalities Equipment Purchasing Program (the "Program") whereby participating municipalities, by simultaneously issuing their capital equipment notes, may be able to reduce their debt service and issuance costs below what could be achieved if they issued separately; and

WHEREAS, The Program involves the execution and delivery of Certificates of Participation (the "Certificates of Participation" or "Certificates") evidencing proportionate interests in payments of principal and interest on certain notes issued by participating municipalities (the "Municipalities") in connection with the Program, including the Notes described herein; and

WHEREAS, The Program requires that the County enter into a Trust Agreement dated as of May 1, 1992 (the "Trust Agreement") with American National Bank and Trust Company, in St. Paul, Minnesota, as trustee ("Trustee"), in substantially the form presented to this Board and on file at the office of the County Auditor, and

WHEREAS, the Notes to be executed by the County shall mature and bear interest and contain such other terms as are set forth in the Trust Agreement, and

WHEREAS, The aggregate principal amount of Notes issued by the County under the Program shall not exceed $75,000; and

BE IT RESOLVED, by the Board of Commissioners of the County of Pennington, Minnesota, as follows:

THE PROGRAM

1.1 This Board finds that it is necessary and expedient to participate in the Program and to simultaneously with other Municipalities issue its General Obligation Capital Equipment Notes, Series 1992A (the "Notes") in the aggregate principal amount of $75,000 and to authorize the execution of and delivery of Minnesota Municipalities Equipment Purchasing Program Certificates of Participation, Series 1992A evidencing proportionate ownership interests in payments of principal and interest to be made by the County in connection with the Notes.

1.2 The offer of Piper Jaffray Inc.

County Board Proceedings

(the "Purchaser") to purchase the Notes on terms set forth herein and in the Confirmation form attached hereto as Exhibit A (the "Confirmation Form"), which was verbally accepted by the County Auditor pursuant to the Authorizing Resolution is hereby determined to be a favorable offer therefor. The award of sale to said Purchaser is hereby confirmed, approved and ratified and the execution of the Confirmation Form by the Chairman of the Board of Commissioners and County Auditor is hereby authorized and directed.

1.3 The Notes shall be substantially in the form and otherwise containing the provisions set forth in the form of the General Obligation Capital Equipment Notes, Series 1992A contained in the Trust Agreement, which terms and conditions are hereby approved and incorporated in this Resolution and made a part hereof.

1.4 The Notes are general obligations of the County to which the full faith, credit and unlimited taxing powers of the County have been and are hereby pledged. There is hereby created a separate debt service fund for the Notes, which shall be held by the Treasurer and used for no other purpose that to pay the principal of and interest on the notes, provided, that if any transfer is required to be made to the Debt Service Account held by the Trustee under the Trust Agreement when there is not sufficient money in said fund to pay the same, the Treasurer shall make such payment for principal and interest from the general fund of the County, and the general fund shall be reimbursed for such advances out of the proceeds of taxes levied pursuant hereto or other moneys appropriated by the Board of Commissioners for such purpose. For the purpose of paying the principal and interest on the Notes, there is hereby levied on all taxable property within the corporate limits of the County a general ad valorem tax in the years collectible and in the amounts provided as follows:

Listed in the order of Levy Year, Year Collectible and Amount.

It is hereby found and determined that such levies are sufficient (with the taxes heretofore levied and unappropriated reserves appropriated hereby) that if collected in full they will produce at least five percent in excess of the amount needed to pay principal of and interest on the Notes when due. Said tax levies shall be irrepealable, but the County reserves the right to reduce said levy in the manner and to the extent permitted by law, and to reduce the levy to conform to the actual debt service.

THE CERTIFICATES

2.1 The Trust Agreement is hereby approved and shall be executed on behalf of the County by the Chairman of the Board of Commissioners and County Auditor in substantially the form on file, but with all such changes therein, not inconsistent with law, as may be approved by the officers executing the same, which approval shall be conclusively evidenced by the execution thereof.

2.2 The Trustee is hereby authorized and directed to execute and deliver the Certificates of Participation, Series 1992A on behalf of the County and other municipalities participating in the Program, pursuant to the terms of the Trust Agreement, in the aggregate principal amount specified in the Trust Agreement and substantially in the form and otherwise containing the provisions set forth in the form of the Certificate of Participation contained in the Trust Agreement, which terms and provisions are hereby approved and incorporated in this Resolution and made a part hereof.

2.3 The Certificates of Participation shall be executed by the Trustee in accordance with the Trust Agreement. When so prepared in accordance with the Trust Agreement. When so prepared and executed, the Certificates of Participation shall be delivered to the purchasers thereof upon payment of the purchase price thereof, and such purchase price shall be delivered to the County, pursuant to the terms of the Trust Agreement.

MISCELLANEOUS

3.1 The Chairman of the Board of Commissioners, the County Auditor and other appropriate officers of the County are hereby authorized and directed to prepare and furnish to the Purchaser of the Notes and to the attorneys approving the same, certified copies of all proceedings and records of the County relating to the power and authority of the County to issue said Notes and to execute and deliver the Notes, the Trust Agreement and certifications as to matters within their knowledge or as shown by the books and records under their custody and control, including a no-litigation certificate, a no-arbitrage certificate, and a certificate of the County Auditor as to the Official Statement, and such certified copies and certificates shall be deemed representations of the County as to the facts stated therein.

3.2 The County Auditor is hereby authorized and directed to certify a copy of this Resolution and to cause the same to be filed in the office of the County Auditor of Pennington County under Minnesota Statutes, Section 475.63, and to obtain a certificate as to registration of the Notes.

3.3 The appropriate officers of the County are hereby authorized and directed to prepare and submit to the Secretary of the Treasury a statement meeting the information reporting requirements of Section 149 (e) of the Internal Revenue code of 1986 (the "Code") by the 15th day of the second calendar month after the close of the calendar quarter in which the Notes are issued or other applicable date.

3.4 The form of Official Statement in connection with the sale of the Certificates of Participation presented to this meeting is hereby approved, and the Purchaser is authorized to distribute such Official Statement to the purchasers of the Certificates.

3.5 Investments of the proceeds of the Notes and investments of moneys in the Debt Service Account required by Section 4.02 of the Trust Agreement and the debt service account described herein shall be limited as to amount and yield of investment in such manner and to the extent required that no part of the outstanding Notes or the outstanding Certificates shall be deemed "arbitrage bonds" under Section 148 of the Code. This Board finds that the exception for small governmental units available under Section 148 (f) (C) of the Code is applicable to the Notes because (i) the County has general taxing powers, (ii) the Notes are not private activity bonds under Section 141 (a) of the Code, (iii) ninety-five percent of more of the net proceeds of the Notes are to be used for local governmental activities of the County and (iv) the aggregate face amount of all tax-exempt bonds (other than private activity bonds) which will be issued by the County during 1992 is not reasonably expected to exceed $5,000,000.

3.6 The Notes are hereby designated as "Qualified tax exempt obligations" pursuant to section 265 (b) (3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended. This Board finds that the reasonably anticipated amount of tax exempt obligations (other than private activity bonds) which will be issued by the county (together with all other entities which issue obligations on behalf of the County and any entities formed or availed of to avoid the limitations on the amounts which may be so designated) does not exceed $10 million.

Commissioner Jensen discussed the meeting at Red Lake Falls concerning the Dead Animal Service pickup and reviewed the NWRDC Transportation Committee's prioritization of roads.

Commissioner Jensen moved, seconded by Commissioner Koop to approve the minutes of April 14, 1992 as written. Motion carried.

Moved by Commissioner Koop, seconded by Commissioner Jensen to adjourn to May 12th, 1992 at 10:00 A.M. Motion carried.

43rd Northwest Dairy Day in TRF June 9

Northwest 43rd Annual Dairy Day will be held in Thief River Falls on Tuesday, June 9.

Knight avenue between First and Third street will be closed to traffic. Those registered for Dairy Days will be able to use the street for preparing for dairy day. Water will be available beginning at between 7 and 7:30 a.m.

Residents interested in taking in the activities can observe a demonstration in showmanship by Nancy Geske of Thief River Falls beginning at 9:30 a.m. Geske was last year's reserve champion showman.

Junior showmanship begins at 10 a.m. and following junior showmanship will be senior showmanship. The judges for this year's Dairy Days are Conrad Kvamme of Little Falls and Robert Slayter of Mahtowa, MN.

The entry list includes several classes for Holstein, Ayrshires, Milking Shorthorn, Brown Swiss, Guernsey, and Jersey: class I for calves born after 11-30-91 but before 2-28-92; class II for calves born after 8-31-91 but before 12-1-91; class III for junior yearlings born after 2-28-91 and before 9-1-91; class IV for senior yearlings born after 8-31-90 and before 3-1-91; class V for cattle born after 8-31-89 and before 9-1-90, class VI for cattle born before 9-1-89.

Usually, the Dairy Princess contest is held at noon along with an awards ceremony. This year, the Dairy Princess contest will not be held in Thief River Falls. It will be held in Bemidji the day before.

Main awards to be handed out at noon include: a special Dairy Day award; the Stewart Mcleod award, which will be given to a participant who has shown the most effort during the event; the Junior Champion Calf award sponsored by the Red River Valley Holstein Association; the Jerry Hamre Memorial Individual Dairy Herd award; the Grand Champion purebred of show will be announced; and the Grand Champion grade winner from last year gets the purebred calf.

Howard Person, Pennington County Extension Agent, said Region I Dairy Princess Janet Kiecker of Fosston, will be present. He said it might also be possible for

State investigates Arctco discrimination complaints

Two discrimination cases have been filed against a Thief River Falls manufacturer.

According to Mary Hedges, compliance director of the Minnesota department of human rights, two people have filed discrimination complaints against their former employer Arctco. Hedges said Judy Magner filed a complaint on October 23, 1991, and Roger Laverne Hinden filed a complaint on May 18, 1992. Both complaints have to do with allegations that Arctco did not reasonably accommodate individuals with physical limitations. She said Magner's complaint had to do with a pregnancy. Hinden's complaint involves back and heart problems.

Hedges said the complaints are being investigated. At this time, she said, Arctco should have been notified. In the notification they are given the opportunity to respond to the complaint. That response is then sent to the complainant.

Chris Twomey, chief executive officer at Arctco Inc. in Thief River Falls said Arctco is aware of both complaints and as a matter of policy does not comment on individual cases while they are in the process of being investigated. It is, however, important for the public to know, he said, that we believe we treat everyone fairly and equally and work very hard to do that. Twomey added that Arctco is confident the investigation will determine they have treated everyone fairly and equally.

During the department's investigation, the investigator will look at witness statements and then make a recommendation as to whether the employer made "reasonable accommodations" for the individuals.

The standard that the employer is held to is "reasonable accommodations" — that is, whether they made reasonable accommodations for the physical limitations of the complainant.

The investigator's supervisor will then sign off on the recommendation if there is enough evidence to show probable cause. If no probable cause is shown, then the complaint will be dismissed. If the investigator has reason to believe the complaint, the department will try to mediate a settlement.

There are other options available to the parties as well. It is always possible that the complaint could end up in court, but the parties could also reach a settlement on their own.

Hedges said the investigation could take six months to a year to complete.

Local officials hold informal meeting Tues.

Pennington county commissioners and Thief River Falls city council members met in an informal meeting Tuesday morning in what organizers of the event hope will be the beginning of more joint meetings. The meeting Tuesday was held to discuss items of joint interest such as proposed construction of a building at the Pioneer Village.

Few joint meetings of the city council and county board have been held in the past. Mayor Robert Reeve said he hoped that this meeting would lead to continued cooperation and further meetings.

Coordination of site preparation at Pioneer Village for the proposed construction of a building was the first item discussed by the group. Ralph Engelstad generously offered to donate $180,000 toward the cost of building a facility to house farm machinery at the village. One condition of the offer was site preparation by the city and county.

A number of items have to be resolved such as whether the building will be located in the northeast corner of the village or on the site of the old sewage treatment plant. Another issue is which buildings will be moved and to where.

Both groups have accepted the proposed project and responsibility for coordinating site preparation. Ron Lindberg, city technical and engineering services director, and George Broadwell, assistant county engineer, will be asked to coordinate activities.

Issues involving water and electricity for the proposed building were discussed as well as whether there should be a workshop and bathroom and parking. There seemed to be a consensus that Pioneer Village is a real asset to the community.

Other items discussed included the Interim Advisory Committee to study the sales tax, the Wetlands Act and a meeting to discuss issues surrounding the act which is scheduled for 10 a.m. Monday at the city auditorium.

Members of the city council and county board thought it important that representatives attend the meeting on the Wetlands act, as it affects all wetlands not currently covered under state and federal regulations.

Friends at graduation. Nancy Rominski and Gloria Clark both graduated from the Thief River Falls Technical College Sales and Marketing program Thursday night. They were among the 320 graduates, the largest class in the 43-year history of the school. Thursday night's graduation was also the first time the ceremony was held at the school.

Beginnings and endings at TC graduation in TRF

When about 320 students officially graduated from the Thief River Falls Technical College it was a first and a last for the school.

It was the largest class in the 43-year history of the school. A total of 324 students graduated this year. It was also the first time graduation ceremonies have been held on campus. Completion of the expanded gym allowed for the school to hold graduation at the school for the first time.

While it was a first for at least two things, it was also a last. Dr. Orley Ganderson, president of the technical college, explained that over the years the school has strived to meet new challenges and that has meant change. Throughout the 43-year history of the school, administration at the local level has been conducted under the supervision of the local school board. Gunderson publicly thanked the many individuals who have served on the board for School District 564 over the years. He thanked them because as of July 1, administration of the school will come under the supervision of the Northwest Technical College Coordinating Board, a consortium of six technical colleges in the region. While the supervision of the school passes to a group of individuals from a much larger geographic region, the school will be represented by local school board member Dennis Kiesow.

Commencement speaker, Gary Rutherford, president of the Rutherford Business Institute and founder of Classic Roadsters, Ltd. in Fargo, ND, also had some words about change. For the most part, schools have met many of the changes needed to continue to grow over the years and prepare students for the job market.

Preparing students for the job market is getting more difficult. Rutherford said statistics now indicate that on average, it takes a college graduate 12 to 15 months to find a job. Corporate profits are down he said and there's a lot of competition. He added that he doesn't know what the future holds, but believes it will get more difficult to get a job.

If corporations are creating as many jobs as they were 50 years ago, where are jobs being created? Rutherford explained that 70 per cent of all new jobs have been coming from companies with fewer than 20 employees.

Rutherford believes many of the small company employers will eventually include many graduates of vocational-technical schools. According to his research, vocational-technical school graduates have the highest chance of starting their own company. As he looked out over the graduates, Rutherford said in five to 10 years, one in 10 or maybe even one in 20 of the graduates will start their own company

"Pioneer" toys at TRF Village

The Pennington County Historical society will open a new feature this weekend as the new Children's center is available for the first time. This room, which is located in the former waiting room of the old Great Northern depot, is full of things that children can touch, examine and play with.

In the past, it seems that most young children visit the Village, only to be told "Don't Touch" over and over. Now there is something in the museum especially for them.

The new center will have a dress-up collection of hats, shoes, purses and old-fashioned blouses and shirts. There will blocks to build with, nursery rhyme pictures to color, and bean bags to throw at exciting targets. The center will also have a rocking dinosaur and a collection of hobby horses and rag dolls.

The blocks and bean bag toss games were donated by Art Heinze and the local Boy Scouts. The dinosaur was made for the village by Jim Cuppett. Hobby horses are being made by members of Nordiland Woodcrafters. Other groups in the area may be approached at a later date to add more kinds of toys.

The Pioneer Village museum is located on Oakland Park Road across from the tourist campground The Village is open every year from June 1 to September 30, on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays from 1 to 9 p.m. and Mondays, from 1 to 5 p.m. This month, as a trial period, the new Children's Center will be manned by volunteers on Sunday afternoons from 2 to 4 p.m. so that parents may leave children there while they explore the other buildings such as the one-room school, railroad depot and log cabins.

In addition to the new toys at the Children's Center, young people always seem to enjoy the two cabooses at the Village, the machinery displays and some of the other exhibits in the log cabins, for example.

Plummer senior group sponsors kids' essays

The Plummer senior citizen group recently announced the winners of the "Grandparents" essay contest entered by local children. In first place was Lori LaCoursiere, daughter of Gary and Sue LaCoursiere of Plummer. Second and third places, respectively, were Jenea Rewertz, daughter of Terry Newertz of Plummer and Ann Magers of Brooks and John Herndon, son of Dean and Kathy Huelsman.

The Best Person In My Life
by Lori LaCoursiere

I am going to write about my Grandma because she is so special to me. My Grandma lives in Plummer, a small town in Minnesota. She is a Senior Citizen, so she lives in the Senior Housing. I am glad to have my Grandma live in Plummer, so if there is a storm during school, and we get out early, I can go to her house.

My Grandma is like a warm house in the winter. It is always nice to go there for comfort. But it is hard for my Grandma to get around because she has MS. That stands for Multiple Sclerosis, so she can't walk. Grandma has had the disease for many years.

Grandma and I do as many things as we can together. My Mom and Dad usually bring Grandma to the family celebrations. We like to go places with her.

Grandma tries not to be a bother and to me she is not. I love to stay with her. She likes to play cards, make sweets, such as cookies, donuts and, my favorite, puppy chow.

Some people like to tease me because Grandma has to use a cart to get around, but that doesn't bother me. Even I like to ride in it.

I like summer the most, but the worst part of summer is when Grandma leaves for Springfield. I am so happy when she comes back. Sometimes she even has something for me.

The nery best part of my life was when I was going to meet my Grandma, but I can't remember it because I wasn't even 24 hours old. My mom told me that when my Grandma came to see me, she gave me the blanket that my Mom was in when she came home from the hospital.

My Grandma is an awesome cook. I have never tasted anything better than her pancakes and jelly.

When I'm at my Grandma's and we both have nothing to do, we get out a book and we read, because my Grandma once told me that a book can be your best friend! And I believe her.

My Two Grandmothers
by Jenea Rewertz

I have two very special people in my life and they are my Grandmothers. I feel very lucky because I have two Grandmas, and some kids don't even have one.

They are always there for me when I need them. They spoil me with lots of love and gifts, and they cheer me up when I am sad. They both help me when I need advice. Sometimes when I don't even ask for it, but that's OK, because they know a lot more than I do.

My one Grandma teaches me things like cooking, baking and helps me to think about God and to always have faith in Him. My other Grandma always reminds me to be happy about all the good things I have in life and not to be sad if I don't get everything I want. She is blind in one eye and some people might think that she can't see, but I know she can see a lot, because she always sees that I get all the love I need. There's something that I hear from everyone, but mostly from my Grandmas. It is not nice to make fun of people because of the way they walk, talk or act.

My Grandmas are always calling me to make sure I'm doing OK and if I need anything. They are always kind to me, and to other people, too. They work hard and don't complain too much.

When my parents are working or have things to do, I always can count on my Grandmas if I need help with anything, or if I need to go anywhere.

I feel very lucky and I love them very much. I hope that I could be like that when I become a Grandma, and my grandchildren write about me.

These are the two special people in my life and some of the reasons why!

My Grandpa
by John Herndon

I'm writing about by Grandpa because he is special to me.

My Grandpa John is my best friend. One day I was playing ball and I hurt my knee. I was about six years old at the time. My Grandpa brought me into the house and got me some ice and told me that it was just sprained.

My Grandpa always gives me fruit from his orchard. One day I was at his house, I was about nine years old then, my Grandpa went out to get me some apples. He was shaking the tree and an apple hit him on the nose and sprained it. His nose bled, and he was almost laughing, and I was, too. I bet that it hurt though. The same day in the afternoon, my Grandpa and I were cutting grass. He had his riding mower, and I had mine. His mower was old and he pushed on the brake and it did not work. He collided with the porch and flipped on top of it. He was not hurt. I thought it was a miracle.

That's why I love my Grandpa so much. He never fails to amaze me. He's my favorite guy.

Dear Readers,
Many people have asked the question, "Why would you ever want to be a Funeral Director?" I will be the first to admit that it is an unusual and stressful profession, and many times very demanding, but I receive great satisfaction from the field I have chosen. I walk with a family through one of the most painful situations they will ever experience, and I am gratified to be able to carry out their wishes, and ease some of the burden of grief.
Respectfully,
Belmont Funeral Home
Larry Belmont

Estimated tax payment due June 15

Internal Revenue service reminds people who make estimated tax payments that the second installment for 1992 is due Monday, June 15.

The payment should be sent to the IRS along with the second quarter payment voucher from Form 1040ES, "Estimated Tax for Individuals." To be sure that the payment is properly credited to your account, the IRS asks that you write your social security number and the words, "1992 Form 1040ES" on the check.

If you expect to owe $500 or more in federal tax at the end of the year, you probably should be making quarterly estimated tax payments, the IRS says. Although retirees and business people are most often affected by this requirement, it can potentially apply to anyone who receives income not subject to withholding, such as unemployment benefits, capital gains, interest, dividends, and rental income.

If you're not sure how much you'll make this year, the IRS says you can usually base your quarterly payments on 1991's total tax. Under this method, each quarterly payment must be at least one fourth of the total tax shown on your 1991 return. But, a change in the law says this method can no longer be used by a higher income person whose income is rising rapidly. You probably are affected by this change if your 1992 income exceeds $75,000 and is up more than $40,000 over 1991, the IRS says.

IRS Publication 505 has more information on estimated tax in general and this tax law change isn't particular. To get a free copy of this booklet or the 1040ES form, call toll-free 1-800-TAX-FORM (829-3676).

Sharon LaCoursiere

. . . Time for a Pat

Last week I got a call from Mr. Jablinske, the head of the sanitation department. I learned the sanitation department wasn't very happy about my column about my leaves and other problems with my garbage.

Naturally, I tried to explain to him that the column was written to be funny and really made more fun of me and my housekeeping and groundskeeping than it did of his department. I think he understood. Anyway, we had a fine conversation. Perhaps I might even write more about our conversation at a later time, because I learned a lot.

However, the talk with Mr. Jablinske, who was really nice, as well as various other things that happened to me this week that required talking to and working with several other business and professional people in the area, made me realize something.

When I began writing this column several years ago, I promised I would be doing some picking and poking, but I also promised I would do some patting, or praising. I just realized that I have been doing a lot of picking and poking lately, at people and things (and myself) in this column, but I've been pretty poor at giving out the pats.

Last week I found it necessary to talk to and work with many different people in this area. So many of these ladies and gentlemen were cheerful and perky, happy to take the time to explain things to me, knew what they were talking about, were very helpful, and just plain nice, that it made me realize just how fortunate I am to live here. I decided that it was a good time to say something about the nice people that we all meet as we go about our daily business.

These people I encountered definitely deserve some pats, as, I am sure, do many other nice people I haven't gotten around to bothering yet.

Oh, sure, sometimes I ran into a crab or two. So what? I didn't hang around them long and chalked them up in my little black book under "Stay Away From These People and Places." Today I don't want to talk about the crabs. Let them crawl off somewhere and hide under a rock. I want to talk about the nice people.

All of these nice people smiled a lot. And isn't it amazing that you can talk to someone on the phone and tell whether or not they are smiling? I know all those nice people I talked to on the phone were smiling, just like the ones I met face to face.

Not only did everyone smile, but they were smart. They knew everything I needed to know, and didn't mind telling it to me, patiently repeating it over and over again so I could get it through my head.

I think people around here are nicer than they are in urban areas, don't you? Maybe it is more like one big family around here, people knowing people, or, at the least, a relative or common acquaintance. Maybe it is because people know they are bound to meet again, sooner or later.

We've all read the Letters to the Editor that have been written by out-of-towners praising certain businesses or establishments for their efficiency and courtesy. I would say such praise is well-deserved. I would say that niceness is what this area is all about.

Maybe our area is having a hard time of competing with bigger cities right now, but I think we have one thing the big cities don't, and that is our down-home, friendly business and professional people. They are the area's biggest and best asset.

The best part of talking with nice people like the ones I encountered is, after you have finished talking to them, you walk away carrying a little of that niceness with you. Then you can go out and share it with everybody you deal with the rest of the day. I hope I did that.

So, pats on the back to all of you nice people around here who made last week nice for me, and pats on the back to all of you nice people I didn't get to meet last week, but who were nice to other people and made them feel good, too.

MPCA/DNR crack down on dumpers

The State of Minnesota is combatting illegal trash dumping under a new law that makes it easier for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (MPCA) to pursue charges against anyone who improperly disposes of waste tires, appliances and other solid waste.

The 1991 Civil Citation Act authorizes DNR conservation officers and certain MPCA enforcement staff to issue civil citations for illegal trash dumping to suspected offenders. Previously, these violations had to be addressed through the criminal or civil legal process.

Problem of illegal dumping on public and private land has grown statewide as local landfills have been closed and fees for proper disposal of garbage have increased. All illegal dumping degrades natural resources and tends to attract more dumping in the same location. Until now, taxpayers have usually had to pay the expense of cleanup.

DNR Commissioner Rod Sando said the civil citation is the best tool the state has had to combat illegal garbage dumping. "Our conservation officers have issued more than 40 citations since the law went into effect last August, with most of the tickets occurring as the snow has disappeared," he said. "Few have appealed their citations, and most have paid the fines."

MPCA Commissioner Charles Williams said the program takes away the financial incentive for not disposing of garbage properly. "The ticketing project definitely discourages people from dumping wastes that can harm our environment," Williams said. "The word is getting out that illegal dumping on public or private land won't be tolerated."

Because of the stringent requirements that apply in criminal cases, convictions for illegal dumping have sometimes been difficult to obtain. For example, courts often required that violators be observed in the act of illegal dumping in order to convict them. Under the civil citation law, a DNR conservation officer or MPCA enforcement staff person can trace a load of dumped garbage to its owner and then write a citation. The person receiving the citation has 15 days to appeal the ticket to the MPCA commissioner or 30 days to pay the fine.

The fines are $100 per appliance, $25 per waste tire, $25 per lead-acid battery and $1 per pound of garbage or $20 per cubic yard of garbage. Offenders must remove and properly dispose of the illegally dumped trash.

This civil citation project will last two years, with a final evaluation report due to the Legislature by October of 1993.

AURI develops new barley for food use

A different kind of barley, with superior nutritional properties, is being developed with assistance from the Agricultural Utilization Research Institute (AURI). Ed and Steve Ross of Ross Seed company in Fisher have been working on waxy hulless barley for several years. Unlike most barley now used for malting and in animal feed, the new variety will be used in baked products and breakfast cereals. Initially, AURI helped Ross Seed company put together a team of researchers to develop the new variety, which is suited to northern climates. Now AURI is funding phase two of the project to substantiate data which indicates that waxy hulless barley contains more soluble fiber than other cereal grains and to study its effect on lowering serum cholesterol levels in humans.

Around our house things are beginning to be back to normal. Graduation is over!!!

We had the privilege of watching our son graduate. We also had the privilege of having friends and relatives join us in this time of celebration.

But—now our house is beginning to get back to normal. Soon the last of the friends and relatives will have gone back to their respective homes. Some are already safely home. We pray for traveling mercies for those who are still traveling. Our house will be quiet. The let-down is already upon me.

I did some funny things just before graduation. I—like many of you—had to get our home in tip-top shape. That meant painting and papering and dusting and vacuuming and planting and mowing and and... I get tired just remembering all of the things we did trying to get prepared for graduation.

As Graduation Day loomed, I became a somewhat raving lunatic—no longer could I do the simple every day things my job required, no longer could I be held responsible for what I said or did. I was a mother about to send her child off into the unknown of adulthood.

Graduation Day itself found me in control of my household, but not in control of my actions. Only now as I sat down at my word processor to type this column did I find the items I had removed from the living room before our party. In my file cabinet drawer were the pictures we had just had developed, and some last day of school items my boys had brought home, and my Bible. They were all the victims of "lets get everything out of the way in the living room" syndrome.

Food was a major item for this graduation. Not only did I need to have food prepared for a party, but I also needed to have food to feed the friends and relatives who were visiting. None of our family lives nearby, so everyone had to be fed and watered at the appropriate times by me. Food left from one meal resurfaced in another meal—if I could find the place I so conveniently stored it. Only today did I find the box of candy I had so nicely stored away to unclutter my counter.

Friends and relatives are nice to have around at the special times in one's life. But—have you ever been the victim of helpful friends and relatives??? By helpful, I mean putting away the kitchen utensils in places that are logical, but not right? By helpful, I mean placing small pieces of furniture in just the right (wrong) spot? By helpful, I mean doing the small kindnesses which sometimes end up to be unkindnesses?? But, I guess until I find everything I personally squirreled away in a good hiding spot I shouldn't complain about the new homes for my kitchen utensils!!

The events of graduation help us parents to cope with graduation. The preparations for the day. The preparations for the visits of friends and relatives, and the obligatory party, all help to keep us parents from thinking too much about graduation.

Now, though, as the house is getting back to its quiet normal, I am beginning to think about graduation and what it truly signifies. No longer will my son need me in the same way he needed me through the past years. He will now need me as his main cheering section—encouraging him in the endeavors he undertakes in life.

As the reality of no more high school sinks into me and my son, I can only hope and pray that the best of life will come to this child of mine.

Parents are a constant in a child's life—even after that child becomes an adult. I can only hope that I will be as supportive of my post high school child as my parents have been of this daughter of theirs.

Karaoke was a favorite for senior high school students who attended the all-night after graduation party sponsored by the Chemical Awareness Task Force and many merchants in the community. The party was held at the Elk's club in Thief River Falls for high school seniors. Pictured from left are Jayaon Powara, Matt Kaushagan, Troy Bartram, Barry Dowara and Darin Wald.

More wetlands saved through new project

An innovative new pilot project designed to give added protection to Minnesota's wetlands was announced this week by Dave Zentner from the Minnesota Division of the Izaak Walton League (IWLA). The "Partners for Wetlands" project is a unique coooperative effort between private, state and federal organizations.

"Wetlands are one of our most important resources and this partnership will protect a number of wetlands that have been restored and enhanced," Zentner said.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has been actively restoring drained wetlands on private land since 1987. About 5,200 basins, totaling 15,500 acres, have been restored or enhanced through this USFWS program in Minnesota. However, the agreements under which many of these wetlands were restored provide only 10 years of protection for the wetlands. Under the new pilot project, landowners can apply for reimbursement for permanently setting those wetland acres aside.

"Once the temporary protection time has elapsed, these wetlands are again vulnerable to being drained or filled," Zentner said. "This project gives landowners the option of being reimbursed for enrolling the wetlands and protecting them permanently," he said.

The project is funded through a $400,000 grant from the Legislative Commission on Minnesota Resources (LCMR). The funding will be used to purchase permanent easements on the wetlands. Landowners who enroll their restored wetlands will be reimbursed at a rate based on the market value of land in the township, Zentner said.

Zentner estimated that funding will only allow the purchase of about 45 easements. "However, we hope that we'll be able to secure additional funding to protect more of these wetlands," he added.

Cooperators in the Partners for Wetlands program are the IWLA, the USFWS, the LCMR and the Minnesota Board of Water and Soil Resources.

A coordinator for the program, Jeff Hedtke, was hired in the fall of 1991. Hedtke is currently contacting landowners with eligible wetlands restored by the USFWS.

Your Times

Allows readers to speak out on a variety of issues

by Roger Moe
State Senator

Legislation passed this session allocated two dollars for the prevention of crime for every dollar spent on new corrections programs. It is our hope to deter violent crime with longer jail terms and innovative attempts to prevent violence before it can occur. Not only did the Legislature strengthen the sentences for most major crimes this year, we also focused on preventive programs designed to reach children and families at risk before the vicious cycle of violence can develop.

Included in the tough new penalties was a requirement of life without parole for rape with murder. The minimum sentence for rape was more than doubled, and there were greater controls on sex offenders who will not be released on weekends or holidays when law enforcement agencies may be too shorthanded to adequately supervise their placement.

Minnesota's tough DWI laws were made even tougher. A third DWI conviction will result in a 30-day jail sentence and repeat offenders will have their drivers licenses, car places and vehicle impounded. The laws against hunting and using a boat or all-terrain vehicle while intoxicated were also strengthened.

Funding to aid crime victims was also increased and a 24-hour toll-free line was established to help provide crime victim services.

Funds were appropriated to establish anti-violence and protection programs within our communities and schools. Children's safety centers, community violence prevention programs, and development of anti-violence classes in schools were among the new prevention programs.

The Early Childhood Family Education program was expanded to include programs to prevent child abuse and neglect. A parent education component was added to the home visit program, and will provide educational materials on preventing child abuse and neglect and promoting positive parenting and discipline practices.

Schools were also required to conspicuously post the school sexual harassment and sexual violence policy and to develop a process for discussing those policies with students and employees.

Major state agency heads were directed to work together to develop a statewide plan to link schools with federally funded health and social services. The program was targeted at youths at-risk, particularly those with a history of violence, truancy and chemical abuse, and will link such programs as child welfare, medical assistance, Title XX, day care, and alcohol and drug abuse prevention programs.

To address the growing incidence of domestic abuse, courts must now sentence domestic assault perpetrators to treatment or counseling if the court suspends imposition or execution of sentence. City and county attorneys were required to adopt domestic abuse prosecution plans to encourage prosecution of domestic abuse cases. So-called "unintentional" deaths that are the result of domestic abuse will now be considered as murder instead of manslaughter.

Juvenile courts were required to order chemical use assessments in felony cases if alcohol or drug abuse contributed to the offense. The Task Force on mentoring and community service was required to submit to the 1993 Legislature a comprehensive plan for increasing opportunities for juveniles and young adults. Treatments for chemical and sexual abuse were also expanded, along with "youth intervention" and employment programs which attempt to get kids in trouble back on track before more they can commit more serious crimes.

It's clear that we must address the roots of the problem if we hope to stem the tide of violence that we read about daily. For this reason the Legislature focused on new initiatives toward prevention rather than on new correction measures.

MCC alumnus writes paper on temperature

Bruce McKenzie, a 1983 graduate of Marshall County Central high school in Newfolden and 1990 graduate of the University of Washington with a BS degree in oceanography and zoology, is employed as a civilian physical scientist with the Naval Oceanographic office at the Stennes Space Center in Mississippi.

McKenzie and Carolyn Falnes co-authored a paper describing the production of Global Multichannel Sea Surface Temperature data (MCSST) that is received from satellites, ships and buoys. They calculate MCSST data for approximately 60,000 targets daily. These observations can then be displayed numerically or in a graphic format. The information is then transmitted to the Fleet Numerical Oceanographic Center and the Air Force Global Weather Center via satellite.

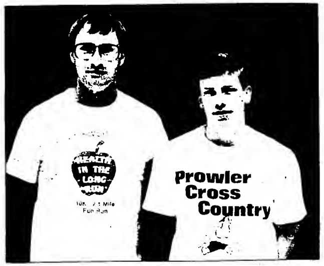
SPECIAL THANK YOU: A SPECIAL THANK YOU TO PARENTS, SCHOOL STAFF, AND OTHERS WHO GAVE SO FREELY OF THEIR TIME IN HELPING TO MAKE OUR PLAYGROUND FUND-RAISERS A BIG SUCCESS!



Joel Davis (right), accompanied by head coach Tim Olson, will be competing in his fifth state meet in two years when the Thief River Falls senior runs the 800 meters during the Class AA boys portion of the 1992 state high school track meet in Blaine beginning Friday. It'll be the third state meet this year for Davis, who also advanced in cross country and wrestling. He was a state meet participant in cross country and track as a junior.

Section 8AA boys/girls high school track meet results...

Joel Davis never scored a game-winning touchdown, sank a game-winning basket, scored a game-winning goal, or hit a game-winning home run. But he will nevertheless be remembered by Lincoln High School coaches as one of the Prowlers' top all-time athletes, with a remarkable list of state meet-qualifying efforts in cross country, wrestling and track.

A member of the Class of '92, Davis went 3-for-3 in state meet quests as a senior and was 5-for-6 over the past two years. He qualified for state in cross country and in track as a junior and repeated those efforts as a senior, when he also added a state trip in wrestling.

Davis took part in Friday's graduation ceremonies, then headed to Brainerd Saturday for the Section 8AA track meet, were he placed second in the 800 meters to add another entry to his state meet diary.

A five-year varsity performer in wrestling and a four-year letterman in track, Davis went out for cross country for the first time as a junior and promptly became a state meet qualifier with a fourth place Section 8AA finish. He dropped a notch to fifth in 8AA as a senior, but improved from 52nd to 21st place in the state meet.

Davis was also a contender for a state wrestling spot as a junior, but came up short in the Section 8AA tournament. However, he made amends this winter with a 36-2 Section 8AA championship season that led to a fourth place state meet finish.

Defending champion in the 800 when he lined up for the 1992 Section 8AA track meet, Davis nearly matched his school record with a 1:59.1 – a close second to a Brainerd runner that turned in a 1:58.7. With the top two individual finishers and the first place relay teams advancing, Davis had himself his fifth state meet berth in the past two years, despite a spring in which he missed most of the outdoor season because of a hip problem.

"Considering the kind of things Joel had to go through this spring, he had a remarkable race," said Thief River Falls boys track coach Tim Olson.

The combination Class A/AA boys and girls state track meet will be held Friday and Saturday at the National Sports Center in Blaine. Class AA field events kick things off Friday at 10:30 a.m. Class AA track events will get underway at 11:30 a.m., followed by the Class A field event at 4:30 p.m. and Class A track events at 5:30 p.m.

Saturday finals include the Class A and Class AA field events at 10:30 a.m., followed by the Class A and Class AA track events at 12-noon.

Davis, who said he will attend either Jamestown College or Concordia College next fall, will be the Prowlers' lone state meet entry. Rest of the Thief River Falls boys and girls who advanced from North Sub-Section 8AA competition failed to make it through the Section 8AA event.

Davis was a member of a second place sprint medley relay team, along with Marc Haugen, Jason Svir and Nathan Egge, but their 3:46.81 was well behind a first place 3:40 turned in by Moorhead.

Also missing a state meet berth by one spot was John Wallberg with a third place 143-7 in the discus.

Thief River Falls girls had a pair of third place efforts as Jodi Kruta turned in a 13.02 in the 100 and Leah Helgenset had a 12:04 in the 3200.

Moorhead boys and St. Cloud Tech girls won Section 8AA team honors.

The Spuds easily won the boys' title with 125 points, followed by St. Cloud Apollo with 54, Tech 53 1/3, Brainerd 50, Fergus Falls 47, Alexandria 38 2/3, Detroit Lakes 31, Sauk Rapids 30, Little Falls 30, Thief River Falls 26, Bemidji 26, and Elk River 16.

"I had hoped to do a little better than what we did," acknowledged Olson, "but some of our kids didn't have their best days. We're a little disappointed, but they still gave it a good shot."

Tech girls finished with 100 points, followed by Moorhead with 91, Brainerd 87, Detroit Lakes 67, Alexandria 56, Little Falls 28, Thief River Falls 23, Apollo 20 1/2, Elk River 8 1/2, Fergus Falls 8, Bemidji 5, and Sauk Rapids 2.

There were just six point-producing place finishes for the Thief River Falls girls, but Prowlers coach Glenn Chiodo was still happy with his team's performance. "We had plenty of personal-best times," he pointed out. "The kids performed well."

Jordet was named the Prowlers' most valuable player and team captain, while Miramontes was selected most improved and hardest worker.

Kyle Jordet is named Prowlers' tennis MVP

Sophomores Kyle Jordet and Tony Miramontes were presented with special awards Friday as Thief River Falls boys high school tennis coach Jay Forney handed out post-season honors.

Jordet was selected as the winner of the Most Valuable Player Award, and was also named the Prowlers' captain.

Miramontes was named the most improved player and the hardest worker on the 1992 team that finished 6-19 overall.

Participation certificates go to juniors Jeremy Anderson, Kyle Egenes, John Ounstad, Hans Halganset, and Corey Thorson; sophomores Cory Anderson, Chris Bjornstad, Brad Flynn, Kent Larson, Jeff Lundgren, and Corey Olson; freshmen Shane Dondelinger, Seamus Duffy, Dustin Eddleman, Scott Fogarty, Tony Jelle, Matthew Johnson, and Tom Stumpf; eighth graders Nick Chiodo, Robbie Stock, Jason Breiland, Andy Furuseth, Chad Hanson, Joshua Melby, Stephen Rambeck, Trevis Rothschadl, and Ryan Swanson; seventh graders Shane Duffy, Curt Edwards, Matt Gustafson, Thomas Harbott, Eric Jelle, Aaron Sjaaheim, Jeremy Treitline, and Brock Walseth; along with sixth graders Kyle Anderson, Michael Hahne, Adam Nordin, Kyle Rokke, and Justin Walseth.

Jordet (21-8) and Dahlstrom (19-10), who spent much of the 1992 season as a doubles team, wound up leading the Prowlers record-wise this spring. Twomey (12-18) and Johnson (11-15) were the only other Prowlers with double-figure wins.

In all, 13 different Prowlers played varsity tennis at some point during the 1992 season, noted Forney. In addition to Jordet, Dahlstrom, Twomey, and Johnson, the group included Miramontes (9-18), Anderson (8-9), Haugen (8-22), Goldesberry (5-14), Seaverson (4-22), Feragen (3-17), Chiodo (2-3), Egenes (2-5), and Stock (1-2).

Jordet/Dahlstrom and Haugen/Twomey represented Thief River Falls in doubles at the 1992 Section 8AA tournament.

The Prowlers did not have a senior on this year's roster. "It's nice to have a young crew...if they go out and work at it and improve during the off-season," mentioned Forney. "The guys who went to section saw what the next level of tennis is. I expect them to be the leaders this summer – to get the other kids playing tennis."

The tennis played in June, July and August will go a long way in determining roster positions in April and May, explained Forney. "Even though we played young kids this year, none of the varsity positions are locked up for next year," he pointed out. "The opportunity is there for any one of them to play some varsity tennis if they work at it. The kids who were most successful for us this year were the kids who played a lot of tennis last summer. It shows up in a hurry."

The 6-19 overall record includes head-to-head match-ups in various multiple-team events during the year, which actually featured a 4-9 mark in dual meet matches only.

The record notwithstanding, the 1992 season still had its rewards, said Forney. "It was an enjoyable group of kids to work with," he said.

Annual TRF Triathlon is scheduled June 20

Eighth annual Thief River Falls Pepsi-Cola Triathlon is scheduled to be held Saturday, June 20, starting at 8:30 a.m. in the Franklin Middle School pool.

Relay triathlon will also start at 8:30, with a Kids Triathlon, new to the agenda this summer, scheduled to get underway at 10:30.

Both the triathlon and relay event will include a 500-yard swim, a 12-mile bike ride, and a 3-mile run. The Kids Triathlon will consist of a 50-yard swim, 2.4-mile bike and a 1.2-mile run.

Again this year, all participants will be required to wear a hard shell bike or hockey helmet during the bike portion of each event.

Swimming will take place in the Franklin pool, and will involve 20 lengths to cover the 500 yards. The swimmers will start in waves to avoid congestion.

From the pool, participants will ride bicycles on an out-and-back course via Nora Street and Pennington Avenue.

The run will start and finish at the school.

Kids Triathlon swim will feature two lengths of the pool; the bike ride will cover two laps on Spruce Street, Gulf Street and Edgewood Drive; and the run will involve one lap of the same course.

Sponsors include the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co., Hugo's, and the Falls Clinic division of Dakota Clinic Ltd.

Official race shirts will be given to all finishes. Trophies will be awarded to the first place male and female finishers in different age categories. Kids Triathlon trophies will go to the first place boy and girl ages 7-under, 8-9, 10-11, and 12-over. Results, with split times, will be mailed to all finishers.

Refreshments will be provided at the finish line.

Anyone interested in participating is encouraged to sign up early since entries will be limited. There will be no registration allowed the morning of the race.

Entry forms are available at the Falls Clinic and at the Franklin pool. Entries can also be obtained by writing to Dr. Jim Langland at the Falls Clinic division of Dakota Clinic, Ltd, 120 South LaBree Avenue, Thief River Falls, MN 56701. Entry fee is $15 for the triathlon, $24 for each relay team, and $5 for the Kids Triathlon.

Summer reminder

School District 564 Activities Director Lee Alger issued an early reminder to fall sports participants and their parents to make sure physical examination requirements are taken care of this summer so the students will be ready when preseason practice drills begin in mid-to-late August.

Parents of the athletes are asked to check their records to see if the student is due for a physical before the start of the 1992-93 school year, and to schedule exams ahead of time to avoid a last-minute rush at the clinic.

New eligibility forms will be available in the Activities Office at Lincoln High School beginning Aug. 10, said Alger.

SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 441
SCHOOL BOARD MINUTES
May 6, 1992

The Board of Education of Ind. School District No. 441 met in special session on May 6, 1992 at the Strandquist School. Newfolden Board members in attendance: Doreen Amundson, Roger Anderson, David Bakke, Mark Carlson, Donna Fosholm, Doyle Harstad. Absent: Eldon Augustine. Also in attendance were the Principals Paggen and Hodny.

The Karlstad board members present were: Judy Bogestad, Kent Hanson, Marlin Nelson, Leona Renstrom, Jim Sollund, and Supt. Schwalbe.

The meeting was called to order by Chairman David Bakke.

The purpose of the special meeting was discussion on proposed sharing of Administrative duties, curriculum and extra-curricular activities with the Karlstad School District.

Topics discussed were:

1) Karlstad has two certified librarians which they would be willing to share part-time with Newfolden. Possibly 1/2 day in each elementary school and the services needed by the high school would be determined later.

2) Both districts were willing to pair in the Spring sports - Track and Baseball. This would not be until the 1992-93 school year. Karlstad has just started a cross-country team (fall sport) which could also be shared if there was interest. There was concern this could effect participation in the other fall sports (volleyball and football). However, the Karlstad board didn't feel it took students from the other sports. The meets were held on Saturdays.

3) Karlstad showed interest in sharing in Speech. They do not have a speech program at this time.

4) There were discussions concerning interactive TV. When the new high school building is completed, MCC will have a room and be set up to hook into interactive TV at a later date. Course offerings available on interactive TV was discussed. MCC will be looking very seriously at interactive TV for the 1993-94 school year.

5) Both districts are considering sharing an additional certified EBD teacher. This will be determined at a later date.

6) Another area of concern was the sharing of a sociologist (social worker) in the future to meet some of the needs of our students. Both schools have been sharing Floyd Olson as counselor for a number of years.

7) Another area discussed was in Vocational Training because of the changes going on with Center School. MCC does have teachers certified for Vocational Education in the areas of Home Ec. and Business.

8) Karlstad is also reorganizing their administrative positions and would be willing to share 1/4 or 1/3 time of their Supt. MCC Administrative Restructuring Committee will be meeting to discuss what services would be required.

The Administrative Restructuring Committee from both districts will be meeting jointly for future discussion on services needed.

The meeting was adjourned.

The attendant observed a man on the south-side of the motel and after speaking with the person the attendant called police. When police arrived they discovered a window had been forced open. Damage loss was estimated at $25. The incident is under investigation.

Assault. On May 31 a 17-year-old female from Rapid City, SD, was charged with fifth degree assault after a complaint of an assault on May 18 in which a juvenile girl reported being hit in the face. Further charges in the case are possible.

Rutherford charged the students with looking back upon their graduation and experience in Thief River Falls in five to 10 years. Students may not enjoy any thought of returning or staying in the community now, but added that he believes rural America is greatly underrated. He believes that with experience, they will discover that rural America is a great place to live and raise a family — just as he has discovered.

A Kittson county reisdent is recovering from a gunshot wound at Northwest Medical Center.

According to Kittson county sheriff's department, the Pennington county sheriff's department received a report of an individual being treated for a gunshot wound at Northwest Medical Center at 9 a.m. on May 29. A Kittson county dispatcher said Glen Lewis Bronson, 65, Lake Bronson, was taken to Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls by a relative. Kittson county would only say that the wound was self-inflicted and occurred at about 6 a.m. on May 29.

The investigation was made by Kittson county sheriff's office and Pennington county sheriff's office.

The nursing supervisor at Northwest Medical Center said Bronson is in good condition.

Hoff receives professional certification

Jan Hoff, director of the Thief River Falls Technical College Small Business Development center, has received certification as an Economic Development Finance Professional from the National Development Council (NDC).

Certification is a designation given to individuals who successfully complete an intensive economic development finance training series which is conducted by NDC. The four courses provide individuals working in the field of economic development with training in credit analysis, real estate financing, loan packaging, deal structuring and negotiating, and the creation and implementation of development programs.

Each of the four courses is five days in length and ends with a written review which must be passed before a certification candidate is allowed to continue in the EDFP program. When a candidate has completed the entire four-week series, a comprehensive examination is given.

The New York-based National Development Council was established in 1972 and is a private non-profit corporation which specializes in economic development training and technical assistance for economic development. NDC has provided training to approximately 20,000 development people working in the field of economic development.

Hoff holds a bachelor's degree from Moorhead State University. Her work experience has included insurance underwriting, building center design consultant, public school teaching and owner and manager of retail women's clothing stores which she started in both main street and mall locations. Since she organized the SBDC in Thief River Falls in 1985, Hoff has counseled many individuals and businesses and presented workshops throughout northwestern Minnesota on starting a business, customer service and advertising.

The SBDC provides free or low-cost one-on-one business counseling to either start-up or established small businesses. It also offers knowledge about other area resources for small businesses, business workshops, assistance to bankers and community groups working on economic development. The Thief River Falls SBDC is a satellite office under the Moorhead State University SBDC regional office and is part of the Minnesota state and national SBDC network

Cows get preferential treatment at the Kiecker Dairy Farm east of McIntosh, home of Jana Kiecker, reigning Northwest Dairy Princess. Even these stuffed and ceramic creations which are part of the collection of animals around the home come in for special attention. For stories on Jana and the Pennington, Red Lake and Marshall County Dairy Princesses, turn the pages to the inside of this special June Dairy Month section of The Times.

One side of the corridor is designed with viewing windows. Sophisticated computerized equipment transfers information to a nearby control room. Careful attention is paid to ventilation and sanitation. Occupants of the building have their meals brought to them and are monitored regularly.

Sound like a space laboratory from some science fiction flick? It could be, but the above description applies to the dairy barn at the University of Minnesota experiment station at Crookston. The barn and its attendant facilities are located on the campus of the University of Minnesota—Crookston and form a virtual livestock oasis in a desert of small grain crops which surround the campus.

Presiding over the dairy program is Dr. George Marx, professor of animal science, who has served since appointed to the position July 1, 1964. He devotes 50 to 60 per cent of his time to research, 25 to 35 per cent of the time to continuing education and service activities, 10 per cent to management and administration, five to 10 per cent to professional improvement and three to five per cent to teaching, although the latter is not a designated responsibility of the position.

Dr. Marx earned his BS degree in agricultural education with minors in chemistry and biology from the University of Wisconsin at River Falls in 1958. His MS degree in dairy science came in 1960 from South Dakota State university at Brookings where he minored in biochemistry and microbiology. In 1964 he earned his PhD degree in animal science from the University of Minnesota in St. Paul with a minor in zoology.

Until 1954 when he entered college, Marx was raised and worked on the home dairy farm at Antigo, WI. While earning his college degrees he also served as a herdsman on a Wisconsin dairy farm, worked part-time on the River Falls campus farm, served as a farm planner with the Soil Conservation Service in the summers and was a research assistant at the U of M in St. Paul.

He came to UMC as an instructor in 1964 and was advanced to the rank of assistant professor the following year. He was made an associate professor in 1970 and full professor in 1978. On two Sabbatical leaves he has studied at the University of Arizona, Tucson and the University of Sydney in Australia.

Dr. Marx is well recognized by dairymen throughout the area since he has appeared frequently as a speaker at seminars and meetings, making more than 50 such appearances a year. He also communicates directly with dairymen through publications, responses to inquiries, phone conversations, office calls and news releases to newspapers, radio and television.

The program he heads is not huge as educational departments at universities go, but neither is it a broom closet business. Unlike most educational facilities, the dairy department at the Crookston experiment station generates earned income—more than $250,000 last year in milk and livestock sales alone.

It was in 1957 that the present dairy barn was built and dedicated. It included remedeling of the 6,300 square foot tie stall barn built in 1964 and the replacement of the 1906 dairy barn with a new 13,425 square foot facility.

The barn would make most dairymen greener than fresh-cut alfalfa with envy, but Dr. Marx points out that because it is a teaching station and a public facility, it must have a number of amenities that would be considered unnecessary for a private dairy operation.

The remodeled portion of the dairy facility houses 66 cows in individual comfort tie stalls. Another 28 cows are housed in the new south wing with cow mats on the floor. Sunflower hulls are used extensively as bedding in all but the maternity pens where straw is preferred.

The calf barn has a separate area with 24 individual pens for baby calves and six group pens to house up to 30 growing weaned calves. Larger heifers, dry cows and growing dairy males are housed in a bedded loose housing pole barn or warm confinement slatted floor barn. There are four pens with separate group feeding bunks in each of these two barns.

Milking is done in a double-5 (10-cow capacity) Boumatic herringbone parlor. It is equipped with automatic cow identification and the cow information, milk weights and milking times are electronically transferred to computers in the herd manager's office for storage of the individual cow data. Automatic detachers remove teat cups from the cows when milking is done and separate spray hoses are used for washing the udder and post-milk teat sanitation.

Milk is transferred by pipeline to a 2,000 gallon Mueller stainless steel tank for cooling and storage. The washing system for milking equipment is cleaned-in-place.

Careful attention is also paid to foot care, which includes hoof trimming as needed. A tilt table is used for this process which allows the cow to be restrained and laid on its side while the hooves are trimmed, then returned to an upright position to walk away when released.

Air is constantly moving throughout the barn with one exhaust fan running continuously regardless of outside temperature. Ceiling air intakes pull in air from the attic ducts on one side of the barn, and the air is pulled across the barn and exhausted with both summer and winter exhaust fans.

One place a person would not want to be standing in case of a structural failure would be next to the above ground liquid manure storage tank—40 feet in diameter and 20 feet high with a capacity of 175,000 gallons! A below ground liquid manure storage tank is 30 feet wide, 90 feet long and eight feet deep. Combined capacity is sufficient for five months of manure storage.

A 40x50 pit eight feet deep is located directly below the slatted floor of the confinement barn. Dairy pole barn and calf barn wastes are handled as solid manure. A pollution control storage tank is also utilized in the dairy pole barn outside lots for collection of barnyard run-off.

The cows are fed a total mixed ration once a day, with the feed including forages, high moisture corn, soybean meal, whole sunflower seeds, trace mineral salt, Dicalcium phosphate, meat and bone meal and vitamin premix. Since most of the cattle are divided into groups for various tests and trials, a number of feed mixtures must be used. A truck-mounted mixer-blender is equipped with load cells and an electronic scale for weighing all ingredients.

The truck is unloaded into self-propelled, self-unloading carts also equipped with electronic scales. Feed given to each cow is metered and recorded. A cart with an electronic scale is also used to remove and record the amount of feed uneaten. Feed intake variation can

by Dr. George D. Marx,
University of Minnesota,
Crookston

High producing dairy cows give more milk when fed on alfalfa haylage than they do on dry alfalfa hay. This fact was again reinforced by two studies released in 1992 from the U.S. Dairy Forage Research Center in Wisconsin. In both of these feeding trials, cows fed alfalfa haylage in a Total Mixed Ration (TRM) produced five per cent more milk than cows fed dry baled hay with the same amount of grain (all rations contained 60 per cent alfalfa and 40 per cent grain on a dry matter basis).

Studies conducted at the Northwest Experiment Station in the 1960s and one of the very first published on alfalfa haylage resulted in cows producing two pounds more milk daily on alfalfa haylage versus alfalfa hay which is a four per cent increase with haylage (51.4 lbs. avg. vs 49.4 lbs. average). That was excellent production at the time, especially when one considers it was almost 30 years ago.

The interest and enthusiasm for feeding alfalfa silage or haylage has increased throughout these 30 years because of the extra milk potential. Part of the increase in milking production results from the increased dry matter intake, part because of the higher quality (more leaves saved) and part because of improved feed efficiency compared with feeding alfalfa preserved as dry hay.

In addition, you lose 10 per cent more forage dry matter in the field by making hay as compared to making haylage. This 10 per cent is mostly leaves and is the best part of the forage. Timely harvest is also more likely with haylage than with hay, particularly during rainy spells, and once you get behind, all of the subsequent forage is harvested late which means advanced maturing and lower quality.

However, I would like to point out that in the U.S. Dairy Forage Research Center studies, small increases in alfalfa maturity and neutral detergent fiber (NDF) didn't hurt production in those feeding trials as reported by Dr. Larry Satter. The more mature alfalfa does have higher bypass protein and in a recent Michigan study, bypass protein (undergraded in the rumen) increased from four per cent to 20 per cent of the total protein as alfalfa fully matured.

This doesn't mean, however, that we should delay our early cutting recommendation for alfalfa because the bypass protein increases with maturity. If we delay too long we often be a good indicator of the cow's health.

Dr. George Marx oversees the dairy operation at the University of Minnesota Experiment Station at Crookston. Much of his work involves providing information and coordinating research with very little time spent in actual instruction. Between 30 and 40 students are enrolled in the dairy program each year, mostly from northwestern Minnesota. Ask Dr. Marx for information on nearly any aspect of dairying and he can usually find it for you—in published form—among his collection of files.

A program from the dairy barn dedication states, "The new dairy research and teaching center will be used to continue the applied research in nutrition, breeding and management and to test and demonstrate high technology in the environmental area, record management, data collection, milking procedures, feeding and labor saving systems."

It does all of that in spades!

"The teaching of hands on skills and abilities in management, nutrition, breeding programs, herd health, evaluation and maintenance has been greatly enhanced in the new facility," the program continues. "New courses in animal breeding and nutrition are being planned. On-going education programs for dairy persons, 4-H and FFA students, extension agents, vocational agriculture teachers and those associated with the dairy business are offered on a regular schedule.

"An enclosed area is provided adjacent to the new stall barn and milking parlor area to accommodate school children and other visitors who wish to view the cows and milking operation."

There are approximately 30 to 40 students in the dairy science/production program each year, most of them coming from northwestern Minnesota and Canada. Nancy Geske of Thief River Falls is one of the current students, as is Terry Mosher of the Dorothy area west of Red Lake Falls.

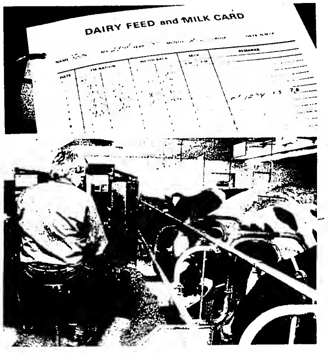
The course is taught by Lyle E. Westrom. "The dairy science and dairy production programs at UMC prepare you for entry into the dairy industry," an overview of the course states. "You choose whether it will be in management of a dairy herd, processing of a dairy product for consumers, or a wide range of areas between the producer and the consumer." Students must complete 100 credits to receive an Associate in Applied Science (AAS) degree in dairy production and 96 credits for an Associate in Science (AS) degree in dairy science.

One of the required courses for students majoring in dairy production and technology is a three-credit course called Dairy Production and Techniques. The six-part list of general objectives can be summarized as helping students to develop a comprehensive understanding of and to gain experience in handling a modern dairy operation.

Topics include milk production and processing; milking techniques and equipment; feeding techniques and feed handling; cleaning techniques; materials handling; disease treatment; identification techniques (photography, ear tagging, hot branding, freeze branding, pastebranding, tattoo, neck chain, brisket and flank tagging); fly control; dehorning; hoof trimraing; castration; clipping; parasite control; judging production and type; fitting for showing; records; mastitis screening tests; breeding, blood and milk tests; and field trips.

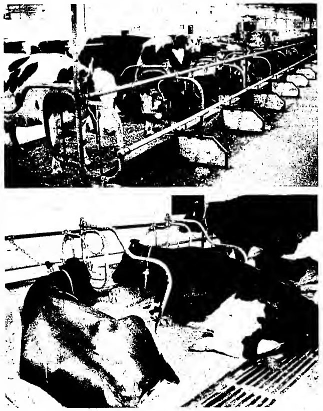
Each of the topics listed above, such as the identification techniques noted in parentheses, has a number of sub-topics included.

A visit to the dairy facilities at UMC is an interesting and enlightening one where it would be impossible not to learn something you didn't already know about the dairy industry.



DAIRY FEED and MILK CARD

Specially mixed feed ration is fed by motorized cart to the milking herd at the University of Minnesota Experiment Station at Crookston. The feed is weighed as it is dispensed and the amount fed is recorded. Feed not eaten is also collected, weighed and recorded to the tenth of a pound on a sheet such as the one shown in the top photo.



Holsteins in the modern dairy barn at the University of Minnesota Experiment Station have comfortable tie stalls and are bedded with sunflower hulls which are otherwise a waste product. A total mixed ration is fed once a day and the feed is weighed when delivered to each cow. Amount of feed not eaten is also recorded on a daily basis. The experiment station has a 94-cow herd and a 2,000 gallon bulk tank to cool and store the milk produced.

More than 60 per cent of all milk sold today is sold in gallon containers. The half-gallon container is second in popularity at 21 per cent, followed by half pints at nine per cent and quarts at four per cent.

More than half of Minnesota's exports are farm and food products.

will hurt milk production because of poor dry matter intake with the high NDP. Alfalfa with low crude protein levels also may lower milk production and must be properly supplemented to obtain a balanced ration.

The final question is when to cut alfalfa for best management of both the cow and the plant itself. This is a tough question to answer and would be easier if we could cut all our alfalfa the day its ready. The late bud stage, when just a few flowers first start to appear, is probably best as long as you get it cut before its 10 per cent bloom. In order to do this you need to start early so you don't get the bulk of it too mature. Stemmy, full-flowered alfalfa will not produce as much milk as bud stage.

Cutting too early will result in less forage yield, make the ration more difficult to balance for fiber and bypass protein, is more stressful on the alfalfa plant, and stand life may be reduced so more intensive management will be necessary. Immature alfalfa is also digested more quickly, is more digestible with faster microbial breakdown and higher rumen protein degradability. Some of this protein is degraded into ammonia and excreted or wasted. The cows will also be more loose and require more bedding.

In general, most dairymen cut alfalfa too late rather than too early. We are now going into a new phase of understanding forage quality (degraded vs. undegraded bypass protein, A.D.F., N.D.F. along with relative feed value), and this should help us answer the question, "Has early cutting been over-emphasized?"

Amy Haugen of Oklee is Pennington Co. Dairy Princess

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

When Pennington County Dairy Princess Amy Haugen of rural Oklee isn't involved with milk production on the farm she is involved with selling dairy products to consumers. She works regularly at the check-out counter at Hugo's Supermarket in Thief River Falls.

The 19-year-old daughter of Marlyn and Doloris Haugen and 1991 graduate of Oklee high school, Amy just completed her freshman year at Concordia college in Moorhead where she is taking general studies courses. She was crowned Pennington County Dairy Princess earlier this spring at the county contest in Goodridge.

Because her father and brother Monte farm in partnership and both are available to work with the 24-cow dairy herd, Amy makes most of her contribution to the farm operation through field work and tasks around the home.

"Sometimes I get in on the spring cultivating and disking," she said, "and I spend a lot of time in the field during haying. My jobs usually involve raking, maybe doing some of the square baling, but mostly picking up and hauling the big round bales with the tractor and fork. And during harvest I haul grain with the tractor and gravity boxes and fill the grain bins."

The Haugens have grade Holstein cattle (except for a couple of Brown Swiss) and sell Grade B milk through the Plummer Co-op Creamery association. Two milker units are used and milk is carried to the 250-gallon bulk tank. Marlyn has been his own AI technician over the years, with most of the herd coming from 21st Century Genetics breeding.

"We hope to have a milking parlor and go to 40 cows with loose housing in the fall," Marlyn said, "but it isn't definite yet. We'll have to see how things go."

This year the 1,100 acre operation will include 370 acres of wheat, 100 acres of sunflowers, 25 acres of corn, 50 acres of oats, 240 acres of alfalfa and 60 acres of other hay. The remainder of the farm is in pasture, woods or otherwise not under cultivation.

The farm was purchased by Doloris' parents in 1934 and she grew up there. Marlyn was raised several miles away at the farm where Monte and his wife Sue now live. Amy, the youngest child in the family, has another brother, Vance, who lives at Prairie du Chien, WI, and a sister, Deone, who lives in Grand Forks, ND.

While in high school Amy was active in music and drama, performing in school plays every year and taking part in summer theatre in Goodridge, Oklee and Red Lake Falls. One of the plays was more than midway through production when the absence of one of the lead characters caused her to assume the role and be ready for opening in about two weeks.

She played saxophone and clarinet in the band and also piano when needed. She took piano lessons for about six years and earned state star ratings with saxophone solos. Also involved in choir for four years she earned several state star awards with vocal solos as well.

A member of the Junior Engineering Team (JET), she was with the group which placed first in Minnesota and eighth in the nation for schools with comparable enrollment to Oklee. She also participated in Knowledge Bowl, was manager of the volleyball team for three years and class treasurer her junior and senior years.

This past year at Concordia she was a member of the freshman choir and performed with all four Concordia choirs at Orchestra Hall in Minneapolis as well as the popular Concordia Christmas concert. That involvement meant practice five days a week.

She also participated in the college centennial program "Five Score" which included a lot of music and choreography. At times rehearsals ran into the early morning hours. In addition to choir and the centennial program she had a work-study job in the dining hall all year.

For three years she was organist at Ebenezer Lutheran church, a small rural congregation with the church building located just half a mile north of her house. She also was youth director for the church, taught Sunday school and vacation Bible school and played piano for the Sunday school..

On a number of occasions she has entertained with saxophone, piano or voice at senior citizens groups or community events such as Memorial Day services at Oklee.

For hobbies Amy enjoys counted cross-stitch and reading, although her busy schedule doesn't allow much time for either.

With a father and older brother working together on the farm's dairy herd, much of Amy Haugen's help around the farm comes from driving the tractor. She hauls bales during the haying season and grain during harvest, as well as doing cultivating and disking.

At Ebenezer Lutheran church just half a mile north of her home, Amy Haugan was organist for three years and also played piano for the Sunday school.

Dairy products are used extensively at the Merlyn and Doloris Heugen household. One of the favorites of Amy Haugen, Pennington County Dairy Princess, is a thick malt quickly made in the blender.

Milk shortfall costing MN $831 million per year

Falling milk production in Minnesota is costing the state's economy some $831 million dollars annually and over 12,000 jobs, according to a study by University of Minnesota agricultural economist Wilbur Maki.

"Milk production on Minnesota farms and the sale of manufactured products such as cheese and ice cream have dropped by 10 per cent from 1985 levels," Maki says.

He notes that the state's dairy industry still has a big impact. It generates about $4 billion annually in dairy product sales and employs about 40,000 people. However, the drop from 1985 levels of production and sales has a multiplier effect as it moves through the rest of the economy.

"The basis for the dairy industry is the grain and forage that comes from the land," says Maki. "Farmers add value to this by feeding it to cows and adding labor and management to produce milk. Other people such as milk haulers, cheese makers and retailers add to the value until the product reaches the consumer.

"When these people produce and sell less of their products, they buy less from related industries. Farmers buy fewer tractors, for example, and ice cream makers buy less corn syrup. Also, there are fewer dairy industry employees using their earnings to buy goods and services from other industries."

Maki used a computerized economic modeling system to determine what the milk production and dairy product sales cutback from 1985 levels means for the overall Minnesota economy. His analysis showed the cutback means $831 million less in sales of all goods and services in the state. There are 12,103 fewer jobs in the state, and there is a drop in wages and profits of $376 million.

Maki also analyzed the effect on one specific county, Brown county in south central Minnesota. Dairy farming and dairy product manufacturing are both important factors in Brown county's economy.

Maki found that for Brown county, the drop from 1985 levels of milk production and dairy product sales means an annual loss of over $44 million in total county sales of goods and services. It also means 304 fewer jobs in the county and $9 million per year less in wages and profits for county residents.

Most of the dairy cattle on the Merlyn Haugen dairy farm north of Oklee are grade Holsteins but a favorite of Pennington County Dairy Princess Amy Haugan is this Brown Swiss heifer.

Karen Hall of Newfolden is Marshall County Dairy Princess

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Marshall County Dairy Princess Karen Hall of rural Newfolden has a head start on her college education as she weighs a number of possible career choices.

A graduate of Marshall County Central high school Friday, May 29, she spent her senior year and part of her junior year attending Northland Community college in Thief River Falls, carrying about 18 credits per quarter as a senior. She now has 66 college credits accumulated as a graduating high school senior.

Karen, 18, is the daughter of Harold and Jill Hall and was crowned county princess Saturday, May 16, at the county contest held at the NuMoon cafe in Newfolden.

First attendant was Lynel Anderson, 18, also a senior at Marshall County Central and daughter of Steve and Regina Nelson of Viking. She lives with her parents and brothers Andrew, 16 and Jamie, 11 on a 400-acre farm where they milk about 50 grade Holsteins.

The Hall farm is Harold's home farm and since it was occupied by his parents in 1935 has always had dairy cattle as part of the farming operation. Presently the dairy herd has been reduced as Harold nears retirement age. Small grains are raised on the farm and the Halls also have about 25 head of beef cows.

Karen has an interest in music and has been in the band program at Newfolden schools since third grade, playing the flute. She has also been in choir since seventh grade and took part in school musicals, including last year's production of "Fiddler on the Roof." She also enjoys listening to music.

At Northland Community college she was a member of the band and also played intramural softball. She is a member of the National Honor Sociey chapter at Marshall County Central.

For 12 years Karen has been a member of the New Solum 4-H club in Pennington county where she has been a secretary and now serves as treasurer. She earned championships in clothing construction and vegetable gardening at last year's Pennington county fair.

In addition to winning a number of state fair trips and exhibiting there, Karen has attended 4-H camp at the state fairgrounds a number of times. She has been a junior leader for three years and a county 4-H Ambassador.

In addition to her college classes Karen has worked part-time in the food services area at Northwest Medical Center during the week and on weekends. She also does babysitting for Lloyd and Linda Ottesen, Lance and Kari Moen and Lee and Shelly Moen.

In addition to her parents, Karen's family includes two brothers, Gordon, 20, a student in engineering at North Dakota State university in Fargo, who will work this summer with the Pennington county highway department and Brian, 8, a student at the Newfolden school; and one sister, Randine, 11, also a student in Newfolden elementary school.

She helps with meal preparation and baking at home and works with the family's vegetable garden. Her hobbies include creating elaborate hats for decorations, doing other craft work and taking walks.

Next fall she will return to Northland to spend two quarters completing her two-year college program. She then plans to transfer to Moorhead State or Bemidji State university to continue her studies.

Asked about her career interest area, Karen laughs, then starts listing the possibilities—"international business, psychology, physical therapy, engineering, pre-law......"

Karen and Lynel will compete in the Region 1 Dairy Princess contest Monday, June 8, in Bemidji.

Sewing has been one of Karen Hall's most active 4-H club projects and she has made at least one garment for competition each year.

One of Karen Hall's favorite hobbies is creating miniature hats with ribbons, tiny flowers and other decorative materials. The hats are used for wall hangings or other decorative purposes.

Many dairy farmers raise feed for their cows

Most dairy farmers have seasonal work as well as daily chores.

Hay is cut in Minnesota beginning in late May or early June when the grasses have the most food value. The farmer has to watch the weather carefully because spring is often rainy. If the hay is rained on after it is cut, it can be re-dried and then baled. It takes up to two days for hay to dry so that it can be safely stored for use in the winter. Rain causes loss of hay quality.

When the farmer is haying, there are log hours of work in addition to the milking and other daily chores. Much special equipment is needed to cut the hay, turn it for drying, bale it, haul it and load it into storage areas.

Some farmers chop hay at a higher moisture level and store it in a silo. A fermentation process preserves it until it is needed. Chopped grass, or haylage, is partially dried and the farmer is not as dependent on weather conditions as when baling hay. Haylage also required less labor.

Sometimes farmers will plant corn or another crop to feed the cows in the winter. Corn is chopped in September or October and put into a silo, a bunker, or more recently huge plastic bags known as "ag bags." Chopped corn is called silage.

Colostrum saves calves

University of Minnesota, Crookston

The single most important management factor in calf survival is making sure calves receive colostrum milk shortly after birth. A newborn calf lacks the antibodies in its circulatory system to protect it from disease. The thumb rule is to have the calf consume the colostrum as soon as possible after birth and preferably within the first 30 minutes. Colostrum is high in immune protein (gamma globulin) or passive antibodies which will protect the calf the first few weeks of life.

During the first day of life the calf has the unique ability to absorb these antibodies through the intestinal wall into the blood stream. After the calf is 24-36 hours old this ability to absorb those larger protein molecules (such as antibodies) decreases rapidly and is near zero by the second day of life, so the sooner the calf received colostrum following birth the more immunity it will have to resist the common bugs in its environment.

Research shows that day-old calves sold to sales barns or market for resale to other producers will have less than a 50 per cent survival rate without colostrum. Calves should be off to a good start before being sold, preferably kept for five to seven days and fed their mothers' colostrum the first three days. If the dam's colostrum is not available, feed other colostrum from the same herd or frozen colostrum saved for this purpose.

Surplus colostrum can also be stored in a container, such as a plastic trash can, at ambient temperatures in the barn and fed to other calves in place of milk. The colostrum will sour naturally, producing lactic acid which preserves the material for up to a month; however, try to feed it as soon as possible. This pickled or sour colostrum should be stirred twice daily to keep it somewhat liquid to facilitate feeding it to the calves.

Colostrum can vary in the concentration of immune globulins. The very first milking has the highest antibody content. Prepartum milking is not recommended for this reason as we want to give this first milk to the newborn calf to insure its survival. Subsequent milkings may not have adequate levels of antibody concentration and result in poor protection from disease and high mortality rates.

There is a tool on the market to measure the concentration of antibodies called a clostrometer and costs about $45. The average cow will have about 50 mg/ml antibody level but the range can go from 0 to 100 and occasionally a greater concentration. Milk or colostrum lower than 20 to 30 mg/ml is considered inadequate in antibody concentration. In those cases, feed the calf from another cow with higher levels or have some stored in the freezer for this purpose.

Generally older cows have a higher antibody concentration and also will immunize a calf against a wider array of diseases.

However, cows producing large volumes of milk the first day may have a dilution effect on the antibody content. Calves that do not drink at least two quarts of colostrum the first hour of life should be drenched or force fed. Be careful, however, not to get the colostrum in the calves' lungs; this could set up a respiratory problem and kill the calf.

Some producers are feeding three to four quarts of colostrum within one hour of birth to insure a sufficient intake of antibodies for adequate immunity and survivability.

In summary, the immunity a calf will receive from the colostrum to protect it the first months of life depends on the age of the calf at time of first colostrum feeding, volume of colostrum fed, and concentration of antibodies in the colostrum.

Various milk products contain proteins and minerals

Milk is sometimes called "nature's most perfect food." And that's for many good reasons.

Although milk from the cow is processed, it is not an engineered or fabricated food. It is about 87 per cent water and 13 per cent solids. The fat portion in the milk contains fat soluble vitamins and minerals.

Milk products contain high quality proteins. The whey proteins constitute about 18 per cent of the protein content of milk. Casein, a protein found only in milk, contains all of the essential amino acids. It makes up 82 per cent of the total proteins in milk and is used as a standard for evaluating protein of other foods. Protein is needed to build and repair body tissues and to form antibodies which circulate in the blood and help fight infection.

Milk contains the following minerals: calcium, phosphorus, magnesium, and potassium. The calcium found in milk is readily absorbed by the body. Phosphorus plays a role in calcium absorption and utilization. Milk provides calcium and phosphorus in approximately the same ratio as found in bone. Milk and milk products supply about 76 per cent of the calcium available in the food supply.

In adults, a calcium deficiency, along with other factors, may result in bone deterioration called osteoporosis. The Recommended Daily Allowance (RDA) for calcium is 800 milligrams for adults and young children and 1,200 mg for teenagers, young adults and pregnant or breast-feeding women. It is difficult to obtain adequate calcium without milk and milk products in the diet.

The following daily consumption of milk, is suggested: Children, three cups; teens and young adults, four cups; adults, two cups; and pregnant and lactating women, four cups.

Milk is also a significant source of riboflavin (Vitamin B2) which helps promote healthy skin and eyes, as well as Vitamins A and D.

Janna Kiecker represents northwest Minnesota as dairy princess

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

When Janna Kiecker dons her Northwest Dairy Princess crown and banner and flashes that winning smile, she seems totally comfortable in the role of royalty. But this East Polk county dairy farmer's daughter from just east of McIntosh is equally at ease with dairy cattle as with people.

In fact, when she competed and won in the Region I Dairy Princess contest in Thief River Falls last June during Northwest Dairy Day, she had to take time off from her current job at the time—milking 80 grade Holsteins for neighbors Tim and Dave Rolf.

Janna approached that job with a typical dairyman's attitude: "It was pretty easy," she said. "I just had to work from 4:30 to 8:30 in the morning and 4:30 to 8:30 in the evening and I got every other weekend off. The job lasted from March to August and they have a milking parlor with eight milkers so it was no problem."

Actually, the regional princess contest in Thief River Falls last year was Janna's second year in the regional competition. She was East Polk county princess both years and in 1990 received the Miss Congeniality award at the regional contest in Wadena. On June 8, the day before the 43rd annual Northwest Dairy Day in Thief River Falls this year, she will crown her successor at the Region I contest to be held in Bemidji. The contest alternates between Thief River Falls and other sites in the 16-county region every other year.

Now 20 years old and a 1990 graduate of Win-E-Mac high school, Janna attended the University of Minnesota—Crookston two quarters in the pre-veterinary program and Moorhead State university for two quarters in marketing. This spring she completed a 75-hour course at the Bemidji Technical college and is a Registered Nurses' Aide. She is now considering enrolling this fall in a nursing program at a technical college.

Although Janna's dad, Lauris (Bud), grew up on a farm just two miles down the road from the present farm, he didn't start farming on the present place until 1971. He had served in the military and in civilian life in Washington, DC, before returning with his East Coast wife Clellie to McIntosh to farm.

They had one son, David, and Clellie was pregnant with Janna when they came to McIntosh. David is now 22 and along with Janna the family includes Brenda, 17; Jodi, 15; and Kevin, 11. David will be a senior in the aviation program at the University of North Dakota next fall. Brenda, Jodi and Kevin attend the local schools.

Clellie is a Registered Nurse and has been working at Pioneer Memorial Home in Erskine for the past 20 years. She is now assistant director of nursing there.

Janna was active in music and athletics at Win-E-Mac high school, including being a member of the state champion volleyball team while a junior. She played volleyball from seventh through 12th grade, including three years on the varsity team. While at UMC she was a member of the volleyball team there. She also played basketball from seventh grade and on but took her junior year off to lift weights in conditioning for the spring track season.

The concentrated effort must have paid off because she set and holds the school record of 115 feet, 3/4 inch in the discus. She also ran the dashes, threw the shot and anchored the 4x400 relay team.

"I really liked track the best because it was just you against everybody else and you didn't have anyone to help you out," she said. "I tried to get them to start a track program at UMC but it never got going."

She has played French horn since fourth grade and did solo and ensemble work in high school. She also sang in the choir from seventh through 12th grade. Twice she was a member of the District Honor Band and once she was nominated for the District Honor Choir. An honor student, Janna also was co-editor of the high school yearbook.

The Kiecker family hosted two American Field Service exchange students, one from Germany and one from Sweden. Janna has been to Germany twice and Sweden once to visit them at their homes.

A nine-year member of the 4-H club program, she carried primarily citizenship and clothing projects, earning a number of championships in the style revue and advancement to Minnesota state fair competition. She was vice president and president of the Leo Club, the Lion's Club sponsored youth group.

At Mount Carmel Free Lutheran church Janna was president of the congregation's Luther League twice and also president of the district youth group. She taught vacation Bible school and was a Bible camp counselor for two years.

Janna pitches in to help in a number of ways in the family's 1,500-acre farming operation. She drives the tractor when needed but most frequently works with the approximately 50-cow milking herd. Additional stalls are now being added to bring the herd potential up to 70 head.

The Kieckers operate about 1,500 acres and each year have about 120 acres of alfalfa for hay and haylage, 260 acres of corn for silage and grain and 400 acres of barley. They sell Grade A milk to AMPI which has a collection point at Bagley and Bud serves as chairman of the district AMPI committee.

For many years the herd has been on DHIA testing and in April had a rolling herd average on 47 cows of 16,620 pounds of milk, 598 pounds of butterfat and 540 pounds of protein.

There have been a number of excellent producing individuals in the herd. One cow which experienced breeding problems is still in its second lactation after 720 days and has produced 37,421 pounds of milk, 1,732 pounds of butterfat and 1,503 pounds of protein.

Although Janna has made a number of appearances as Region I Dairy Princess, she was willing to make even more. One morning she received a call at 7 a.m. with an invitation to make an appearance at 11 a.m. the same day in a town 50 miles away. She was there on time.

Her appearance schedule started at the Minnesota State Fair where she worked in the dairy building and the ADA milk stand, was interviewed for the Princess Kay of the Milky Way contest, rode in the daily state fair parade, took part in radio and television interviews and talked about dairying at the kiddie barn. Like all of the regional contestants, she also had her likeness sculpted in an 80-pound block of butter.

She has been in a number of area parades, attended county ADA convention dinners, distributed open class and 4-H dairy awards at the Red River Valley Winter Shows and spoke at the Red River Valley Dairymen's association banquet.

When she can find time for hobbies Janna enjoys horseback riding, water and snow skiing, snowmobiling, gardening, counted cross-stitch and participating in sports.

What does a regional dairy princess tell the public when she is presented with the opportunity?

"I tell them to shop smart and look for the REAL seal," Janna says. "Some people shy away from dairy products because they are concerned about fat and cholesterol in their diets. But there are many dairy products on the market which are low in fat while still having the good nutrition of milk. The key is to shop for these products.

"And the REAL seal on products in the dairy case means that they are made from real milk, not substitutes which may be lacking in nutritional value. After all, milk is considered nature's most perfect food and dairy products are included in the basic food groups necessary for good health."

And about that sculpted butter head which now occupies space in the Kiecker food freezer—what does she intend to do with that?

"We're going to have a corn feed in the fall and use it for that," Janna said.

"We are?" Clellie asked.

Where will that be held?

"It will?" Clellie responded.

Apparently there are a few details to be worked out yet—but don't bet against it happening like Janna says it will. Royalty usually gets its way.

Northwest Dairy Princess Jana Kiecker of McIntosh is pictured with the rest of her family. In front are her sisters Brenda, 17 and Jodi, 15. Standing are her brother David, 22; father Bud and mother Clellie, and brother Kevin. David is a student in aviation at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks. Brenda, Jodi and Kevin attend the Win-E-Mac schools.

In her work as a registered nurse's aide at Pioneer Memorial Home in Erskine, Region I Dairy Princess Jana Kiecker helps resident Clarance Brudahl, 89, during a Bingo game.

Scientists need to pay attention to ag tech effects

Scientists need to pay more attention to the effects of agricultural technology on people and the land, according to the new director of the Minnesota Institute for Sustainable Agriculture.

Don Wyse, who was named head of the University of Minnesota institute last month, said agricultural technology has been viewed in the past primarily as a way to enhance production.

But scientists need to expand their thinking. They should also consider how their research might alter the social fabric, environment and economy of rural communities, Wyse said.

"We have not looked enough at the impact of various technologies that are being developed," he said. "We need to look at developing a crop production system that reduces and eliminates problems like pollution and erosion."

The institute, which opened on the university's St. Paul campus in February, will conduct research and offer educational programs in sustainable agriculture. Wyse defines sustainable agriculture as farming that produces food and fiber without harming people and the environment.

I could mean, for example, finding ways to control weeds, fertility, insects and diseases without necessarily using chemicals and fertilizers.

"To do that, we need to have a better understanding of the ecology of crop production systems," Wyse said.

The genesis of the Minnesota Institute for Sustainable Agriculture dates back to 1988 when representatives from five sustainable agricultural groups around the state approached University of Minnesota officials about getting involved in the movement.

They formed a loose organization that eventually evolved into the institute. Wyse said the composition of the institute is unique for a university campus. The majority of

Pennington gets $27,500 from Score

State grants totaling more than $5.5 million were given to 49 Minnesota counties recently for use in financing recycling, source reduction, waste education and other programs to limit the amount of garbage going into landfills.

Pennington county received $27,500 with Marshall, Kittson, Clearwater, Lake of the Woods and Roseau counties also receiving $27,500 each. Counties not receiving funds in the pass-through payment have not yet completed all planning requirements.

The grants were given by the Minnesota Office of Waste Management (OWM). The SCORE grant program, established by the 1989 Minnesota Waste Reduction and Recycling Act (named SCORE because it was developed by the Select Committee on Recycling and the Environment), has distributed more than $30 million since October of 1989.

Most counties have used the grants, matched by an average of twice as much in local funding, to set up and improve curbside and drop-off recycling programs to help them meet the state recycling goals of 25 per cent in Greater Minnesota and 35 per cent in the metro area by the end of 1993.

"Thanks to the efforts of counties using the SCORE grants and their own local money, Minnesota reached an overall recycling rate of 31 per cent in 1991," states Diane Wesman, acting director of OWM. "The local expenditures, combined with the state's ongoing financial support through SCORE grants, have made Minnesota a national leader in recycling.

"Most counties are well on their way to meeting the recycling goals and are now turning more of their attention toward programs to reduce the generation of solid waste," Wesman said. "We commend these efforts."

CPR course June 23-25 at TRFTC

American Heart association cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) course will be conducted Tuesday and Thursday, June 23 and 25, from 6 to 10 p.m. at the Thief River Falls Technical college. Fee will be $25.

Designed to meet the needs of adults in the workplace, the course will prepare participants in the infant, child and adult CPR techniques and management of choking infants, children and adults. All students will practice the techniques taught.

County seeks representatives on committee

Pennington county is seeking two representatives for membership on the county water resources advisory committee, according to Sandy Warner-Coltom of the Northwest Regional Development commission office in Thief River Falls.

The committee meets between four and six times a year to discuss implementation of the comprehensive local water plan, county natural resource issues and many other issues.

Persons interested in serving on the committee are asked to notify Ken Olson, Pennington county auditor, at 681-4011. For more information contact Warner-Coltom at 681-2637.

Way to go Dad!

Randy Welsh, a recent graduate of the aviation program at the Technical College in Thief River Falls poses for a photograph with his sons Joshua, age 3, and Jared, age 2, after graduation ceremonies at the school on Thursday. Randy's wife Dawn also graduated Thursday night. She received a medical secretary degree. About 320 students graduated from the TC Thursday night. That's the largest class in the 43-year history of the school. It was also the first graduation held on campus.

Theone Brown scholarship given at MacPhail Center for Arts

Theona Walker Brown was a piano teacher in Thief River Falls for 25 years and her family recently established a scholarship in her memory at MacPhail Center for the Arts in Minneapolis.

In memory of Theone Walker Brown, who taught piano in Thief River Falls for 25 years from 1948 to 1973, a $500 annual scholarship has been established at MacPhail Center for the Arts in Minneapolis by her daughter, Dixie Brown Grossman, and her husband of West Hills, CA.

Mrs. Grossman said the first recipient of the scholarship was Annie Tsong, a 14-year-old 10th grade honor student who had previously studied at a division of the Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore, MD.

An article in a publication called "MacPhail Quarter Notes" gives the following account:

A direct connection to MacPhail's earliest days has been established this year through a scholarship bequest from the family of a 1917 piano student. Theone Walker Brown grew up in Thief River Falls, a small northern Minnesota town. Mostly self-taught, the spirited young woman eagerly learned "novelty tunes" (ragtime) from her musical uncle each time he came through town, and by the age of 15 was playing for silent movies and vaudeville acts.

At 25 she felt she had reached her limits and headed for the big city and MacPhail to "find a good teacher." MacPhail had a fine reputation statewide, based on just ten years of existence and ten teachers. Theone was lucky, for 1917 was the year of the school's first great expansion. Now there were 37 teachers in 25 different areas, and the school was grandly renamed as "The MacPhail School of Music and Dramatic Art."

The eminent Victor Heinze, called by the catalog "one of the world's greatest piano teachers," had just been hired from Chicago as Master Piano Pedagog, and he brought with him as his assistant his young and beautiful star pupil, Miss Mabel McCabe.

Theone got off the train expecting to be met by a member of the MacPhail family, but wires had gotten crossed, and she spent anxious hours alone at the station. Somehow matters were righted and she eventually located lodgings in a private home. Here she was able to practice behind a curtain, and took the trolley downtown for an intensive four month of lessons with Miss McCabe.

She displayed extraordinary talent, but lack of finances forced her to stop her studies. After playing five difficult classical numbers in a recital, she went back to Thief River Falls and again played at dances and theaters.

Following the death of her husband in 1947, she began a teaching career and did not retire until she was 80. On the Christmas before her death (in July of 1990) at the age of 97, she played carols for her guests.

Recognizing MacPhail's significant life-enhancing powers, a quality unaltered through a century of monumental social change, Mrs. Brown's family felt that the most fitting memorial would be to enable stories like hers to be told for many years to come.

Local UPS driver receives special award

Ken Fort, a delivery driver for United Parcel Service, was recently recognized by the company for completing 15 years of driving without an accident.

Fort works out of the UPS facility located in Thief River Falls. He presently provides delivery service from Standquist to Lancaster.

"This is a great achievement. I am most impressed with the attitude UPS has in training its drivers. They really put a lot into it. . . their program has to be one of the best around," Fort said.

The 15 year safe driving award was presented at a ceremony honoring Fort's achievement.

Fort and his wife Jamie live in Thief River Falls. They have two children, Shawn, 10, and Brandi 9.
